THE DEPRESSION STANDS OUT AS REAL ISSUE OF CAMPAIGN

Republicans Have Historic Majority, Greater Press and Army of Office Holders, but Democrats Have Hard Times on Their Side.

CHARGE G. O. P. MADE BAD MATTER WORSE

Hoover Claims Gains On Economic Enemy and Mills Says the Democratic Way Would Be "the Road to Ruin."

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—It would take much more space than this page affords to sum up even briefly the arguments with which the Republican and Democratic candidates for the presidency have sought to win the election, but it takes only a word to state the outstanding and probably the controlling factor in the decision. That factor is the Depression.

Normally, this country is Republican by 5,000,000 votes. That is the great asset with which Mr. Hoover started. He had two other important advantages, namely, the ingrained Republicanism of by far the larger part of the press, and the ardent desire of the holders of Federal patronage jobs throughout the country—the District Attorneys, the postmasters, the United States Marshals and so on—to remain on the Government payroll.

Against these Republican assets, Mr. Roosevelt had, and still has, the depression.

Voters Ready to Kick Out "Ins."

It appears at this writing, from the Literary Digest and nearly all the other many straw votes, that the depression will win. The victory in that case will not be so much an affirmative victory for the Democratic candidate as a repudiation of the Republican candidate and his party. Millions of voters in all the states—apparently a deciding number of voters—are plainly in the mood to kick out the "ins." If this had not been manifest already, it was made so by the Literary Digest poll showing an astonishing number of Republican voters of 1928 in the Roosevelt column.

The Republicans claim that the straw votes depicted the condition in September; that since then the tide has run in favor of Hoover. He has helped himself greatly, they say, by his speeches setting forth his earnest efforts to down the depression and the "destructive" character of the Democratic proposals.

This claim of increased strength for the Republican candidate may be sound. It probably is sound so far as the votes of many wavering business men are concerned. The fact remains, however, that the September gap between the two candidates was huge, and it is questionable whether Hoover has been able, or will be able, to close it.

Depression Still With Us.

Whatever may be the signs of an economic upturn, the depression is still with us, in vivid memory and in present fact, and the depression seems to most non-partisan observers to be deciding the outcome on Nov. 8.

Money lavishly used in the closing stages of the 1896 campaign tipped the scales for McKinley against Bryan. No such last-minute change is feared this year by the confident Democratic management. The reason is simply that the Republicans, though possessed, as usual, of a larger war chest than the Democrats, lack the funds of other years. On neither side does the money being used approach the sums thrown into the campaign of 1928.

If Hoover wins, the trick will not be turned for him by the use of money, but by the fears bred of the possession of money. The Republican campaign management has played constantly and shrewdly upon these fears. It has harped on the theme that only the Republican party is "safe" for the man with property or the man with a job. It has said that normal employment can only come back through the processes which the safe and sane Republican party has set in motion. Election of the

FIRE DESTROYS LEMAY THEATER; 40 FLEE, UNHURT

Piece of Film Catches in Projection Room—Flames Spread to Roof When Door Is Opened.

The Lemay Theater, a neighborhood motion picture house at 318 Lemay Ferry road, Luxemburg, was destroyed last night by a fire which originated in the projection room as about 40 persons were attending an early show.

The audience left quietly. The flames were confined to the insulated projection room for about half an hour, but spread to the roof when a door was opened to introduce a hose line.

Lou Lau, who with his brother, Irvin, owns the theater, estimated the damage to the building and its equipment at $25,000. He said it was fully insured. The fire started at 6:45 o'clock and by 8 o'clock all that remained of the one-story brick and tile structure was the front and rear walls and part of a side wall.

Piece of Film Catches.

The fire started when a piece of film caught fire. Irvin Lau, who was operating the motion picture machine, endeavored to extinguish it, but was forced to leave the booth at the rest of the film blazed up.

The Lau brothers joined with the Dewey Heights Volunteer Fire Department in fighting the fire, but as they opened the projection room door, the flames whipped through the entrance and coursed up under the roof.

Within an hour the steel girders supporting the roof buckled and it caved in, sending a shower of sparks high in the air. The volunteer department kept three hose lines playing on the building while two engine companies from St. Louis each manned a line. The theater is three blocks from the city limits.

Protection "Inadequate."

Leo Lau, who described the fire protection in the neighborhood as "inadequate," said an arrangement existed with the St. Louis department to pay for its services in fighting the fire.

The building, which was 125 feet deep and 50 feet wide, was 28 feet high. It contained an auditorium with a seating capacity of 800. It was built five years ago.

The blaze attracted a large crowd, motorists driving along Lemay Ferry road parking their cars for blocks and joining the neighborhood throng which collected at a safe distance from the burning building.

MAIL PLANE FORCED TO LAND AT SEA SENDS OUT SOS

German Craft Brought Down by Gale Near Dover, England; Lifeboat Searching for It.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—A German air mail liner, buffeted by a 60-mile gale over the English Channel, was forced to descend at sea near Dover and a lifeboat was sent out immediately to search for it in response to SOS calls from the plane.

Only the pilot and the wireless operator were aboard the plane.

DOCTOR AND TWO OTHERS DROWN IN LAKE OF OZARKS

Dr. William H. Schutz, Kansas City, Sister and Her Husband Victims of Speedboat Upset.

PHYSICIAN'S WIFE SAVED AFTER HOUR

She Clings to Boat Till Help Arrives, but the Other Woman's Strength Gives Out.

By the Associated Press.

LINN CREEK, Mo., Oct. 29. — Dr. William H. Schutz, prominent Kansas City physician, his sister, Mrs. Paul L. James, Springfield, Ill., and Mrs. James' husband, were drowned late today when Dr. Schutz's speedboat overturned in the Gran Glaize branch of the Lake of the Ozarks, near here. Mrs. Schutz was saved after clinging to the boat more than an hour.

A strong wind was blowing across the lake and the waves were running high. It was thought the boat capsized when Dr. Schutz attempted to turn it around.

It was believed Dr. Schutz and his brother-in-law were thrown clear of the boat and drowned immediately. Mrs. Schutz, who was wearing a vest type life preserver, and Mrs. James, clung to the overturned boat. After nearly an hour had elapsed, Mrs. James' strength gave out and, losing her hold on the upturned craft, she sank to her death. Mrs. Schutz was rescued by a party of fishermen who heard her cries for help.

WHEAT SELLS AT CHICAGO AT LOWEST PRICE SINCE 1652

Grain for December Future Delivery Drops for Time to 43⅝ Cents a Bushel.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Statisticians went back to the reign of King Edward I of England to find wheat prices lower than those paid on the Chicago Board of Trade in the final 15 minutes of trading today.

The December future delivery sold at 43⅝ cents a bushel, the lowest price in the history of organized markets and one that has not been equaled since 1652, when it sold on the Strassburg (Germany) market at that price. In 1286 and 1287, wheat sold in Edinburgh, Scotland, as low as 9 cents a bushel. Other future deliveries sold at the lowest levels of the season.

Persistent liquidation by discouraged owners, coupled with poor buying power, forced wheat down to finish at 1¼ to 1½ cents lower than yesterday's final prices. The December delivery closed at 44 to 44⅛ cents a bushel, May at 49½ to 49⅝ cents and July at 50⅜ to 50⅞ cents.

Weakness of the market at Minneapolis and Winnipeg intensified the desire of wheat holders to sell and as their orders to "unload" came in, pit traders were hard pressed to find buyers.

Corn and oats followed wheat downward, with rye also showing discouragement and easing slightly.

YOUNG JUDGE ARRESTED FOR MISJUDGING AGE OF DEER

Kills Three-Point Instead of Four-Point Animal, Surrenders and Faces $100 Fine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PACIFIC, Mo., Oct. 30.—Sam Richeson, young Probate Judge of Washington County, made a misjudgment when he shot and killed a three-point deer which he mistook to be a four-point of legal age.

The result is that he is in the toils of the law. When he discovered his error he notified the Game Warden of Franklin County, where he was hunting. He was put under arrest, and the 200-pound animal he had bagged was confiscated for consumption in the dining room of the county infirmary. The penalty for killing a deer of illegal age is a $100 fine.

BEAR MASCOT BITES SPECTATOR

Man in Wheel Chair Tries to Pet Animal; Suffers Broken Arm.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29. — The 150-pound bear mascot of the University of California at Los Angeles football team, which won from Stanford today, attacked Cyrus Gray, a 44-year-old invalid spectator, fracturing one of his arms and inflicting deep bites.

Gray had asked that his wheel chair be moved close to the bear. The attack occurred when Gray attempted to pet the animal in the temporary absence of the keeper.

GOV. ROOSEVELT STARTS ON FINAL CAMPAIGN TOUR

MET AT THE STATE LINE BY GOV. ELY

Candidate to Go to Portland, Me., Tomorrow, Returns to Boston for Speech in Evening.

By the Associated Press.

GROTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt followed Alfred E. Smith into Massachusetts today as he began his swing through New England on his last presidential campaign trip. He was given a friendly welcome in six towns through which he passed to Groton.

The Democratic presidential candidate, traveling by automobile, was met at the State line by Gov. Ely, who placed Smith's name in nomination at the Chicago convention and was a sturdy supporter of the 1928 nominee. Gov. Ely and a group of State Democratic leaders accompanied Gov. Roosevelt on the trip down the Mohawk Trail through Williamstown, North Adams, Greenfield, Orange, Athol, Gardner, Fitchburg and Ayer.

At Ayer, in the early evening, Gov. Roosevelt made his first talk of the day. A large crowd had gathered in the public square and jammed into the streets.

"I am glad to see you, my friends, again," he said into the microphone of the loudspeakers. "I think I can say my old friends. Many of you were here when I was here 40 years ago. I have been coming to Ayer for a long time. We used to come over here skiing from Groton. On one certain occasion 30 years ago I used to teach Sunday school here. It is good to be back."

Spends Night at Groton.

He spoke from the back seat of the open car in which he had ridden since noon. A heavy overcoat was buttoned tightly about his throat and the collar was turned up to shut out the autumn chill. Later his automobile drew up in front of the Parents' Home on the grounds of the Groton School for Boys, and his son, John, a tall lad, came racing out to hug his father. Franklin Jr., another student at the school, suffered a broken nose in football scrimmage several days ago and is being treated in Boston.

Gov. Roosevelt planned to spend both tonight and tomorrow night at the Parents' Home and will leave at 8 a. m. Monday for an automobile trip through New Hampshire to Portland, Me., where he will speak in the afternoon. He will return to Boston the same night for an address.

The candidate left Albany at about the same time today as did Smith, with whom he had a friendly visit last night at the executive mansion. Leaving Albany, his automobile caravan swept out into the open country through the Vermont hills. A small crowd had gathered at Pownal, Vt., near the Massachusetts line, to cheer his arrival there.

Joined by Gov. Ely.

A few miles farther along, he was joined by Gov. Ely, Joseph A. Maynard, State Democratic chairman, and several other party leaders. From that point onward, the crowds grew larger at each successive town. At Williamstown, a group of Williams College students came out to cheer the candidate.

At Greenfield, a little later, a drum corps, dressed in brilliant red uniforms, met the caravan as it came into the town and marched before the candidate's automobile through the main street while the crowd cheered his arrival. Near the center of the town, the crowd swarmed thickly about his automobile during a brief stop. Just back of the point where Gov. Roosevelt stopped a huge banner was strung across the street.

"Vote Republican," it said. "Secure your job. Re-elect Herbert Hoover. Play safe. Further economic recovery depends on Hoover."

Eats Hot Dog for Lunch.

Gov. Roosevelt ate a "hot dog" for lunch at a roadside stand high up in the Berkshire Hills.

After climbing high up into the hills along a road that zigzagged its way up above the valley, the automobiles drew to a stop at a store and restaurant that nestled in a cove. The candidate was brought a "hot dog" and coffee which he ate while seated in his automobile chatting with Gov. Ely and Senator Marcus Coolidge of Massachusetts.

SPY'S SECOND MISTAKE COSTS HIM HIS LIFE

Polish Officer Saved by President Tries to Send Military Secrets From Prison and Is Caught.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 29.—Edward Plitt, a reserve Lieutenant in the Polish Army, 30 years old, who was the father of three small children and a prominent member of the Pilsudski Riflemen organization, was hanged as a German spy this morning at Grudziadz prison.

Plitt was condemned to death a month ago at a court-martial. President Moscicki commuted his sentence to 10 years' imprisonment. While serving the sentence, however, Plitt communicated with unknown assistants and dropped from a prison window a ciphered message containing further military secrets which he expected his associates to get. Instead, the wind carried the letter toward some guards.

He again was condemned to death and the President refused clemency.

AUSTRALIAN WILD HORSES REPLACE TRACTORS ON FARMS

Worth From $100 to $150, Whereas They Formerly Were Slaughtered.

By the Associated Press.

ADELAIDE, Australia. — The brumby, Australia's wild horse, has felt the effect of the economic crisis.

Ranchers used to slaughter the animals because they ate grass needed for stock, but horses are replacing tractors throughoout rural Australia and brumbies now are worth from $100 to $150. They are difficult to break, but are full of courage and make good workers.

NEW YORK VOTERS SET RECORD

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 29.—More voters than ever before in the history of New York State—5,349,213—have registered this year, Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn announces today.

The previous high mark was 4,885,276 in 1928.

Mint Saves King's Face.

MOSCOW BROADCAST TO LONDON BLOTTED OUT MYSTERIOUSLY

One Inference Is Authorities Feared Effect on Jobless Marchers.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 29. — Sunday morning papers tell of a mystery—the blotting out the broadcast from Moscow tonight.

When the time came for a special Moscow radio program of speeches and music, the newspapers say British radios gave forth only an assortment of "whams, bangs and splutters." They add that as soon as the time allotted to the Moscow program was over, the interference ceased. The British Broadcasting Co., denied it had any thing to do with any such disturbance, although in some quarters the inference was drawn that authorities may have feared consequences of the program in view of the presence of 2000 unemployed marchers in London.

Thousands of unemployed will gather tomorrow for a mass meeting in Trafalgar Square and the police are prepared for trouble.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT 'STILL DRY'

Says Neither She 'Nor Smith Is Issue in Campaign."

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 29.—Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant United States Attorney-General, told a San Diego County Republican rally tonight that "in spite of the insinuations of my self-appointed biographer, Mr. Alfred E. Smith, I have not turned wet, or even damp."

"I'm not going to quarrel with Mr. Smith," she said. "I've always liked it in him to go after me, just as he would after a man. But neither Mr. Smith nor I am issues in this campaign. The issue is whether we'll help or hinder economic recovery. To turn the Government to the experimentations of the Democratic party would greatly prolong the depression."

SENDS ROOSEVELT PROTEST AGAINST CALL FOR FUNDS

G. A. Eddy, President of Goss Printing Press Co., Complains of Request From A. P. Homer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. — The Republican National Committee tonight issued a statement saying that G. A. Eddy, president of the Goss Printing Press Co., Chicago, has written to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, that his campaign organization had approached him with what he characterized as a "flagrant attempt at political blackmail" in seeking campaign funds.

"In mid-October, A. P. Homer, director of the Marine Committee of the Finance Division of the Democratic National Committee, Hotel Biltmore, New York City, sent two letters to Mr. Eddy soliciting funds for the campaign," the Republican statement said.

"In the first," the Republican statement said, "Mr. Homer called attention that Gov. Roosevelt 'while Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was the man who personally saw that your (Eddy's) contract was reinstated after its cancellation on Armistice day,' and then requested Eddy to send a campaign contribution in the form of a check to F. C. Walker, treasurer of the Democratic National Campaign Committee."

Homer's Alleged Original Note.

The Republican statement quoted a communication which it said was "Mr. Homer's original letter to Mr. Eddy" as follows:

"Dear Mr. Eddy: Referring to our telephone conversation, Gov. Roosevelt, while Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was the man who personally saw that your contract was reinstated after its cancelation on Armistice day. He is, as you well know, interested in naval affairs and realizes thoroughly the necessity of naval forces. I am writing to ask you, if you will be so good as to send a check made out to F. C. Walker, treasurer, in the enclosed envelope at your earliest convenience. We are conducting as economical a campaign as possible, but you realize that in order that Mr. Roosevelt's speeches and various pieces of campaign literature can be sent where they will do the most good, it takes a great deal of money and we are asking all of our friends to contribute liberally."

Referring to this letter, the Republican statement said, "apparently someone in the Democratic headquarters saw a copy of this letter after it had been mailed and

DECISION GIVEN OUT ON RETURN TO WASHINGTON

Speaks Tomorrow in New York, Then Plans to Visit Chicago, Minneapolis, Springfield, Ill., and This City in Order.

SPENDS DAY IN REAR PLATFORM TALKS

In West Virginia and Maryland, on Way Back From Indianapolis, He Stresses Tariff and "Evidence of Recovery."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Definitely decided upon another and more protracted journey into the Middle West, on which he will make three or four speeches, President Hoover late today returned to the White House for a brief stop before carrying his campaign first to the Eastern seaboard.

The President plans to leave on Monday morning to swing through Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. He will speak at Madison Square Garden, New York, Monday night. Then late Wednesday or Thursday he will turn westward once more.

Although his plans now are tentative, with details still to be decided, Mr. Hoover probably will go through Chicago, Minneapolis, Minn., Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis in the order named. Dozens of rear platform appearances would be arranged for this route.

Some of the President's closest advisers are somewhat doubtful that he will make a trip to the Pacific Coast, but most of his plans have been arranged so that an eleventh hour shift would be possible.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Returning to the capital today from his fourth trip of this month into the politically doubtful Middle West, President Hoover in six brief rear platform speeches in West Virginia resumed his heavy attacks on the tariff and fiscal policies of Gov. Roosevelt and the Democratic party. Friendly crowds greeted him at all the stops.

Three principal points were stressed by the President in his talks at Clarksburg, Martinsburg and stations between.

As in practically all his recent speeches, he eulogized the protective tariff and told of his direction to the Tariff Commission to review present differences in the cost of production at home and abroad, with a view to "adjustments" in aid of American industries. He said the depreciation of currencies abroad had lowered foreign production costs to a point that seriously threatened the welfare of various home industries.

"Stage of Recovery."

Second, the President emphasized his contention that we have reached "the stage of recovery" from the economic crisis, and cited the recent increase in car loadings as vivid evidence of this recovery.

Third, he reiterated all along the line that retention of the present administration policies was essential to further recovery. Using the figure of speech which his addresses have made familiar, he asserted that "this is no time, when we are in the midst of the most gigantic battle that our country has ever plunged into in time of peace, to change that strategy or the policies of battle."

At Clarksburg, in a hosiery mill section, the President illustrated his tariff argument with a current advertisement of a New York retail store, offering hosiery at prices which he said were 30 to 40 per cent less than manufacturing costs in West Virginia. This under-cutting, the President said, could be traced to the depreciated curren-

G. O. P. CUTS COST OF CAMPAIGN TO $1,454,000 SO FAR

E. R. JOHNSON HEADS LIST WITH $50,000

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Treasurer Joseph R. Nutt of the Republican National Committee officially recorded the cheapest presidential campaign the Republican party has conducted for decades when he reported to the Clerk of the House today that the total expenditures of the committee from June 1 to Oct. 26 were $1,454,179.38.

Gross receipts between the same dates, as reported by Nutt, were $1,554,817.33, of which more than 90 per cent were in contributions of $100 or more.

Betwen Sept. 1 and Oct. 26, the National Committee collected $1,478,791.96, of which $289,042.90 was received by the National Committee acting as an agent for state committees. Of this fund $55,086.67 was disbursed to congressional committees and $123,500 to state committees. Contributions of $100 or more amounted to $1,373,815.40, and those less than $100 amounted to $104,976.56. The balance on Oct. 26 was $120,264.94.

The report showed that most contributions were made after the Maine elections on Sept. 12 when the Democrats captured the Governorship and two house seats. Up to Sept. 1, contributions totaled $76,025.

The largest contributor to the Republican party chest was Eldridge R. Johnson of Camden, N. J., founder of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who sent in two checks for $25,000 each. The next largest individual givers were Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon and his successor as Secretary of the Treasury, Ogden L. Mills, who each contributed $25,000. R. B. Mellon gave $15,000 and W. L. Mellon, $5000.

Pratt Family's Huge Gift.

Several families gave more than the famous Mellon group. Mrs. John T. Pratt of New York contributed $10,000; Frederic B. Pratt, $5500; George D., Harold I., and Herbert L. Pratt, each $8500; Mrs. Harold I. and Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, each, $1000.

The Guggenheim group were also generous contributors. Harry F. Guggenheim gave $10,000, and his wife, $1000; Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim contributed $5000; Murry Guggenheim, S. R. Guggenheim and Simon Guggenheim, each gave $5000.

William Nelson Cromwell, the famous international lawyer and capitalist, gave $22,000 and his law firm, Sullivan and Cromwell, $5000. Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker of New York gave $15,000 and Mrs. Edward S. Harkness, New York, $12,000. Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, widow of the steel king, sent a check for $16,000.

Three St. Louis Contributors.

The largest St. Louis contributors were Dr. T. M. Sayman, $5000; Louis H. Waltke, $2000, and Dwight F. Davis, $1000.

Former President Calvin Coolidge was credited with a gift of $500.

Many of the names heard in the Senate investigations of last sessions were among contributors. E. F. Hutton, of the brokerage firm which handled several of the famous pools probed by the Banking and Currency Committee, contributed $20,000. F. J. F. Thiel, Washington partner of M. J. Meehan and Co., was listed for $5000. Meehan left the country before he could be subpenaed by the same committee. Percy Rockefeller gave $5000. J. P. Morgan was recorded as a $5000 contributor.

Other bankers listed were Felix M. Warburg, $12,000; John M. Schiff, $12,000, and Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase Bank, $5000. The industrialists represented were Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of United States Steel, $10,000; Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, $10,000; Harvey S. Firestone, Akron, $12,500; Harrison Williams, North American public utilities, $10,000.

Jeremiah Milbank, treasurer of the Eastern division of the National Committee, contributed $10,000 and his wife $2000.

Many of the 1928 contributors, then in the $10,000 and $25,000 class, were recorded with giving as little as $100 and $500 this year. E. C. Jameson of New York, who gave Bishop Cannon $65,000 to help beat former Gov. Al Smith in the South, was recorded as a $10 contributor.

Other prominent or well known contributors on the list were:

M. K. Shaler, Brussels, Belgium, $5000; F. G. Coburn, New York, $5000; Alexander M. Stewart, New York, $5000; Richard A. Strong, $5000; Henry I. Harriman, Boston, $500; L. K. Thorne, ..ew York, $5000; Alfred L. Loomis, $5000; H. E. Manville, New York, $2500; William H. Vanderbilt, Newport, R. I., $100; Herbert Leitstein, New York, $5000; Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, New Jersey, $500; Mrs. Hamilton Rice, Newport, R. I., $5000; Ernest B. Dane, Boston, $4000; Rufus L. Patterson, New York, $5000; Charles Evans Hughes Jr., $500; Hallam Tuck, Brussels, Belgium, $12,500; Under Secretary of State William R. $21,000 of Funds Attached By Movie Producer Suing Sanders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Deputy Sheriff James Tuomey, today attached $21,000 of the funds of the Republican National Campaign Committee under a warrant of attachment signed by Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook.

The attachment was served as the result of a suit filed by Lowell H. Brown, movie producer, against Everett Sanders as chairman of the Republican National Committee. Brown said that he was the producer and owner of a negative motion picture "The Master of Emergencies," depicting the career of President Hoover, which he claims he made in agreement with the Republican National Committee.

He charged that he sold two copies of the picture to the Republican National Committee for campaign purposes and that the committee "wrongfully and in violation of the agreement caused to be made a duplicate negative" from which, he charged, copies of the film were made and are being sold.

He contended that under the agreement he was to have been sole distributor of the pictures. He is suing for $21,000.

$292,171 Received by Association Against Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Charles H. Sabin of New York, treasurer of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, today filed the organization's pre-election report with the House clerk.

He listed total receipts from Jan. 1, 1932, to Oct. 24, at $292,171, which includes two loans amounting to $17,000, from the Guaranty Trust Co., New York. Pierre S. du Pont, Wilmington, Del., contributed a total of $40,500 and Irene du Pont gave 2000 shares of United States Rubber preferred, the value of which was not stated. Expenditures between Sept. 1 and Oct. 24 were placed at $59,428, with total expenditures from Jan. 1 to Oct. 24 at $297,414.

HEAD OF GET-OUT-THE-VOTE CLUB CENSURES HENRY FORD

Says Manufacturer Wants 1000-Fold Ballot by Voting Entire Factory Force.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Simon Michelet, president of the national Get-Out-the-Vote Club, in a radio speech tonight said Henry Ford "can scarcely pose as an apostle of Lincoln's creed of government 'by the people.'"

After saying the United States lags behind all European countries and Japan in the percentage of eligible voters who cast ballots, Michelet asserted in an advance copy of the speech he distributed: "The cirticism I am about to offer * * * has the same application whether Mr. Ford were for Hoover, Roosevelt or Thomas."

An "employer who seeks to control the vote of his wage-earners and has not enough concern for his duty as an American citizen even to register in his voting precinct" was the way he described Ford.

"'Boss Tweed,'" Michelet continued, "is said to have attained such a degree of 'maximum efficiency' that he sometimes polled 115 per cent of the voters to win an election victory. Mr. Ford is not satisfied in getting 115 per cent—he wants 1000-fold by voting his entire factory force."

Michelet said he represented no party but the "independent voter."

FRANK ROOSEVELT IS NATION'S HOPE, SMITH DECLARES

Ex-Governor Cheered as He Refers to Presidential Fight in Speech at Buffalo for State Ticket.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Alfred E. Smith brought thunderous cheers from a crowd estimated at 6000 as he wound up his fifth campaign speech by declaring he had found "pretty nearly a united opinion that the hope of this country for relief . . . lies absolutely in the election of Frank Roosevelt."

"When the applause died down, he added:

"—and in the election of a Democratic Senate and House of Representatives."

He made this observation, he explained, on the basis of his campaign tour in the interest of his old political ally, Gov. Roosevelt—the man whom he had opposed at Chicago for the presidential nomination.

"I talked to men who had their hands on the public pulse," he said, "and I found out the people in the East, as well as in every other section, agree that the present Republican administration is a dismal failure. Four years ago they promised us the earth—and they agreed to put a white fence around it for good measure.

"The Republican best minds are not competent. They are not there today."

Handwriting on Wall.

Smith's final words were a reference to the Biblical incident of an ancient King who unwisely ruled his nation and who saw the "handwriting on the wall."

"That handwriting said, 'You have been tried in the balance and found wanting,'" Smith quoted, then added: "That's written in the record today—across the United States."

Long before the former Governor appeared, waving his brown derby, every seat in the building was taken, and outside in the driving rain crowds pushed against police lines seeking entrance.

Lieutenant-Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, and other State candidates followed Smith to the platform.

With arms around each others' sholders, Lehman and Smith waved to the shouting, whistling, cheering crowd. The demonstration lasted nearly 10 minutes.

Recalled Own Fight of 1924.

He recalled his fight for the governorship in 1924 against "Young Teddy Roosevelt" and said he had "looked in vain in his speeches for some sign he knew something about the State government."

He said Col. William J. Donovan, Republican gubernatorial candidate, was "pulling the same kind of stuff now."

He told of his regret he had not heard the son of the late President in his radio talk, then added he thought the cost of the broadcst should have been given to the unemployed.

In 1924 he said Theodore Roosevelt Jr. "was so anxious to be Governor he would have gone to the North Pole in Gandhi's garb."

The crowd laughed and an uproar followed when Smith termed Donovan "the candidate of the drys."

Most of his speech was devoted to the State ticket.

Urging the re-election of Morris S. Tremaine of Buffalo as Comptroller, Smith paused as he started to mention Tremaine's Republican opponent, Charles Owen, Mayor of Rochester. "I don't remember his name," Smith said, "but anyway, he shouldn't be elected."

Smith said in an interview before the speech that he and Gov. Roosevelt would appear together at two New York City rallies next week.

Jumps to Death From Viaduct.

cies abroad and the ability of importers to "take advantage of that lower exchange in securing commodities in competition with your workmen."

He was confident, he said, that if the figures given in the advertisement were correct, the Tariff Commission's findings in the inquiry now under way would "make it possible to give you relief."

"I ask you," he said, "whether the fate of your city and your community and your community and your state will be more safe in the hands of the party which has fathered and for 70 years supported and strengthened the protective tariff, than in the hands of the party which has always opposed these policies and now promises a reduction in these tariffs."

Touches Railroad Problem.

Touching briefly on the railroad problem in another speech, the President said that a year and a half ago, because of inability of the lines to earn their fixed charges, "we were faced with the possibility of receivership of three-fourths of the railroads of the United States."

He said that notwithstanding the depression, wages had been maintained till the cost of living had been decreased and profits had vanished, after which had come "readjustments in wages, representing the contribution of the men to the stability of their own industry."

Moreover, he said, advances had been made to the railroads to enable them to replace equipment "in order that with the gradual resumption of traffic they shall be able to meet the demand, and thus increase and maintain employment.".

"You and I know," he added, "that since the adjournment of the Democratic House of Representatives the great measures that we have in action for the rehabilitation of the country have begun to have their effect. We have witnessed increase of car loadings from about 490,000 cars a week to over 650,000. This means the recovery of the United States, and it means the recovery of employment to the railway workers."

New York's Interest in the "New Hoover" Called Unprecedented.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. — The President was described as the "new Hoover" today by his party's Eastern chairman, Senator Felix Hebert, who said "his fighting mood had aroused the interest of the entire East" in the chief executive's visit to New York Monday.

Declaring the interest in the Republican rally at Madison Square Garden Monday night "is unprecedented in recent presidential campaigns," the Senator said. "People want to see, as well as hear, the new Hoover that has been revealed to them by the President himself."

The President's New York visit is regarded by Senator Hebert as "the climax to the most intensive campaign any President has waged for re-election."

The Republican Eastern chairman said the President regarded the New York address as "one of the most important" and has been preparing it for several weeks.

Madison Square Garden's seating capacity has been variously placed at between 22,000 and 24,000, and Senator Hebert said the demand for tickets to hear President Hoover has been "sufficient to fill the arena several times over."

The President will speak at 9 o'clock. The address will be broadcast over a nation-wide radio network.

After his last address en route at Newark, the President will cross the Hudson and go direct to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. He will leave for Washington immediately after the rally.

EX-SENATOR REED ATTACKS G. O. P. STAND ON PROHIBITION

In Milwaukee Address Declares It Denies People Even a Chance to Vote on Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 29.—Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, in a campaign address tonight, vigorously assailed the Republican party's attitude toward prohibition.

The Republican platform, he asserted, "brings into the realm of personal ethics and national law a new principle, namely geographic morals." Under the plan sponsored by the Republican party, he said, "it may be made a crime against the National Government to drink a glass of beer in Wisconsin, and in Iowa the exercise of a high constitutional right."

Reed spoke at the Milwaukee auditorium at a Democratic rally for Gov. Roosevelt.

"The opinion that the two party platforms on prohibition are identical is entirely erroneous," Reed said. "The Republican party denies the people the chance even to vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. It perpetuates the army of sneaks and spies which infects the land. It further extends the jurisdiction of the Federal Government. It continues indefinitely the atrocities of the Volstead act.

"The Democratic platform promises immediate relief from the most monstrous provisions of the Volstead act, insures the right to vote for absolute repeal of the eighteenth amendment and abolishes the army of spies."

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF UTILITIES IS URGED BY THOMAS

Socialist Nominee for Presidency in Boston Speech Asserts Regulation Has Failed.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, called for public ownership of utilities and a publicly controlled banking system as practical steps in the Socialist program in an address here tonight.

He described the record of privately owned banks as "shocking" and advocated a program which would provide "complete socialization of the Federal Reserve System with compulsion on all commercial banks to join it; guarantee of deposits under this system; the expansion of the postal savings bank into a Federal Bank with segregated thrift and commercial accounts; encouragement of state and municipal banks which, like the Federal Bank, must belong to the Federal Reserve System."

"Graft Caused by Business."

Pronouncing Socialism practicable, Thomas said the worst graft and incompetency in the United States was found in business—not Government.

"Furthermore, much of the crookedness in Government is caused by business," he said, "both through direct 'influence' and by the vastly more powerful and subtle poisoning of the public mind with the low standards of business.

"Business is capitalism at work. Capitalism isn't working very well; business is bad. Capitalism, by its failure to conquer or even adequately to relieve unemployment is today discredited. Its failure is obvious and ghastly."

Pointing to publicly-owned water systems and socially-owned public utilities, Thomas said such Socialist or semi-Socialist developments had more than justified themselves.

Assails Insull Crash.

"The worst graft in the United States is found, not in Government but in business. Witness the stock market, the South American loans the Kreuger and Insull cases."

Urging the practicability of the Socialist program for ownership of public utilities and social control of banks, Thomas said:

"It is in general far more practicable to own outright our public utilities than to try to regulate them. Regulation has proved its inadequacy in the case of railroads. The Insull crash proves what collectivism of private holding companies means.

"Gov. Roosevelt's eight-point program for regulating the power companies borders on absurdity in view of his failure to protect 90 per cent of the people of New York City from paying more for electric light by reason of the introduction of a 'service charge' during his administration."

"Where's Al?" asked a man in the crowd as the automobile passed. The crowds grew larger as the party moved on. Several of the cities brought out bands and drum corps to march ahead of the candidate's machine. Horns and cow-bells sounded among the applause in several places.

The caravan slowed down at each place and several times came to a halt to allow friends to crowd up to shake hands with the nominee. As the chill New England evening came on, red flares were lighted along the route of his passage through several places. Many children stood in the lines, holding aloft the torches.

One of the largest crowds turned out to see Gov. Roosevelt at Fitchburg. For a mile or more, men and women lined the route of passage and cheered.

In the villages through which he passed men and women clustered on the street corners, and women stood in the yards in front of their neatly painted white houses to wave at him. Children stood in various places to wave flags. Throughout his line of travel through Fitchburg, he was preceded by a boys' drum corps, in neat white belted uniforms that marched through the principal business district and then aligned themselves along the street to stand stiffly erect until the procession had passed in review.

MUCH SCRATCHING OF BALLOTS HERE EXPECTED NOV. 8

Politicians Said to Be Telling How to Back Roosevelt but Save G. O. P. State and Local Tickets.

MARKED SAMPLES MAY BE SENT OUT

Much scratching of party tickets by St. Louis voters appears to be in prospect for the general election Nov. 8.

St. Louisans have shown before that they know how to scratch and this year's demonstration is expected to equal, and perhaps surpass, earlier instances.

Despite recent public denunciation of the plan by Gov. Caulfield, it is said that some practical Republican politicians are instructing voters how to cast a ballot for Gov. Roosevelt for President and at the same time vote for the entire Republican State and local tickets. The way to do it, they say, is to place a cross in the circle under the Republican elephant at the top of the ballot and then place crosses after each of the 15 Democratic electors' names.

Unofficial Sample Ballots.

There is no open schooling of voters along this line by persons officially connected with the Republican organization. It is likely, however, that from unofficial sources there will be distributed this week sample ballots marked as described.

The reason for this is the alarm of Republican leaders over the gains made by Gov. Roosevelt by his promises of beer and unemployment relief. The fear has spread that Roosevelt's plurality in St. Louis will exceed that of Alfred E. Smith in 1928, which was 14,720, and endanger the State and local tickets. Despite the plurality for Smith in 1928, Gov. Caulfield carried the city by 13,375 and the State by 52,510, and President Hoover carried the State by 171,518.

This year President Hoover is plainly weaker outstate, and this, combined with the prospect that St. Louis will be stronger for Roosevelt than it was for Smith, has alarmed the Republican organization.

The City Committee several weeks ago caused a canvass to be made of voters by precincts. It was learned then that many Republicans intended to vote for Roosevelt, although most of them indicated they would stand by the remainder of the Republican ticket. It was said then that precinct workers were showing voters how to scratch the head of the ticket.

Caulfield Denounced Scratching.

After publication of this information, Gov. Caulfield appeared on the platform at a Republican rally at Hotel Jefferson, where Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills was the principal speaker, and in a brief talk denounced as disloyal any Republicans who were concerned with it. Richard E. Gruner, chairman of the Republican City Committee, promptly denied knowledge of any such plan and called on Gov. Caulfield for further information.

Chairman Gruner declared again yesterday that he knew of no such plan and that he was certain no one in authority in the city organization was connected with it, if it existed. He asserted Hoover's prospects in St. Louis had improved in recent weeks and that he thought the swing to the President sufficient to carry the city.

Gruner joined with Arthur M. Curtis, chairman of the State Committee, and Dr. E. B. Clements, national committeeman, in urging President Hoover to make a major address in St. Louis this week.

"No Knifing," Gruner Says.

Gruner asserted there will be no "knifing of Hoover" by the City Committee. "We are for the whole ticket," he declared, "and we believe the chances to get beer are better under the Republican plan than under that of the Democrats."

The Republican opportunists, interested only in the success of the local ticket, hark back to the campaign of 1922 when James A. Reed running for the Senate as a wet Democrat, carried St. Louis by 43,002. By intensive instructions in scratching, the organization delivered for the local and State candidates majorities of 16,000 to 20,000.

Indications are that scratching this year will be practiced extensively by Democratic voters who resent the dictation of Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City in the nomination of Judge Guy B. Park for Governor. Voters are being advised that if they wish to cast a Democratic ballot they may vote against Judge Park by marking a cross opposite the name of Lieutenant-Governor Edward H. Winter the Republican nominee.

Chairman Gruner said that he expected Winter to carry St. Louis by 30,000 or more and the remainder of the State ticket to lead here by smaller pluralities.

'PANSY ORCHID' BLOOMS AT SHAW'S GARDEN

Finest of Dwight Davis Collection May Be Seen in Alcove House Today.

The finest of the Dwight Davis collection—the Philippine "Pansy Orchid"—is blooming at Shaw's Garden for the first time, and may be seen today in the Alcove House, adjoining the Floral Display House.

So delicate is this variety—a factor in its extreme rarity—that it will be removed from the unfriendly city atmosphere this week and taken back to the orchid houses at the 1600-acre Gray Summit garden, where it has its own sea-level tropical climate made to order.

Fanciers have declared it one of the loveliest of all the thousands of orchids which Shaw's Garden has brought to St. Louis. Six magnificent flowers bloom at the tip of a long spike on the lone plant, which still grows on the original leg on which it was sent from the Philippines.

The flower, technically Vanda Sanderiana, is 3½ inches across, pansy-like in shape and vividness. Three petals (the uppermost is really a sepal) rise fanlike, the faintest of mauves with chocolate-red flecks near the base. The lip, most prominent feature of the show orchids most familiar in St. Louis, is a tiny sac in the center of the blossom. Below flare two sepals, heavily criss-crossed with the chocolate-red over yellow.

A professional orchid hunter, M. Robelyn, pushed into an unknown section of southeast Mindanao in 1882 and found the pansy orchid along the seacoast, sometimes growing on trees overhanging the surf so closely that salt spray reached its trailing roots.

BOY'S FOOT CRUSHED WHEN HE IS HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Lad Denies Story of Driver Who Picked Him Up That Car Ahead Struck Him.

Anthony, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gallina, 4362 Page boulevard, was struck by an automobile last night as he ran across the street in front of his home. Several bones in his right foot were crushed.

Lavelle Reger, 4305 Laclede avenue, took the boy to City Hospital. Reger told police he had been driving behind the car which injured the boy, and that the driver had continued east without stopping.

The boy, however, said Reger was the driver of the car which struck him. Reger was held pending an investigation.

decided that it was too crude," adding: "A substitute letter was written, signed by Mr. Homer and sent to Mr. Eddy. This substitute is the letter which Mr. Eddy quotes in his letter to Gov. Roosevelt."

Complaint to Roosevelt.

"It was on the basis of this letter," the Republican statement said "that Mr. Eddy wrote to Gov. Roosevelt expressing his amazement and outrage at the 'flagrant attempt at political blackmail.'"

The Republican statement went on to quote the following letter which is said was from Eddy to Gov. Roosevelt:

"Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

"Mr. A. P. Homer, of your campaign headquarters, has written me as follows:

"'Dear Mr. Eddy: Referring to our conversation of the day before yesterday, in view of the friendly relations between Mr. Roosevelt while Assistant Secretary of the Navy and your company, I feel sure that you will be glad to send a substantial check to help with his campaign. Will you be good enough to have the check made by an individual payable to F. C. Walker, treasurer, and forwarded to me in the enclosed envelope as promptly as possible.

"'Thanking you for your assurances of good will, I am

"'Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) "'A. P. HOMER.'

"Amazed and Outraged."

"I am amazed and outraged by this flagrant attempt at political blackmail, and am loath to believe that it could have been made with your sanction. At the same time, however, the information upon which the demand upon me for funds is made apparently must have come from you. I do not suppose that I am the only one upon whom similar pressure has been exerted, and certainly if your past services in a minor governmental capacity are now being made the basis for financial levies in connection with your aspiration for the presidency, I shudder to think what may be condoned in the future if your are successful."

The Republican statement concluded with a recital of the history of the Goss Printing Press Co.'s dealings with the Navy Department. Department records, it said, showed two contracts for gun mounts totaling $5,025,000 and signed for the navy by "F. D. Roosevelt," as "Acting Secretary."

Navy correspondence files show, the Republican statement said, that "on April 26, 1918, Mr. Roosevelt, still acting as Secretary of the Navy, sent a letter remitting interest on $200,000 which had been advanced "to the Goss company in connection with one of the contracts."

Chairman Farley Repudiates Reputed Homer Letter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, said tonight that "neither I nor any member of the Democratic Finance Committee ever gave anyone authority to solicit funds in such a manner" as described in a Republican National Committee statement quoting correspondence G. A. Eddy of Chicago said he had received from A. P. Homer of the Democratic Finance Division.

Farley's statement said: "I want to state most emphatically that neither A. P. Homer nor anybody else had any authority whatever to write such an absurd letter; and if the letter was issued it was written by Mr. Homer on his own responsibility. No such letter was ever submitted to me, to treasurer Walker or any member of the Finance Committee.

"Neither I nor any member of the committee ever gave anyone authority to solicit funds in such a manner and we roundly condemn it if it was written."

MERCHANT GETS THREAT DAUGHTER WILL BE KIDNAPED

Julius Werner Told Over Phone to Pay $1000 to Protect Child — He Ignores Request.

Julius Werner, president of Werner & Hilton, clothing firm at 800 Washington avenue, got a telephone message in mid-afternoon yesterday from a man who said that, unless Werner paid him $1000 before midnight, his 10-year-old daughter would be kidnaped.

"I told him to go to hell and hung up the 'phone," Werner said last night, and added that he had not waited to hear by what method the man desired the money to be paid. A few minutes later, a woman employe of the store answered the telephone, and was told, by a man's voice, to tell Werner that the threat would be carried out if the money were not paid.

Werner then went to his home, 6318 Southwood avenue, Clayton, after assuring himself by telephone that all was well there. City police and county officers were called later, and were still at the house last night, while a number of relatives, invited because of Mr. and Mrs. Werner's wedding anniversary, were at the Werner apartment.

Werner declined to give the name of the daughter who was the subject of the threat, and who is the youngest of his three children. He said he believed the messages had come from a crank, and he denied a report that he had received previous threats, and had employed a guard.

"The child is safe, and nothing has happened," Werner said to a reporter. "I haven't paid anything, don't intend to, and wouldn't know where to put the money if I did intend to."

THREAT TO KIDNAP WEALTHY CHICAGO WOMAN'S SON, 14

John McGuire, Student for Priesthood, Closely Guarded from Extortionists.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—An extortion plot against John McGuire, 14-year-old student for the priesthood and prospective heir to $1,000,000, was disclosed tonight by police.

Detectives said the boy's father, Dr. Walter G. McGuire, had received three letters threatening his son with kidnaping if $10,000 were not paid.

Young McGuire has been guarded constantly since Cardinal Mundelein ordered that he be watched closely while attending Quigley Preparatory Seminary. The boy's mother, a niece of former Mayor John P. Hopkins, inherited $1,000,000 in 1927.

BLUE EYES REALLY COLORLESS; JUST REFLECTED LIGHT

This Is the Discovery of Biological Laboratories at Pasadena, Cal.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Oct. 29.—Research of the William G. Kerckhoff Biological Laboratories here has disclosed that blue eyes are not blue.

Really they are colorless, there being an absence of pigment in the outer layer of the iris, so that that inner layer is exposed. The inner layer contains a whitish substance. The reflected light makes this appear blue because in the scattering of light the shorter rays are scattered more readily, and these short wave lengths are in the blue spectrum.

If longer wave lengths were scattered more readily than shorter wave lengths these eyes would appear yellow.

Then comes the question, "Why are brown eyes brown?" Biologists have found that brown eyes are present in those people where there is much brilliant sunlight. The dark eye, or brown pigment, protects the retina against too much light from the sun.

SUES WIFE'S RELATIVE FOR ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS

Walter E. Freese Says Defendant Gave Her Presents and Took Her to Clubhouse.

Walter E. Freese, 2750 Rutger street, an automobile mechanic filed suit yesterday for $15,000 damages against Louis Schad, 3849 South Compton avenue, a huckster. The suit is based on the alleged alienation of the petitioner's wife, Mrs. Florence Freese, who is a niece of Schad's wife, according to Attorney Arthur Kreisman, representing Freese.

The petition sets forth that Schad visited Mrs. Freese, purchased gifts for her and took her to a clubhouse on the Meramec River. It is further alleged he influenced her to abandon her husband three times, the last separation taking place Friday. Schad could not be reached.

Freese and his wife were married in 1919. She is 30 years old and Schad is 50, the attorney stated.

50 VOLUNTEERS WANTED FOR UNEMPLOYED RECREATION PLAN

Community Council Calls for Young Men and Women to Direct Various Activities.

The Emergency Committee of the Community Council appealed yesterday for 50 young men and women to volunteer to assist in the recreational program for children and unemployed adults during the coming winter.

Volunteers will be asked to devote one afternoon or evening a week, directing clubs, athletic activities, and study groups. A training course for volunteer workers will be held Nov. 9 and 10 at the Neighborhood House Auditorium, Nineteenth and Wash streets. Those desiring to assist have been requested to communicate with Miss Bertha Howell, secretary of the committee, whose telephone is CEntral 6900.

EFFORT CONTINUED TO RAISE FUNDS FOR DEMPSEY CHARITIES

New Gifts Listed by Fordyce Committee Ranging From $50 to $365.

A committee headed by Samuel W. Fordyce is continuing its efforts to raise more funds for the support of Father "Tim" Dempsey's charities for the coming winter.

Among subscriptions announced yesterday was one for $365 from the Shell Petroleum Corporation and its officers, $200 from the International Shoe Co., $100 each from Mrs. Albert H. Gehner and Mark D. Eagleton and $50 each from George O. Carpenter, T. M. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller, Dr. Harvey Mudd, William E. Guy, Mrs. Samuel Plant and the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Employes of the Elder Manufacturing Co. sent in contributions totaling $160.95.

Persons wishing to contribute may send checks to the Treasurer of the Father Dempsey Fund, 621 Locust street.

DANIEL K. CATLIN TO DIRECT UNITED RELIEF CAMPAIGN

Frank O. Watts, General Chairman of Organization, Also Appoints 18 Vice-Chairmen.

Daniel K. Catlin, 41 Westmoreland place, was named director of the United Relief Campaign Organization yesterday by Frank O. Watts, general chairman.

Watts at the same time announced the appointment of 18 vice chairmen, and summoned them to a meeting to be held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at First National Bank, of which Watts is board chairman.

Those selected as vice chairmen were Irvin Bettman, August A. Busch Jr., L. Ray Carter, L. Wade Childress, Frank K. Harris, William L. Igoe, Gale F. Johnston, John G. Lonsdale, Sidney Maestre, T. O. Moloney, Aaron S. Rauh, Boyle O. Rodes, Ethan A. H. Shepley, George W. Strodtman, Tom K. Smith, Harry B. Wallace, Walter B. Weisenburger, and David Wohl.

Also at the meeting will be Leo C. Fuller, Stratford Lee Morton and John E. Riley, named by the Mayor's Committee of 600 to assist Watts in setting up the campaign organization. They represent respectively, the Jewish Federation, the Community Fund, and Catholic Charities.

82 Charities in Appeal.

Eighty-two charities drawn from these three groups, will participate in the joint appeal for public contributions to be made early in December. A goal has not been fixed but $3,900,000 has been discussed

In his letter to the vice-chairmen informing them of their selection Watts reminded them that he had been drafted, without his knowledge or consent to become chairman. "I, in turn," he wrote, "am taking the liberty of drafting other citizens in the necessary undertaking of raising relief funds in St. Louis and St. Louis County. I believe you will agree with me that this is a time when no citizen can refuse to heed the call."

Workers in another phase of the relief program, the $4,600,000 bond issue which voters will be asked to approve Nov. 8, will be active today. The get-out-the-vote committee has asked 1500 to attend a meeting to be held at 2:30 p. m. at St. Francis de Sales Hall, Iowa avenue and Lynch street.

This meeting was called by Frank K. Harris and other groups will meet in various parts of the city throughout the week to receive final instructions and assignments to precincts. Today's meeting is for workers in Wards 8 to 15, inclusive. Speakers will be Harry B. Wallace, chairman of the Committee of 600; Isaac L. Hedges and Mrs. Louis J. Brooks, chairman and vice-chairman of the get-out-the-vote committee; Jules Field campaign director; and the Rev. John J. Butler, president of the Catholic Charities.

Speakers to Start Tomorrow.

Bond issue workers are being recruited throughout the city from civic and religious organizations, among them the Board of Religious Organizations, League of Women Voters, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Lutheran Mission and Social Service Center, Holy Cross Corporation, Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, Urban League and Holy Name Society.

Tomorrow night 150 speakers will begin a series of brief talks in moving picture theaters, and speaking programs will continue until election day over the radio, at political meetings, and in commercial and industrial plants. All the talks emphasize that the bonds, if authorized, will be retired out of Municipal Bridge tolls, and will require no increase in general taxes.

Resolutions indorsing the bond issue proposal have been adopted by several organizations, including the Business Men's Association of South St. Louis, the Democratic Veterans' League and the directors of St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

BOOKMAKER ROBBED OF $290 NEAR HOME

Two Armed Men Also Take $300 Diamond Ring From Charles Diebel.

Charles Deibel, proprietor of a downtown handbook shop, was held up last night in front of his home, 1719 Simpson place, and robbed of $290 and a diamond ring he valued at $300,

Deibel had just left the house, shortly before 8 o'clock, when two armed men approached and demanded his money. One of them noticed the ring on his finger and he was ordered to hand it over. The robbers ran north.

Henry Katz, clerk in a handbook shop in the rear of 5304 Natural Bridge avenue and several customers were held up about 5:30 o'clock by two armed men who took $80 from a desk drawer. The customers were not molested.

The robbers ran out a back door and fled in an automobile parked in the alley in which a companion awaited them. A witness gave police the license number and orders were issued for the arrest of a man known to police.

Duck Hunter Accidentally Killed.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Nichols Marasovich, 40 years old, was killed today while duck hunting on Lake Calumet in Cook County. A companion said Marisovich's shotgun accidentally discharged as he raised it to fire.

CULBERTSON'S TEAM LOSES IN CUP PLAY

Prospect Is That Burnstine Group Will Meet Sims' Quartet in Final.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Ely Culbertson's top-seeded contract team was eliminated from the fifth annual Vanderbilt cup tournament in the semifinals tonight. It lost by the margin of an even 1500 points to the foursome comprising David Burnstine, Howard Schenken, Richard Frey and Charles Lochridge. Culbertson's teammates were Oswald Jacoby, Theodore A. Lightner and Michael T. Gottlieb.

In the lower bracket P. Hal Sims' forces led their opponents, but Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Harold S. Vanderbilt, the East-West half, still had several more boards to play at midnight.

The prospect for the final to be played Monday or Tuesday was, however, for the Burnstine team to meet Sims' quartet. Burnstine was a member of Sims' team last year which went under the name of "The Four Horsemen."

The tension of the players was heightened today. Culbertson upbraided a waiter for serving glasses of ice water while he was playing a hand, and later had spectators ejected from a balcony above his table because, he said, they "make me nervous."

His partner, Oswald Jacoby, joined him in his requests, but their opponents, David Burnstine and Howard Schenken, laughed.

MAN KILLED, WIFE AND SON, 3, INJURED IN CRASH OF TRUCK

Ed Lewis, Negro, Loses Life When Machine Leaves Lemay Ferry Road, Hits Pole.

Ed Lewis, 34-year-old Negro laborer, was killed at 9 o'clock last night when the truck which he was driving south on Lemay Ferry road went off the highway at Green Park road, near Point Breeze, and crashed against a telegraph pole.

His wife, Margaret, 18, who was riding in the cab with Lewis and their 3-year-old son, suffered compound fractures of both legs. The son, Jean, suffered internal injuries, physicians at St. Louis County Hospital said. Four Negroes on the back of the truck were not hurt.

Full Rations for Chicago Needy.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Joseph L. Moss, director of the Cook County Bureau of Public Welfare, today announced that the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission had alloted $3,798,694 for relief work in Cook County in November. The amount, he said, was an increase of $698,535 over the amount allotted in October and would permit resumption of issuance of full rations to the county's unemployed.

SON, 18, KILLS FATHER THEN WOUNDS SELF

Springfield (Mo.) Youth Attempts Life When Mother Discovers Murder.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 29.—Haunted by fear of police after he had murdered his father yesterday and hidden the body in the cellar under their home, Harold Griffith, 18 years old, shot and wounded himself probably fatally today.

The youth shot himself after his mother discovered the father's body and announced her intention of calling the police. Police who answered an anonymous call to the home found Harold in bed. A single bullet from the same gun which killed his father had penetrated his chest and touched his spinal column.

The mistreatment of his mother by his father, goaded him to murder, he said.

Frank Griffith, 42 years old, the father, was a poverty-stricken huckster. His wife had worked as a housekeeper to help support their family of six children, the youngest 14 months old.

RECEIVERSHIP SUIT CAUSED BY ERROR VOLUNTARILY DISMISSED

Secretary of C. V. Mosby Co. Mistaken in Expected Events, Says Attorney.

A suit filed recently, asking for appointment of a receiver for the C. V. Mosby Co., 3523 Pine street, a medical journal publishing concern, was voluntarily dismissed yesterday before Circuit Judge Ryan by the plaintiff, Paul Knabe, secretary of the company.

In his petition Knabe objected to certain acts of Dr. C. V. Mosby, president.

William Kohn, attorney for the corporation, said the suit was filed under a mistaken belief that certain events were to happen. There was no necessity for a receiver, since the firm's business is sound, the attorney said.

Depression Chief Issue in Campaign

Campaign of Fear.

Thus the Republicans have sought to offset the appeal of Roosevelt's promised "new deal" with a campaign of fear, and no doubt that campaign is having some effect. Its weakness consists in the fact that it has to be addressed to millions whose fears of personal economic disaster have already been realized and who by now, if signs mean anything, have become convinced that any change would be a change for the better.

Though the campaign in its later stages, with the candidates lambasting each other in the way that audiences like, has not been uninteresting, it has lacked the fire and color supplied in 1928 by Al Smith and by such redoubtable pro-Hoover orators as Senator Borah and Charles E. Hughes. Borah, undoubtedly the most effective campaigner for Hoover four years ago, muffled himself this year because of his various disagreements with Hoover, notably on prohibition, and Hughes was silenced by the fact of his Supreme Court membership.

The depression, or hard times, is the paramount issue. Everything else, even prohibition, is outranked by that, and it is doubtful whether anything the candidates have said on the subordinate issues (or on the depression itself, for that matter) will materially influence the result.

Possible Results of Speeches.

If Roosevelt's chances have been bettered by his speaking trips (which is doubtful), that is mainly because they have shown his physical capacity to discharge the duties of the presidency. If Hoover's chances have been improved by his speeches, that is because of the contribution they have made to the fear campaign of the Republican managers, because of the stimulus they have given to Republican workers in doubtful states, and because they have exhibited the President in the "fighting" mood that is generally applauded in Presidents.

If there is any clean-cut, precise and definite issue between the two candidates, that issue is prohibition. Roosevelt stands on the outright repeal plank of the Democratic platform. He is also, like the platform, for immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer. He has taken his prohibition stand without evasion or quibbling.

The Republican plank says the people should be given the opportunity to vote on a new amendment permitting the states to establish liquor-selling systems, but retaining in the Constitution safeguards against the seepage of liquor into the dry states and against the return of the saloon anywhere. Hoover goes a step farther than his platform. He says not only that the new amendment should be submitted but that it should be adopted. He says that "in order to remedy present evils a change is necessary."

The basic difference between Roosevelt and Hoover on prohibition is that Roosevelt would take police control over liquor completely out of the Constitution, while Hoover would retain a measure of this control in the Constitution. There is here a genuine difference which goes to the very heart of the liquor controversy, and in some parts of the country, as St. Louis, it is an issue with real bearing upon the campaign.

Hoover Silent on Beer.

The collateral issue of beer also separates the two candidates. Roosevelt is for beer, immediately, and in arguing for it he has stressed, wisely, the revenues that might be gained by taxing it. The argument derives special appeal at this time from the fact that the next session of Congress, confronted with the prospect of a billion dollar deficit in the current fiscal year, will almost certainly have to address itself to the problem of getting new revenue.

Hoover in his campaign speeches has said nothing about beer.

If Hoover played to the wets when he went out a little beyond his platform, he seemed to bid for the dry vote with his letter to Dr. Daniel A. Poling of the Allied Dry Forces, saying that he and they were "on common ground." It is also to be noted that the Republican candidate for the vice presidency is campaigning as an out, right dry, opposed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Hoover's wet and dry stand, as his opponents have called it, and Curtis' unqualifiedly dry stand have laid the Republicans open to the charge of playing both ends against the middle. Republican wets stumping for Hoover have sought to rationalize their position by asserting that the Republican scheme of modifying rather than killing the eighteenth amendment is more likely to win the ratification of the required number of states than the Democratic proposal.

Wet Issue Not Played Up.

So much for prohibition. Neither candidate to date has played it up. The Republicans have not cared to call attention to the split on the prohibition issue in their own ranks, even between the head and the tail of the National ticket, and the Democrats have been careful to avoid giving unnecessary offense to the drys.

Roosevelt was backed for the presidential nomination, and won it, on the theory that his wetness would give the party the doubtful Eastern states that he needed, while his reputation as a progressive would swing large areas of the Middle West and West. The strategy that this indicates has not been departed from, though it has come to be but one phase of a larger strategy requiring the candidate to take full advantage of the depression and avoid stubbing his toe on contentious issues.

The Democrats are confident, in other words, that Roosevelt can and will "coast home" to victory by avoiding tactical blunders. He has made no such blunder, of any consequence, up to date. In the ranks of working Democratic politicians there is almost universal praise for his adroitness as a campaigner, and among Republicans the wry admission that the praise is well-deserved.

Roosevelt and the Bonus.

In his adroitness, Roosevelt has dealt with the soldier bonus issue in a way that probably saves for him the vote antagonized by Hoover, and yet permits it to be said that he is against "raids on the Treasury", Quoting from views he expressed in an interview last April, before he was nominated, he says he does not see how a government in the red "can consider the anticipation of bonus payments until it has a balanced budget, not only on paper, but with a surplus of cash in the Treasury."

This statement, as has been pointed out, permits the inference that he is not against prepayment of the bonus on principle and would, indeed, support prepayment under certain conditions. He has clearly left the door of hope open to the bonus advocates. His statement has been warmly attacked by Republican spokesmen as an evasion of the issue. Hoover has reiterated his unequivocal opposition to the cash bonus demand.

Hoover Stresses Tariff.

Hoover has ardently defended the high tariff. He has suggested, in fact, that some of its rates probably ought to be made higher as an offset to depreciated currencies and lowered living standards abroad. There seems to have been a steady progression toward high and higher protective rates in the President's tariff thinking.

Roosevelt has denounced the Hawley-Smoot bill in conventional Democratic terms and taken his stand on the Democratic plank for "a competitive tariff for revenue" and "reciprocal tariff agreements with other nations." There has been no definition, in terms of specific rates on specific commodities, of "a competitive tariff for revenue." Roosevelt has disavowed any intention to reduce farm tariffs. He has said that "no tariff duty should be lowered to a point where our natural industries would be injured. "He has promised to try to restore the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar "by making the tariff effective for agriculture."

At Wheeling, W. Va., Roosevelt, commenting on industrial rates, made a declaration which might have come from President Hoover himself: "But I have not advocated, and I will never advocate, a tariff policy which will withdraw protection from American workers against those countries which employ cheap labor, or who operate under a standard of living which is lower than that of our own great laboring groups."

Promises to the Farmers.

As to the farm problem, Roosevelt has outlined certain principles to be observed, such as making the tariff effective on farm products and has said that, if elected, he will call together an outstanding group of farm leaders and in collaboration with them produce a concrete program of farm relief. Stress has been laid on the Democratic contention that Roosevelt's approach to the farm problem is more "sympathetic" than Hoover's. This, of course, is denied by the President, who calls attention to his early life among farm people in Iowa. Both candidates have promised to do what they can to ease the burden of farm mortgages. Hoover has expressed approval of the workings of the co-operative sections of the farm marketing act, but has said he will seek repeal of the stabilization provisions under which the Farm Board sought to control prices through market operations in wheat and cotton.

Notwithstanding the many words of the two candidates on the farm question, it offers no clean cut issue between them. Republican farmers who have left the Hoover standard have done so to punish the administration for what they see as its failure to redeem pledges given in 1928. Ruinous crop prices are the reason for the heavy Democratic gains shown by straw votes in such normally Republican states as Iowa. The drift to the Democratic ticket in these sections, as elsewhere throughout the country, is primarily an anti-Hoover rather than a pro-Roosevelt movement.

Both Against Cancellation.

On the important matter of the foreign debts there has been little enlightenment for the voter in anything said by either candidate, Both announce themselves against cancellation. In his bid for the farm vote at Des Moines, Hoover promised to use "any annual payment" on the debts toward the expansion of the foreign market for American farm products. He did not give specifications. Roosevelt has dismissed the debt question with the statement that the debts could be paid out of the profits of foreign countries from the international trade revival that the Democrats would bring about.

Both candidates, for the benefit of the silver states, have promised to do what they can for the rehabilitation of silver. Roosevelt, with his pledge to initiate an international silver conference, goes a trifle beyond his opponent in this direction.

Both candidates, of course, favor rigid economies in governmental expenditures, and both are vague as to how they can be achieved. Neither is for any appreciable cuts in army and navy appropriations.

Sign Posts to Prosperity.

The list of issues, real or synthetic, might be extended, but enough have been outlined to show the nature of the campaign. Overtopping all the issues, so-called, is the depression. Hoover asks to be returned to power on the ground that his measures are overcoming the depression and will continue to do so if allowed to stay in operation under Republican rule. He says the election of a Democratic President would impede recovery. Ogden Mills, his chief campaigner, says it would be "the road to ruin."

Roosevelt asks to be given power on the ground that the Hoover administration has been guilty of delay, deceit, destruction and despair in its handling of the depression. He says that measures of the Republican administration, like the tariff, have deepened and prolonged the depression. He promises to aid the "forgotten man." His slogan is "a new deal" for the American people.

Neglected Topics.

There has been scant discussion of what many thinkers believe to be the root cause of our economic troubles—the present day distribution of the profits of industry—nor has much attention been paid to the growing problem of "technological" unemployment. Hoover has adverted to this problem and said it must be met, but he has not told us how.

Among the forgotten issues is the sales tax. A great issue in the last session of Congress, it gave promise of projecting itself into the presidential campaign in a way that would illuminate rival theories of government. The sales tax is certain to be a contentious subject in Congress in the months just ahead, but in this campaign it is not in the picture.

It is to be assumed that Hoover is still for the tax as a means of balancing the budget—for the budget, all the ballyhoo of the last session of Congress to the contrary notwithstanding, was not then and is not now balanced, and the job will have to be tackled all over again.

Roosevelt has not declared himself on the sales tax. One of his principal journalistic supporters, William Randolph Hearst, is an outstanding champion of the sales tax.

The dominant issue, to repeat, is the depression. It may also be named hard times or unemployment—they all mean the same thing. With the possible exception of prohibition, none of the other issues, so-called, amounts to much.

WOMAN FOUND INJURED NEAR LOS ANGELES, DIES

Police Think She Was Killed; Sailor's Purse and Photograph Are Only Clews.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 29.—An unidentified woman about 25 years old, brown-haired and blue-eyed, died at a police hospital today 40 minutes after she was found unconscious from a fracture of the skull at a lonely spot in the Elysian Park Hills.

Her neck was broken as if by a fall or by having been thrown from an automobile.

Strapped on her right leg was what police said was a sailor's purse which bore a name they though was "Robert X. Diedrick." In a larger purse beside the girl was a photograph of a young man. On the back was written "Bud Forsyth, Sitka, Alaska."

Police said they thought one or more men drove the girl to the scene and that she was killed after a quarrel. Two empty wine tonic bottles were found near the body.

FIRES SHOT AT BANK CASHIER IN BUSINESS CONFERENCE

Kansas Livestock Buyer, Held, Is Said to Have Suffered Financial Reverses.

By the Associated Press.

NORTON, Kan., Oct. 29.—C. P. Page, livestock buyer, is held here for attempting to shoot C. W. Smiley, cashier of the First National Bank here today at a business conference with Smiley and Charles W. Campbell, president of the bank.

Campbell was quoted by officers as saying Page, who had drawn a revolver during an altercation, fired one shot after the bank president had grasped his arms. The shot, Campbell said, narrowly missed Smiley. Campbell attributed Page's action to financial reverses. Page was one of the largest operators in Western Kansas.

20-YEAR PENALTY FOR PRISON GUARD IN CONVICT KILLING

Florida Court Gives Extreme Penalty for Manslaughter Despite Plea of Defendant for Mercy.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 29.—Twenty years at hard labor—the limit of the law for manslaughter—was the court's answer today as George W. Courson, former prison guard, pleaded for mercy in the death of Arthur Maillefert, strangled to death in a sweat box last June.

Judge George Couper Gibbs denied Courson a new trial. Bond was fixed at $10,000 pending an appear for which 90 days was allowed.

"Your act was so culpable, so negligent, and with such disregard for the life of the deceased," Judge Gibbs told the prisoner, "that while it is with deep regret and sorrow I must now pass sentence, it is now my duty to remand you to the Sheriff of Duval County to be turned over to the proper authority at the State penitentiary, to serve the full term in this cause—20 years at hard labor.

Courson, a huge figure of 285 pounds, stood apparently unmoved as the sentence was pronounced. As he sat down with his attorneys while the amount of appeal bond was argued, one of his sons came over to pat him on the shoulder.

Courson and Solomon Higginbotham, another guard, were indicted for first degree murder. The State demanded the death penalty for both, but the jury acquitted Higginbotham and found Courson, acting captain of Sunbeam camp at the time of the Westfield, N. J., youth's death, guilty only of manslaughter.

Asked whether he had anything to say before sentence was passed, Courson said to the Court:

"Only this, your honor, that you will give me mercy and be as lenient as possible."

Young Maillefert was found dead in the little wooden sweat box June 3, his neck chained to a rafter and his feet in stocks. The State introduced testimony that both defendants had threatened the youth, and that he had been beaten and ill treated, stressing a story that Maillefert was weak from exertion in an attempt to escape and from starvation when he was chained in the box.

LOUIS MAULL CO., GROCERY FIRM, SUED FOR RECEIVER

Stockholder Alleges Creditors Are Pressing Claims; President Says Firm Is Making Profit.

Suit for a receiver for the Louis Maull Co., 215-19 North Market street, a wholesale grocery firm, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Irene Baldus, a stockholder.

The company was organized in 1897 and has 14,000 shares of preferred stock and 28,000 of common outstanding, of which plaintiff owns 175 of preferred, her petition sets forth.

It is alleged that certain creditors are pressing the company, whose indebtedness is $82,000. The assets are placed at a book value of $215,000 in addition to various "salting stations" throughout Missouri which are used for the curing and pickling of condiments.

According to the petition the salaries of some of the officers are excessive, which prevents payment of dividends on preferred stock. For many years, it is set forth, the concern's annual gross sales averaged in excess of $300,000, and the company is still solvent. Mrs. Baldus complains that officers are indebted to it in the total sum of $17,698, which they borrowed in 1923.

Louis Maull, president, said there was no basis for the suit, as the firm is going ahead, considering general business conditions, and is making a profit. The suit, he added, will be resisted.

YOUNG MEN DIRECT DRIVE TO GET OUT RECORD VOTE

Members of the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce are seeking to bring out a larger number of voters in November's election than the 339,272 who cast ballots in St. Louis in the presidential election four years ago.

Billboards, car cards, radio and other avenues of publicity are being used to urge citizens to vote. The campaign is part of a national movement sponsored by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce to have 50,000,000 persons vote in the coming election.

8-CENT OPERA IN GERMANY

Good Productions Offered at "Rock Bottom" Prices.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—German theater goers are experiencing a season of good productions at "rock bottom" prices.

The palm of cheap seats goes to the Theater of the West near the Berlin zoo, where Lehar's opera "Paganini" opened the season with seats ranging from eight to 36 cents. At these prices the Berlin house underbids the Schiller Theater in Hamburg. Opera can be heard there for from 17 to 80 cents.

STATEWIDE CAMPAIGN FOR OLD-AGE PENSIONS

40 Towns Visited Last Week—Plan Called Less Costly Than Poorhouses.

A Statewide campaign in support of Amendment No. 1, the proposal for making possible an old-age pension system, is being conducted from the St. Louis headquarters of the Missouri Committee for Old Age Security, with offices in 1578 Arcade Building.

Oscar Leonard, in charge of the campaign, visited 40 Missouri cities and towns by automobile last week in the interest of the amendment proposal. He spoke with business men and newspaper editors in each place and presented the plan as one providing a modern substitute for the present practice of sending helpless old persons to poorhouses, which in interior Missouri are usually called "poor farms."

Leonard reports that the persons most familiar with the poorhouse situation, as it exists in many Missouri counties, are the most ready to support the amendment. "This happens to be one of the situations," he said, "where material interests and public welfare coincide. The fact that it costs less to provide for aged dependents by a State pension fund than by local institutions has a great appeal to taxpayers."

W. A. MOODY AGAIN CHOSEN HEAD OF LIVESTOCK EXCHANGE

J. W. Sanders Re-elected Vice-President at Forty-Seventh Annual Meeting.

W. A. Moody was re-elected president of the St. Louis Livestock Exchange at the forty-seventh annual meeting yesterday. He is a former president of the National Livestock Exchange.

J. W. Sanders was re-elected vice-president. Others chosen were: Directors—W. R. Huitt, L. W. Daniels, T. W. Finnigan; Committee of Arbitration—C. A. Carter, Lee Rogers, Fred Leiner; Committee of Appeals—J. R. Wooten, A. P. Hensley, L. H. Milton.

During the last three years firms affiliated with the St. Louis Livestock Exchange have sold more than $150,000,000 worth of livestock shipped by stockmen from 20 states.

THIRD RECEIVERSHIP SUIT AGAINST FRISCO

Action on Behalf of Bondholder Filed in Circuit Court—Other Actions Pending.

A suit asking for appointment of a receiver for the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. was filed in Circuit Court yesterday in behalf of Miss Rena G. Wolfsheimer of New York City, owner of $3000 of the company's bonds.

Two receivership suits against the Frisco are pending in Federal Court, one filed by stockholders and one filed by bondholders. The bondholders' suit was dismissed once by Judge Faris, but was reinstated by means of an amended petition.

The suit filed yesterday was assigned to Judge Nortoni, who issued an order returnable next Thursday for the Frisco to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

It is alleged in the petition that the proposed plan of reorganization of the Frisco's capital structure would violate the terms of the deed of trust securing the bond issue of which the bonds held by the plaintiff are a part. It is charged also that under the proposed plan interest on the bonds would be deferred for five years. As codefendants the petition names the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co. of New York, and Daniel K. Catlin of St. Louis, trustees under the deed of trust. The plaintiff is represented by the law firm of Foristel, Mudd, Blair and Habenicht, and Abraham K. Weber of New York.

The petition restates many of the allegations made in the suits pending in Federal Court. It is charged that unearned dividends were paid in 1930 and 1931 at the expense of upkeep of the property and that depreciation was allowed to accumulate in violation of the terms of the deed of trust, and that as a result a default occurred which should have been acted upon by the trustees.

The charge is repeated that large losses were incurred by speculation in the stock of the Rock Island and the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroads. It is alleged that earnings this year available for interest will not exceed $3,300,000, whereas fixed charges will amount to $13,700,000, resulting in a deficit of $10,400,000. It is asserted that as a result interest on bonds will be defaulted before the end of the year.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO HEAR PHILIPPINE LEADERS

President Pro Tem of Islands' Senate and Speaker of House to Address St. Louisans.

Sergio Osmena, president pro tem of the Philippine Senate, and Manuel Roxas, speaker of the Philippine House of Representatives, will discuss the Philippine situation at a members' assembly of the Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Statler at noon Wednesday.

United States Senator Hawes will make the introductory address. Both Osmena and Roxas have been in the Philippine Legislature for a number of years and have been members of missions to the United States. Osmena was formerly Governor of the province of Cebu and Roxas formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the islands.

SAYS IF HOOVER WINS WE'LL NEVER LIVE TO SEE REPEAL

Philadelphia Republican Quits Two Wet Organizations for Not Speaking Plainly.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Raymond Pitcairn of Philadelphia announced today through Democratic National headquarters that he was resigning as a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and as secretary of the United Repeal Council.

He said he was resigning as a result of what he said was failure of these organizations to speak out plainly on the issue of prohibition repeal.

Pitcairn, who formerly served as chairman of the Republican Citizens' Committee of Pennsylvania, charged that President Hoover and his "straddle supporters" have abused the neutrality of the anti-prohibition organizations by trying to make it appear there is no difference between the stand of the two parties.

"The election will be regarded as a referendum on the question of modification or repeal," Pitcairn said in announcing his action. "If Roosevelt wins it will be considered a repeal victory. If Hoover wins we shall have compromise. If Hoover wins we shall never live to see repeal."

LABOR HAS PLAN TO LEGALIZE BEER IN ALL OF STATES

Matthew Woll Announces Campaign for Change in Laws to Permit Sale Immediately.

TO BE READY WHEN CONGRESS VOTES

Missouri Supreme Court Ruling on Accepting Definition of Intoxicating Liquor Clouds Issue.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Matthew Woll, chairman of Labor's National Committee for Modification of the Volstead Act, today announced a campaign to change prohibitory state laws to permit the sale of beer immediately, if and when Congress modifies the Volstead law.

Woll's organization operates under instructions of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

"We are so confident of the impending success of our campaign (for modification)," said Woll, "that we have set in motion a plan to meet the situation in states.

"We are consulting with attorneys and with friendly and co-operating organizations for the purpose of immediately offering to our members in the various states drafts of proposed legislation to meet each case. This proposed legislation will have the support of every organization working for modification of the Volstead act."

Analysis of 48 States.

Pending draft of such bills, Woll distributed to all members of his committee an analysis of the legal situation in regard to beer in each state. During the coming week a report analyzing the situation expected to obtain in the coming short session of the old Congress and in the first session of the new, will be issued.

The situation of the 48 states in regard to prohibition was analyzed by Woll as follows:

Six, Maryland, New York, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada, have no restriction on liquor production and could take immediate advantage of any Volstead law change.

Seven others: Connecticut, Louisiana, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Minnesota and California, already provides by law for accepting the definition of intoxicating beverage which may be adopted by Congress. The Supreme Court of Missouri held this provision would constitute unwarranted delegation of legislative power to Congress, so, Woll said, from the legal standpoint there is some doubt about the matter. Otherwise, he said the states "already have their houses in order for the beer modification of the Volstead act."

State Repeal Referendum.

He said referenda on repeal of state enforcement acts will be held in November in California, New Jersey, Oregon, Washington, Louisiana and Michigan. Illinois in the past voted by referendum to repeal its dry law, but the ensuing repeal action by the Legislature was vetoed by the Governor. He listed 18 states, as having Constitutional prohibition: Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming. Of these Wyoming will have a November referendum on repeal of the eighteenth amendment, while Arizona, Colorado, Michigan, North Dakota, Ohio and Oregon, Woll said, have moves under way either for repeal of the eighteenth amendment or for change in their own state constitutional provisions.

Seventeen states, he said, are dry by statute, permitting change by action of their Legislatures: Alabama, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia and Washington. Of these, however, Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi and Virginia have no session of the Legislature next year.

MRS. MARY STUART FUNERAL SERVICES HERE TOMORROW

Estranged Wife of Aviation Man Killed Oct. 18 in California Auto Accident.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Stuart, 4066 Lindell boulevard, who was killed Oct. 18 in an automobile accident near Victorville, Cal., will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Shepard funeral establishment, 1167 Hamilton avenue. Burial will take place in Lebanon Cemetery.

Mrs. Stuart was the wife of Ainsley A. Stuart, former president of the Stuart Aero Products Co., from whom she was separated. Mrs. Forest O'Brine, wife of the endurance flyer, was injured in the same accident.

Mrs. O'Brine, who has been separated from her husband since last June, and Mrs. Stuart were on the way from St. Louis to Long Beach, Cal., when their coupe hit a truck at night. She is suffering from head and internal injuries.

EMPLOYMENT GAIN REPORTED HERE BY SHARE-WORK PLAN

The "share-the-work" campaign conducted here by the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Club, has resulted in the employment of many St. Louisans, it was announced last night by the chamber, after reports had been received from 45 of the 65 chairmen of committees canvassing local employers.

The "share-the-work" campaign advocates retention of present employes on fewer hours when decreased production is demanded; addition of other workers wherever possible by shortening the work periods of those already employed and receiving what the employers consider substantial wages; and when increased production is warranted, employment of additional workers rather than increasing the working periods of those already employed.

Reports 4700 More Employed.

Reporting for the public utilities, Albert T. Perkins, president of the People's Motorbus Co., said 4700 employes had been added to the payrolls of six utilities operating within the city. Of this number, more than 4000 were employed by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in its territory.

George Peckham, general manager of the National Candy Co. chairman of the candy committee reported five firms that are at present employing a total of 990 persons, 53 more than had been employed in normal times. One firm he said, expects to increase its force 33 1-3 per cent by further adoption of the "share-the-work" plan

The meat packing industry, said John H. Heil, president, St. Louis Independent Packing Co., is employing all the skilled and semiskilled workers it can. Heil said the industry formerly worked maximum hours with the minimum number of workers, but now has reversed itself, working 40 hours a week and employing more men than were on the payrolls in 1928 and 1929.

Men's furnishing business reported 2434 workers at present as compared with 2548 in 1929. Of 11 firms reporting, six had adopted the work-sharing plan, and the others announced they would do so.

Retail Stores Join Movement.

Seven hundred persons more than would ordinarily be necessary are being employed at the larger retail stores under the work-sharing plans, it was announced.

In the retail automobile wield, 10 firms are employing as many persons as they did in 1929, while the others have reduced forces so that 1000 are employed here now instead of the normal 1200.

The non-ferrous metals industry is employing about 17 per cent fewer workers now than in normal times. William R. Heckmann, president of the National Art Bronze Co., said a job-sharing arrangement was being worked out.

In foundries and machine shops 2825 are employed as compared with 5528 in normal times. The work week, according to Edwin B. Meisner, president of the St. Louis Car Co., ranges from 16 to 34 hours.

The city's 38 hospitals, it was reported, showed a decrease of 142, with normal employment at 3335.

VIVIAN DUNCAN SUES FOR DIVORCE FROM NILS ASTHER

Actor Not Expected to Contest Action—Mother Asks for Custody of Daughter.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—Charging that Nils Asther, Swedish movie actor, was morose and cruel, often left her alone for days and permitted his mother to live with them and treat her unfairly, Vivian Duncan Asther, blond member of the Duncan Sisters vaudeville team, filed suit for divorce today.

Because of a property settlement which the actress' attorneys said had been made out of court, it was indicated Asther will not contest the suit, they said.

Miss Duncan asked for custody of her daughter, Evelyne Rosetta Asther, 14 months old, born in Germany. The father is a Swedish citizen, the mother American, and this situation caused difficulty in getting passports for the child's entry into the United States.

The divorce complaint said that when Miss Duncan returned from Europe with the child, she found Asther's mother occupying her rooms. Despite his protestations that his mother would remain with them only a short time, she stayed a year, Miss Duncan said.

The marriage was in Reno, Nev., Aug. 1, 1930, and the separation took place May 10.

SIX SHOT IN KENTUCKY FIGHT AT COURTHOUSE

Hundreds Scatter as Feud Flares Up at Pineville—Three Bystanders Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

PINEVILLE, Ky., Oct. 29.—Two Kentucky mountain families shot out their differences in front of the court-house here today and sent several hundred persons scurrying for shelter in a fight in which six persons, three of them bystanders were wounded. Three of the alleged participants were arrested and a fourth was taken to a hospital after city and county officers stopped the fight.

Ill feeling between the Lee and McGeorge families, distant relatives, over a recent killing was said by authorities to have caused the clash. Stephen Lee, 58 years old and his son, George, 17, were said by officers to have been on one side, with Elijah McGeorge, 40, and his brother, Martin McGeorge, 21 their opponents. Elijah McGeorge was out on bond on a charge of killing Jim Lee, a son of Stephen Lee, two months ago in a quarrel over McGeorge's wife.

15 to 20 Shots Fired.

Fifteen to 20 shots from pistols and rifles were fired across a 30-foot wide street during the brief encounter.

The Lee and McGeorge families who live in the mountains about 10 miles from here, came to town today with the usual crowds always on hand for Saturday trading and Circuit Court sessions.

The father carrying a long rifle the Lees neared the court-house witnesses said, when the elder Lee opened fire on the McGeorge brothers. The McGeorges ducked behind automobiles, returned the fire, and then fled, firing as they ran. A fifth man, not apprehended, was reported to have entered the fray after the first shots were exchanged.

Shots Scatter Hundreds.

Several hundred people near the court-house at the time fled into stores, behind trees and automobiles, or lay flat on the pavement as bullets whizzed by and smashed against the court-house, parked automobiles and business houses.

Deputy Sheriff Jim Tom Wagner disarmed Stephen Lee, and Police Chief Pearl Osborne ran down the McGeorges. Stephen Lee and the McGeorge brothers were arrested, and George Lee was taken to a hospital.

The wounded are Stephen Lee shot in the left arm; George Lee shot in the right breast and wounded seriously; Elijah McGeorge, shot in right hand; Cogar M. Brooks 33, shot in left thigh; Ed Browning 43, shot in left thigh and wounded seriously, and Charles Simpson whose upper lip was slightly grazed by a bullet. The latter three were bystanders.

David Lee, a brother of the wounded man, was taken into custody this afternoon when he came to Pineville and was placed in jail for safekeeping pending arrangements to post peace bond.

JAILED FOR STEALING BREAD

Girl Went to Chicago From Duluth to Get Work.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Dorothy Post, 20 years old, of Duluth, Minn., was in a cell in the Oak Park jail today, disillusioned, penniless and friendless. She was arrested for the theft of seven loaves of bread.

In addition, she learned that Philip Johnson, 26, with whom she had lived in poverty for four months, was married and the father of two children. The girl came to Chicago recently looking for work.

ATTORNEY FOR CULVER ESTATE GETS $109,500

G. O. Durham's Latest Fee $25,000; Stove Man's Widow Left $650,000.

A fee of $25,000 for George O. Durham, an attorney, for legal services to the estate of Mrs. Mary E. Culver, widow of Louis L. Culver, wealthy stove manufacturer, was allowed by Probate Judge Holtcamp yesterday. The award makes a total of $109,500 which Durham has received in the case. Previously he had been paid $84,500 by the executor, D. P. McCabe.

The present value of the estate is estimated a $650,000, which relatives named as principal beneficiaries under the will of Mrs. Culver, who died in 1925. As attorney for the executor Durham set forth that he gave constant service to the estate for more than four years, during which he settled eight threatened lawsuits and obtained a favorable verdict in a suit brought by two heirs in Federal Court. He aided the executor, he said, in investing and reinvesting $697,000, and during the period of administration the estate has produced an income in excess of $209,000.

Present attorneys for the heirs resisted Durham's claim, in which he asked an additional fee of $50,000. Three attorneys at the trial last July testified that the fee he suggested was reasonable. Other attorneys testified for the estate that $90,000 to $100,000 as complete compensation would be adequate.

In 1930 the late William F. Woerner was allowed a fee of $35,000 for legal services in assisting the executor and the executor's lawyer.

PRAISES BAR TICKET FOR JUDICIAL POSTS

August L. Abbott, President of Safety Council, Addresses Group's Executive Committee.

Augustus L. Abbott, attorney, president of the St. Louis Safety Council, spoke to the Executive Committee of the Safety Council, at luncheon at the Mayfair Hotel Friday, in support of the Bar Association's indorsed ticket for judicial offices. The candidates indorsed by the Bar Association are: Circuit Judges, full terms, William H. Killoren, Republican; Henry A. Rosskopf, Republican, and Charles B. Williams, Democrat. Circuit Judge, short term, James G. Blaine, Republican. Judge Court of Criminal Correction, George C. Foster, Republican. Circuit Attorney, Franklin Miller, Democrat.

"The primary system has worked very badly as to selection of Judges," Abbott said. "A man now hesitates to file as a candidate for Judge. Many men do not like to say they want the position. They do not like to submit themselves to such a contest as ensues when any lawyer asks that his name be placed upon a primary ballot for the nomination for Circuit Judge, and again there is a temptation on the part of many men who cannot hope to secure a nomination to file simply for the advertising which they will thus get.

"When the August primaries come, you are presented with a long list of lawyers, and you are compelled to make a selection in many cases without knowing much about them. Of course, brilliant lawyers will not always make good Judges. There is something about the position of a Judge which calls for unusual qualities. We speak of it as the judicial temperament.

"Most men in the past used to go to their attorneys and say, 'For whom shall I vote for Judge?' That was probably the initial thing in establishing the preferential vote by the Bar Association, for guidance of the public.

"In this way, we overcome the hesitancy of good men by requesting outstanding lawyers to file as candidates. Such a request resulted in the election of two men who are now on the bench, James F. Green and O'Neil Ryan, neither of whom would have sought the position voluntarily if they had not been requested by their associates."

BOOK GIFTS FOR PUERTO RICO

Surplus From St. Louis Schools to Go to Replace Those Lost in Storm

Surplus textbooks from the office of Superintendent Gerling of the Board of Education will be sent to eighth grade pupils of Ponce de Leon School, Humacao, Puerto Rico, in response to their request. They wrote him that the library of their room had been destroyed by the hurricane of Sept. 26. While their common tongue is Spanish, they are studying English.

The student who wrote to Gerling said: "We are all members of the Junior Red Cross of America and would like to correspond with the Juniors in your schools."

FOUR STOLEN RINGS ARE FOUND IN SEWER

Thrown There by Robber Who Was Caught as He Pawned Other Loot.

Four rings, part of the $1790 jewelry loot stolen 10 days ago from the home of Gilbert Candy, 6165 Kingsbury avenue, were recovered yesterday by Sewer Department employes and detectives who searched the muck from a sewer at Jefferson and Franklin avenues.

The better pieces of the loot, watches, rings, a pin and bracelet, had been found previously in pawnshops where Oliver E. Jenkins, Negro, who confessed the burglary, had sold them.

Arrested Friday as he was about to sell a Market street dealer a $300 pin for $5, Jenkins told of throwing five rings into the sewer. Under the direction of detectives, a sewer department employe went into the sewer and scooped up the muck in a bucket. It was brought to the surface and a curious crowd gathered as the officers went through it with a hose. The pieces found, all inexpensive, were three costume rings and a baby ring.

EARL SHELTON OUT ON BOND PENDING DRY CASE APPEAL

East St. Louis Gangster Sentenced in Georgia to Serve 18 Months and Pay $5000 Fine.

CONVICTED OF PART IN LIQUOR RUNNING

Lester Apgard, Jacksonville, Fla., Found Guilty With Him, Will Go to Penitentiary.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Oct. 29.—Earl Shelton, one of the notorious three brothers who rule the East St. Louis underworld, is at liberty on $10,000 appeal bond following his conviction in Federal Court here on charge of participation in a liquor smuggling plot.

With Lester Apgard of Jacksonville, Fla., he was found guilty last night of conspiracy to violate the prohibition and tariff laws, and transportation and possession of liquor. The jury deliberated less than half an hour. Shelton was sentenced to serve 18 months in Atlanta penitentiary and to pay a $5000 fine. Apgard's sentence was fixed at a year and a day and a fine of $1. He will not appeal, his lawyer announced.

Shelton and Apgard were charged with complicity in a conspiracy in which two boatloads of liquor, about 640 cases, were purchased in the Bahamas and landed at Shellbine landing on the South Georgia coast in June and in August of 1931.

Sheriff G. B. Smith of Camden County, convicted previously of participation in the conspiracy, is now under a two-year penitentiary sentence. It was charged in his and the Shelton-Apgard trials that the liquor runners paid him $1 a case plus $100 in landing fees to unload the liquor.

Fred M. Walton, chief Government witness against Shelton and Apgard, testified he was a party to the liquor plot and told how he and Apgard had made arrangements for its delivery with the Sheriff after purchasing it in the Bahamas.

After making the arrangements, he testified, he went to the Bahamas by airplane and the liquor was then carried in by Charlie Lewis, a Negro. Walton declared Apgard owned the first shipment. Shelton was charged with ownership of the second. Other Government witnesses told of unloading the contraband and hiding it near the landing.

For the defense R. L. Mims, a Federal convict serving three terms for liquor law violations, testified that the liquor was his, not Shelton's or Apgard's.

Shelton is the second of the Shelton brothers, prominent in Southern Illinois gang disorders. The eldest is Carl, the youngest Bernie.

FORMER FOOTBALL STAR FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

L. S. Geraghty, Once on St. Louis U. Team, Says He Is Unemployed and Can't Pay Debts.

Lawrence Slevin Geraghty, former football star at St. Louis University, filed a bankruptcy petition in Federal Court yesterday.

Geraghty relates that he is unemployed, is unable to pay his debts and is willing to surrender his assets for the benefit of creditors. The court allowed him 10 days in which to file a schedule of assets and liabilities.

Geraghty was one of the best centers ever developed on the local gridiron. After leaving school he was for a time connected with the Charles L. Geraghty Undertaking Co., 4259 Lindell boulevard, conducted by his father. He resides in Richmond Heights.

POLICE CHECK REGISTRATIONS

Canvass Lodging Houses to Learn if Voters Live There.

Police are conducting a routine canvass of the registration of voters residing in lodging houses, at the request of the Election Board. Most of the lodging houses are situated in the Central, Laclede, Carr and Dayton Police Districts. Policemen inquire whether voters are known and reside at the addresses given.

In three precincts in the vicinity of Jefferson avenue, south of Olive street, 44 instances have been found of persons who have moved away or are unknown at the addresses they gave.

9-CENT MILK IN PHILADELPHIA

Reduction Announced by Public Service Commission Head.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, announced today the retail price of ordinary milk in the Philadelphia area will be reduced one cent for both quart and pint bottles, making the price 9 cents a quart and 5 cents a pint. The reduction is effective Nov. 1.

Dr. King acted as arbitrator between the Interstate Milk Producers' Association of Dairymen and city milk dealers. Farmers will get $2.18 per hundredweight instead of $2.40.

FIGHTING ATTEMPT TO LEGALIZE RACE BETTING IN STATE

Citizens' Committee Calls on Voters to Back Candidates Who Oppose Laws Against Gambling.

TO SEND STATEMENT ALL OVER MISSOURI

Recalls Activities in 1925 and 1931 and Says Majority Is Against the "Nefarious Practice."

The committee in Opposition to Race Track Gambling in Missouri, which opposed efforts to legalize race betting in 1925 and 1931, is preparing to fight a renewed attempt at legalization in the Legislature next year.

It has issued a statement calling on "good citizens" to scrutinize the records of candidates for State offices carefully and to vote only for those who will oppose authorization of gambling and who will enforce existing laws against gambling. The committee, consisting of St. Louisans, will disseminate the statement in the State.

The committee descrribes itself as a "nonpartisan, nonpolitical organization, representing the constructive and moral forces of the State." It says its past activity has had general support, indicating that "the majority sentiment in Missouri is against re-establishment of the nefarious practice which was driven from the State years ago, after a strenuous effort on the part of friends of law and order."

"It has been announced," the statement continued, "that at the coming session of the Legislature a bill will be introduced and jammed through to legalize public gambling at horse races through the 'pari-mutuel' system, or by some other system. Many years ago our great commonwealth put itself on the side of morality in the matter of public gambling by the so-called 'Johnson act,' since which time public gambling in this State has been banned by law. Afterwards lotteries were practically abolished through laws passed by Congress.

"In 1925 the underworld and its allies attempted to put through the Legislature an act to legalize public gambling at horse races, but this was defeated by the constructive forces of this State. In 1931 a similar attempt was made to legalize public gambling at horse races by the so-called 'pari-mutuel' system, but this was also defeated, the sentiment of our people being so pronounced against the bill that it was lost in the House and never considered in the Senate.

"Right thinking people throughout the State strenuously object to another attempt to have the evils prevalent in some other states thrust upon then., and this committee will use every effort again to defeat such legislation."

Members of the committee are:

William H. Danforth, Oreon E. Scott, Lee W. Grant, the Rev. Dr. William Lampe, the Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, Frank L. Scott, Mrs. Richard Buffum, Mrs. Edward T. Smith, Mrs. L. C. Post, Mrs. James W. INDIAN ACQUITTED OF MURDER

Jury Out 40 Minutes in Case of Herbert Z. Ward.

By the Associated Press.

POTEAU, Ok., Oct. 29.—A District Court jury required only 40 minutes to return a verdict of acquittal for Herbert Z. Ward, wealthy Choctaw Indian, charged with murder in the slaying of J. C. Walters, Kansas City Southern special agent, March 11.

The defense contended Ward shot Walters in self-defense after the latter had thereatened him. The State charged Ward shot in cold blood. Ward, widely known in Oklahoma and Arkansas, owns a number of automobiles and airplanes.

LAST OF LOGAN'S MEN DIES

Carbondale Minister Was Veteran of Thirty-first Illinois.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Oct. 29.—Funeral services were held today for the Rev. M. C. Brooks, 89 years old, last remaining soldier to have been mustered out as a member of Gen. John A. Logan's famous Thirty-first Illinois volunteer regiment.

The Rev. Mr. Brooks was with Sherman in his march "from Atlanta to the Sea," the battle of Jonesborough and Gettysburg. He was in the grand review in Washington after the Civil War. He outlived two wives and at 87, married a third who survives him. He leaves 55 descendants.

GERMANY MAY GO TO GENEVA ARMS PARLEY AFTER ALL

Hopes Herriot's Proposal for Abolition of Standing Armies Means Equality for All.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Germany may consent to resume participation in the world disarmament conference at Geneva, Government officials said today, as a result of the new French proposal for abolition of mercenary and standing armies in favor of militia forces.

There would be one important provision, however, namely that the other Powers first agree that any agreements achieved shall apply equally to all signatories, including Germany.

These opinions, although expressed by authoritative persons, were entirely informal and unofficial. The Government itself is withholding comment until it has examined the complete text of the French plan as outlined to Parliament yesterday by Premier Herriot.

One spokesman said that the French proposal "seems to imply that all states should be treated equally in the matter of armaments and that what applies to one shall apply to all.

Must Acknowledge Equality.

"If that interpretation be correct, Premier Herriot certainly has opened the door for Germany's return to the Disarmament Conference.

"Nevertheless, to avoid misunderstandings, we must insist that this implied general equality be acknowledged by France as meaning specifically Germany's equality.

"Don't think we are stubborn. It is precisely because we welcome the general trend of Herriot's speech, and because we desire to avert failure of the disarmament negotiations that we want this point, so vital to us, cleared up before we agree to return to Geneva."

Others who commented were particularly pleased that the French appear to have abandoned the contention that the Versailles treaty cannot be modified under any circumstances.

"First Official Admission."

"Premier Herriott's demand for abolition of the Reichswehr," a Government spokesman said, "is the first official admission by France that the Treaty of Versailles no longer is to be regarded as sacrosanct, for abolition would mean setting aside part five of the treaty.

"What the Premier forgot to mention is that the Reichswehr is not a German creation but an invention forced upon us by the Allies. If the Reichswehr is a menace it was the Allies who, foisting it upon Germany, made it so."

It was agreed that the French proposal for international control of arms probably would be acceptable to the German Government providing all nations are equally controlled.

"An international police force might be supported by Germany," said one official, "provided its strength exceeds that of any single national army, and provided the plan has not the faults of Andre Tardieu's proposals, whereby the strong nations would become stronger and the weak nations weaker."

GOV. ROOSEVELT ASKED TO REPUDIATE SMITH SPEECH

Southern Church Editors Object to "Prejudicial Appeal" in Speech at Newark.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Anti-Saloon League tonight made public a telegram it said was sent by editors of four religious publications asking Gov. Roosevelt to repudiate what they called Alfred E. Smith's "prejudicial appeal" in Newark.

The message, dated Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 28, and the signers, follow:

"Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Albany, N. Y.:

"Alfred E. Smith's Newark address in your behalf attacked prominent Protestant leaders and organizations who support prohibition as bigots and mentioned by name the Methodists. This speech is a direct appeal to religious prejudice and a direct attack upon a great Protestant church. We therefore request an immediate repudiation of this prejudicial appeal.

U.S. EXPORTS TO IRELAND DROP

Argentina's Business in Free State Increases.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 29.—September figures released by the Free State Government today showed Argentina was selling more goods here while the United States was selling less during September.

Argentine exports to the Free State jumped in value to £193,593 (about $633,000), as compared with £130,063 in September, 1931. American exports into the Free State in September dropped £77,651 (about $245,000) from £139,785 in September, 1931. American purchases from the Free State slumped to £4815 (about $15,800) from £23,338 in September, 1931.

SOCIAL SERVICE CONFERENCE FOR NEGROES OPENS HERE

Officials of Urban League of Midwestern Cities Discuss Depression's Effect.

A conference of officials of the Urban Leagues of Midwestern cities on the economic and social problems of Negroes was opened at the St. Louis Urban League 2947 Morgan street, yesterday, and will close today. It was called because of the critical effect on Negroes of the depression. The Urban Leagues are social service agencies for Negroes.

Included on the program were these topics: How the various leagues relate themselves to relief work in their communities, methods of obtaining a larger share of public work for Negroes, and the "back to the farm" movement. T. Arnold Hill, secretary of the Industrial Department of the National Urban League, is in charge of the conference. He will speak over radio station WEW at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

MRS. SHOUSE GETS DIVORCE

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Oct. 29.—A divorce was granted Mrs. Marian Shouse from Jouett Shouse, former chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, in the Reno County District Court here today.

The petition, filed by Mrs. Shouse this morning, charged abandonment. The hearing was held this afternoon on agreement. Shouse was represented by Dudley Doolittle, Democratic National Committeeman for Kansas and law partner of Shouse. Shouse did not contest the suit.

TWO ACQUITTED, ONE CONVICTED BY JURIES

Man Sentenced to Three Months for Stabbing—Embezzler Pleads Guilty.

Three persons charged with felonies were tried by jury last week in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court. Two were acquitted and one was convicted.

Hosey Wells, 1218A Walton avenue, charged with assault to kill, was given three months imprisonment and a $100 fine for stabbing Joseph Peluso, 1315 Marcus avenue. Wells objected to Peluso's son paying attentions to his stepdaughter.

Raymond Dittmeyer, charged with burglary and larceny, was found not guilty, as was Leroy Bolden, Negro, charged with murder in the second degree for killing another Negro in a fight. Thelma Dawson, 22 years old, was acquitted of a charge of larceny.

Noah Lashly received a 10-year penitentiary sentence under the Henry law for robbery with a deadly weapon. He pleaded guilty. He participated in holdups of three stores on the South Side, which netted a total of $119. John E. Knierim, a Park Department clerk of 4506 Minnesota avenue, was given a two-year penitentiary term for embezzling $11,724.

Others who pleaded guilty and their punishments follow: Andrew Semko, burglary, four years; Jack Leer, burglary, four years; Leroy Smith, burglary, three years; Clyde McKinley, burglary and attempted robbery, five years, Algo Farms reformatory; Grover Smith, petit larceny, five months; Henry Mullen, contributing to delinquency of minor, six months; Luzenka Bush, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days; Herbert Green, petit larceny, 30 days; Tony Leone, larceny of motor vehicle, 60 days; Thomas Nichols, malicious destruction of property, 90 days; Harry Turner petit larceny, year; William Roussin, petit larceny, 30 days; Blanchard Bannister and Story Vashon, petit larceny, six months; James H Smith, assault to rob, year; Louis Ware, petit larceny, six months; Edward White, carrying concealed weapon, 50 days; Velvo Miller and James Norse, petit larceny, six months; William Renstorff, embezzlement of property of less than $30, four months; Henry Sippel, petit larceny, six months; Jewel Boswell, feloniously turning in false fire alarm, 30 days and paroled to report one year; Carl Asbell, felonious wounding, seven months; Ollie Leslie, larceny of motor vehicle, three months; William Flanigan, carrying a concealed weapon, six months; Eddie Lawson, carrying a concealed weapon, six months; Norman Ross, petit larceny, six months.

GRANDCHILDREN, LEFT $5 EACH, SEEK TO SET ASIDE WILL

Suit to set aside the will of Mrs. Ellen Baird, 1516 East Grand avenue, who died Oct. 4, was filed yesterday by Allen and Milton Baird, grandsons. They were each left $5 and their mother, Mrs. Louise Baird, also was bequeathed $5.

The will left the bulk of the estate to Mrs. Letitia M. Eichhorn, 4433 Grace avenue, a daughter, and Francis M. Baird, 1516 East Grand, a son. The latter received $3800 and the East Grand property in trust. Mrs. Eichhorn received title to realty at 3959 McRee avenue. She and Daniel Graef were named executors.

It is set forth that the will is not the desire of Mrs. Baird but was written under the domination of her daughter and son. Another allegation is that she was incapable of making a legal distribution of her property.

Ford Co. Builds Proving Track Here For Demonstrations

Thrills Provided as Performance, Stability and Safety Features Are Tested for Public.

The first special proving track for automobiles ever built by the Ford Motor Co. in St. Louis is in operation on the Wabash Railroad property on Boyle avenue between Duncan and Clayton avenues.

Hundreds of salesmen of the metropolitan St. Louis Ford dealers are taking prospective Ford owners every day to the track where road conditions encountered on the average motor trip are simulated. Everyone who rides the track agrees that they get a thrill participating in the various tests to which the new Ford V-8 is placed.

The test which attracts the most interest of riders, drivers and sightseers alike comes near the conclusion of the ride. The cars are run up an inclined platform which tips them at a sharp angle, such as they would assume if forced into a highway ditch.

Strenuous Tests.

Left wheels remain on the ground and the right wheels are elevated 18 inches, yet the efforts of two strong men fail to upset the cars. The inherent balance of the new Ford V-8 is tested in this manner. At the same time, with one front wheel on the 18-inch elevation, another test shows that the doors will open and close easily.

The other tests prove the smoothness and power of the Ford V-8 engine, the ease of shifting with silent synchronized transmission, the braking efficiency, the riding qualities and the safety found in the stability of the car under varied strains.

The track is built of crushed stone and is kept in condition by a steam roller. At the start of a ride on it, the unusual acceleration of the cars, due to their relatively low power-to-weight ratio, is demonstrated. Next they are driven over a railway crossing, where the rails are raised two inches above normal, and over a rough "washboard" road, to show the comfortable riding qualities resulting from the new transverse spring design and the automatically controlled, double-acting shock absorbers.

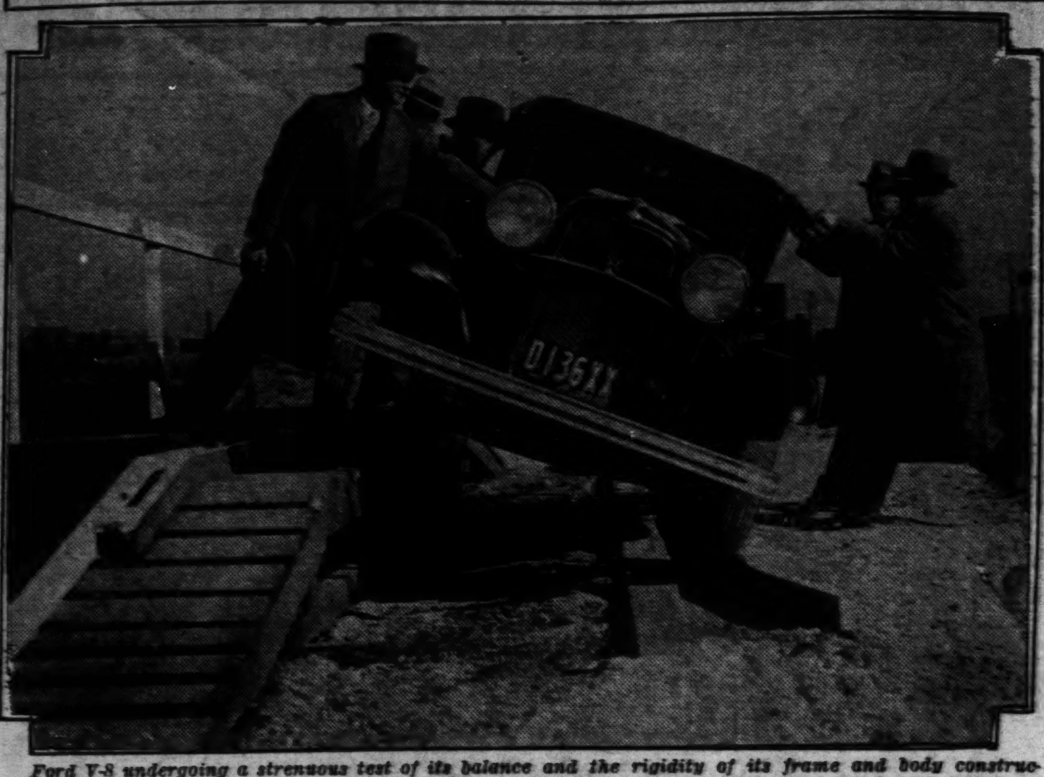
More Tests.

The cars then are driven in high gear at a speed of less than 10 miles an hour up a long 15-degree ramp, which simulates a steep hill, to show the smoothness of the engine under this unusual driving load. On the downgrade, a 25-degree ramp, drivers demonstrate the positive action of the brakes and the ease with which the cars can be brought to a quick stop in an emergency.

Approaching the "jacking test," where the cars are driven on an inclined platform with the right wheels raised high above the ground, riders are first assured that the test is perfectly safe, despite the spectacular angle at which the cars are inclined.

When the cars reach the top of the platform, attendants first open and close the doors to emphasize the freedom from body distortion even at the sharp angle of inclination. Then three strong men push against the car roofs to demonstrate their inherent stability even in such a position.

On the New Ford Proving Track in St. Louis



Ford V-8 undergoing a strenuous test of its balance and the rigidity of its frame and body construction, on the new Ford proving track in St. Louis. Cars are demonstrated by salesmen on this track, on which the test pictured is only one of many. This Ford "8" was run onto the runway so that the right hand wheels were elevated 18 inches above the left hand wheels. All doors and windows were opened and shut as easily as if the car were standing on level ground. Also, as the picture shows, it could not be pushed and pulled over by four men. After the car had been driven off the runway, it showed no evidence of strain, and doors and windows opened and closed as if the car had not been so severely tested. In the picture, at the left, front to rear—Fritz Riesmeyer, H. K. MacCarthy and W. D. ("Bill") Walsh; at the right, Udell Thomson and Caspar ("Cap") Rauscher. All are authorized Ford dealers.

Moesch to Be Sales Manager for Gateway

Henry Haferteppe, president of the Gateway Motor Co., De Soto and Plymouth dealer, has appointed Augie D. Moesch as sales manager. Moesch for a number of years has been in the automobile accessory business as well as selling automobiles in the low price class.

New Cranking Power Standard for Auto Batteries Adopted

Word has been received by T. P. O'Malley, St. Louis branch manager for the Electric Storage Battery Co., maker of Exide batteries, that a new official standard has been adopted covering the battery power required for cranking auto engines that will be of marked benefit to motorists.

"This new standard," O'Malley said, "has been established by the Society of Automotive Engineers. It will require a battery to be capable of discharging 300 amperes at zero temperature for a specified number of minutes, the period of discharge varying with the size and type of battery. This period ranges from 1.7 minutes to over five minutes.

"Of course, Exide meets the new standard. In fact, Exide batteries now more than fulfill the new requirement with plenty of margin to spare. It may be interesting to know that for years Exide engineers have been designing and building batteries with particular attention to cold weather starting power.

"Modern automobile engine design has changed so much that the battery of a few years ago is hardly capable of meeting present day requirements. The increasing number of six, eight and 12-cylinder cars and the very decided trend toward high compression motors has made it necessary to raise the standard of battery performance. A battery to meet modern conditions must have greater power for cranking, which is popularly known as 'starting power.'"

Urges Banking Road Curves.

Prevention of between 2000 and 3000 highway deaths each year, as well as many more thousands of injuries to riders and damages to property, could be accomplished, according to W. B. Potter, railway expert, by the simple procedure of banking all highway curves sufficiently, which means tilting the highway surface inward a little at all bends. The danger of unbanked curves arises because of the centrifugal force acting on the car as it rounds a curve at high speed.

Chevrolet Motor Co. Celebrates Its 21st Anniversary on Nov. 3

Has Built Total of More Than 8,000,000 Cars and Trucks Since 1911.

The coming week marks the "coming of age" of the Chevrolet Motor Co. Twenty-one years ago—on Nov. 3, 1911—the Chevrolet Motor Co. was incorporated in Michigan to manufacture and sell automotive vehicles.

The first car to carry the name "Chevrolet" came out of an upstairs flat converted into a workshop in Detroit. Now, a generation later, the name has decorated more than 8,000,000 radiators of cars and trucks throughout the world.

The Chevrolet Motor Co. has led the industry in sales in three years out of the past five. For the 1932 year-to-date Chevrolet registrations outnumber those of the second highest make by approximately 100,000 units, the Chevrolet Motor Co. states.

The First Chevrolet Car.

The first Chevrolet bore a basic resemblance to the modern product of the company in that Louis Chevrolet, noted race driver of another era, who did some experimental work on the first car and whose name it perpetuates, used a six-cylinder engine. The company's greatest comparative success came with this type of motor, built exclusively during the past three years.

As early as 1915, Chevrolet was launched in the volume car field, with the introduction of the Model "490." This car, named for its price, was a sensation in its day, and production of it was continued for several years. This, incidentally, was the lowest priced Chevrolet ever on the market until the reduction of the base price of the 1931 series to $475. The present base price is $445, at Flint, Mich.

After the formation of the company, a decade elapsed before 1,000,000 cars had been turned out. But since those early years, when Chevrolet was finding its place in an already large industry, the company has written a veritable Horatio Alger story of modern business growth.

Chevrolet in G. M. Group.

Chevrolet became a part of the General Motors group in 1918. In 1921, Chevrolet built only 4.5 per cent of all the passenger cars and trucks produced by the industry. At present one out of every three cars and trucks built is a Chevrolet six.

In 1925, production for the first time passed the half-million mark in a single year. Two years later it exceeded 1,000,000 cars in 12 months.

Most of the present directing heads of the management were active in the organization when the sweep to first place gathered momentum in the early twenties. Foremost of the company's executives are W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager; H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager; M. E. Coyle, vice-president and general auditor; C. E. Wetherald, general manufacturing manager, and J. M. Crawford, chief engineer.

Truck Length Limited.

Automobile transport trucks in Illinois may not exceed 35 feet in length.

For Tea Delivery Service

Twelve new Chevrolet sedan delivery cars being delivered to the Grand Union Tea Co. for use by its representatives in Middle Western states. Addition of these cars gives the company a fleet of 125 Chevrolets. These sedan delivery cars are painted with two-tone green bodies and hoods, the company's standard scheme. They were built at the St. Louis Chevrolet factory, Union and Natural Bridge road.

For Rushing Tobacco Delivery

Gasoline Taxed in Every State.

Starting in Oregon in 1919 at a cent a gallon, the gasoline tax has spread to every State in the Union. Today, three states fix it at 2 cents; 12 at 3 cents; 17 at 4 cents; nine at 5 cents; one at 5½ cents; four at 6 cents and two at 7 cents.

Plymouth Dealers To Hear of New Car At Meeting Tuesday

H. H. Hamilton, Plymouth factory representative for the St. Louis district, announces that there will be a meeting at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Odeon for all Chrysler, De Soto and Dodge dealers.

The meeting will be attended by L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., Chrysler distributer; George Weber, president of Mound City Motor Co., De Soto distributer, and Milton B. Strauss, president, and Joseph A. Schlecht, secretary, of Milstrand Motors Co., Dodge distributers.

In addition to the sales staffs of these organizations, all of the dealers of these three distributers will be in attendance to hear announcement plans in connection with the new Plymouth six.

Merchandising and sales promotion plans for the introduction of the new car will be announced at the meeting, according to Hamilton.

Gas Tax High in France.

Every gallon of gasoline sold in France is taxed at least 14 cents. At the present time a hectoliter (roughly 26 gallons) is subject to taxes which total 95.75 francs, under which the largest items are 44 francs customs duty, 18 francs domestic tax and 12 francs for road upkeep. Reducing the figures to gallons and cents, the tax will be seen to average about 14 cents a gallon.

I'D SUGGEST A RAMCO RECONDITION WHILE WE'RE GRINDING THE VALVES

WHAT'S A RAMCO RECONDITION?

"THAT'S the modern way to tighten up your motor, put back pep and power and stop oil pumping."

"Afraid I can't afford an overhaul now, Harry."

"Why, Ramco saves you 30% to 40% over other methods—you get another year's driving with your present pistons. Now's the time to have it done, while we're grinding the valves; you'll not only save money on the job, but it means a saving in repair bills later." ...Ask your repairman to quote you a Ramco Recondition with Ramco Piston Rings and Piston Expanders. Authorized Ford Dealers Reduce Charges for Labor

Effective at once, substantial reductions have been made in labor charges by all authorized Ford dealers.

In making this announcement, M. N. Johnson, St. Louis Ford branch manager, said that reductions ranged from 20 to 40 per cent.

"In line with present conditions the Ford Motor Co. makes this announcement. All authorized Ford dealers use only genuine Ford parts and Ford factory trained mechanics which, together with this drastic reduction in labor charges, makes it more than ever advantageous for Ford owners to secure competent maintenance from authorized Ford dealers," Johnson said.

Archer-Mann Co. Adds 15,000 Square Feet of Floor Space

The Archer-Mann Motor Co., Sarah and Lindell, distributer of Graham cars, has taken additional floor space in connection with its present facilities, amounting to 15,000 square feet. The increase was necessary due to increase in Graham eight-cylinder business this year which is about 121 per cent over the same period of last year, according to R. D. Mann of the company.

The company is moving its used car establishment, which was formerly at 2929 Locust street, to occupy part of this new building at 314 North Sarah, near Lindell. This new arrangement will permit closer supervision of all departments by company officers, with the idea in mind of giving better service to Graham owners.

Buick, Olds, Pontiac Sales Heads Named By B-O-P Company

Further progress in the organization of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac Sales Co. is announced by W. A. Blees, general sales manager, through the appointment of G. H. Wallace, as Buick sales manager; R. M. W. Shaw, as Oldsmobile sales manager, and R. K. White, as Pontiac sales manager.

Blees said that this was a natural evolution in the organization of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac sales organization. Since the field organization has been perfected and is operating on an efficient basis, the interest of each car will be best served by having a sales manager concentrating on that particular car, he added.

G. H. Wallace was formerly Western sales manager. R. M. W. Shaw was formerly the Oldsmobile advertising manager. R. K. White was formerly the Eastern sales manager of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac Sales Co.

Succeeding Shaw as Oldsmobile advertising manager is V. C. Havens. Havens has been with Cadillac Motor Car Co. and Campbell-Ewald Advertising Agency for eight years.

G. R. Browder has been placed in charge of the development of the dealer organization in connection with dual accounts.

New Plymouth Six Put in Production At Rate of 500 Daily

Production of the new Plymouth six, announced a week ago by Walter P. Chrysler, began Oct. 25 in the Plymouth plant, Detroit.

It is understood that more than 500 cars will be built each day for the first few days, reaching in excess of 1000 a day after Nov. 1.

A total of 10,732 orders for new Plymouth sixes have been received from De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler dealers in the United States alone since the informal announcement of the model by Chrysler, according to a statement by H. G. Moock, general sales manager of Plymouth Motor Corporation.

Several thousand cars will be shipped in October, it is reported.

Designer of Cars for European Notables Now With Cadillac

Thomas L. Hibbard, one of the foremost of modern automobile body designers, who recently returned to this country after 10 years spent in the capitols of Europe designing cars for internationally famous clients, including King Alfonso of Spain, M. Lucien Saint, Governor-General of Morocco, Marlene Dietrich, of movie fame, Ambassador Patino, South American tin magnate, an other notables, is now devoting his talent entirely to the development of new Cadillac styles.

Since early this summer Hibbard has been on the staff of the art and color section of Fisher Body Corporation working on exclusive Cadillac designs, according to L. P. Fisher, president of Cadillac.

Many of the cars designed by Hibbard have captured a long list of elegance competitions in France, Germany and Spain. His cars have won the Grand Prix in similar competitions at Monte Carlo, Cannes, Paris and Le Touquet.

Drives Ford V-8 287 Miles on Road In 4 Hours, 13 Minutes

Morris Tavlinsky, whose recent run in four hours six minutes from St. Louis to Kansas City, a distance of 261 miles on his new Ford V-8 roadster's speedometer, was a matter of interest here for several weeks, has just wired M. N. Johnson, branch manager of the Ford Motor Co. in St. Louis, that he made a new record between Amarillo, Tex., and Oklahoma City, Ok., a distance of 287 miles, by making the run in four hours 13 minutes. The Amarillo-Oklahoma City run was made over every type of highway, dirt, gravel and pavement.

Plymouth Dealers To Hear of New Car At Meeting Tuesday

H. H. Hamilton, Plymouth factory representative for the St. Louis district, announces that there will be a meeting at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Odeon for all Chrysler, De Soto and Dodge dealers.

The meeting will be attended by L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., Chrysler distributer; George Weber, president of Mound City Motor Co., De Soto distributer, and Milton B. Strauss, president, and Joseph A. Schlecht, secretary, of Milstrand Motors Co., Dodge distributers.

In addition to the sales staffs of these organizations, all of the dealers of these three distributers will be in attendance to hear announcement plans in connection with the new Plymouth six.

Merchandising and sales promotion plans for the introduction of the new car will be announced at the meeting, according to Hamilton.

Gas Tax High in France.

Every gallon of gasoline sold in France is taxed at least 14 cents. At the prsent time a hectoliter (roughly 26 gallons) is subject to taxes which total 95.75 francs, under which the largest items are 44 francs customs duty, 18 francs domestic tax and 12 francs for road upkeep. Reducing the figures to gallons and cents, the tax will be seen to average about 14 cents a gallon.

"I'D SUGGEST A RAMCO RECONDITION WHILE WE'RE GRINDING THE VALVES"

"WHAT'S A RAMCO RECONDITION?"

THAT'S the modern way to tighten up your motor, put back pep and power and stop oil pumping."

"Why, Ramco saves you 30% to 40% over other methods—you get another year's driving with your present pistons. Now's the time to have it done, while we're grinding the valves; you'll not only save money on the job, but it means a saving in repair bills later."... Ask your repairman to quote you a Ramco Recondition with Ramco Piston Rings and Piston Expanders. Phone JEfferson 0722

Authorized Ford Dealers Reduce Charges for Labor

Effective at once, substantial reductions have been made in labor charges by all authorized Ford dealers.

In making this announcement, M. N. Johnson, St. Louis Ford branch manager, said that reductions ranged from 20 to 40 per cent.

"In line with present conditions the Ford Motor Co. makes this announcement. All authorized Ford dealers use only genuine Ford parts and Ford factory trained mechanics which, together with this drastic reduction in labor charges, makes it more than ever advantageous for Ford owners to secure competent maintenance from authorized Ford dealers," Johnson said.

Archer-Mann Co. Adds 15,000 Square Feet of Floor Space

The Archer-Mann Motor Co., Sarah and Lindell, distributer of Graham cars, has taken additional floor space in connection with its present facilities, amounting to 15,000 square feet. The increase was necessary due to increase in Graham eight-cylinder business this year which is about 121 per cent over the same period of last year, according to R. D. Mann of the company.

The company is moving its used car establishment, which was formerly at 2929 Locust street, to occupy part of this new building at 314 North Sarah, near Lindell. This new arrangement will permit closer supervision of all departments by company officers, with the idea in mind of giving better service to Graham owners.

Buick, Olds, Pontiac Sales Heads Named By B-O-P Company

Further progress in the organization of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac Sales Co. is announced by W. A. Blees, general sales manager, through the appointment of G. H. Wallace, as Buick sales manager; R. M. W. Shaw, as Oldsmobile sales manager, and R. K. White, as Pontiac sales manager.

Blees said that this was a natural evolution in the organization of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac sales organization. Since the field organization has been perfected and is operating on an efficient basis, the interest of each car will be best served by having a sales manager concentrating on that particular car, he added.

G. H. Wallace was formerly Western sales manager. R. M. W. Shaw was formerly the Oldsmobile advertising manager. R. K. White was formerly the Eastern sales manager of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac Sales Co.

Succeeding Shaw as Oldsmobile advertising manager is V. C. Havens. Havens has been with Cadillac Motor Car Co and Campbell-Ewa'd Advertising Agency for eight years.

G. R. Browder has been placed in charge of the development of the dealer organization in connection with dual accounts.

New Plymouth Six Put in Production At Rate of 500 Daily

Production of the new Plymouth six, announced a week ago by Walter P. Chrysler, began Oct. 25 in the Plymouth plant, Detroit.

It is understood that more than 500 cars will be built each day for the first few days, reaching in excess of 1000 a day after Nov. 1.

A total of 10,732 orders for new Plymouth sixes have been received from De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler dealers in the United States alone since the informal announcement of the model by Chrysler, according to a statement by H. G. Moock, general sales manager of Plymouth Motor Corporation.

Several thousand cars will be shipped in October, it is reported.

Thomas L. Hibbard, one of the foremost of modern automobile body designers, who recently returned to this country after 10 years spent in the capitols of Europe designing cars for internationally famous clients, including King Alfonso of Spain, M. Lucien Saint, Governor-General of Morocco, Marlene Dietrich, of movie fame, Ambassador Patino, South American tin magnate, an other notables, is now devoting his talent entirely to the development of new Cadillac styles.

Since early this summer Hibbard has been on the staff of the art and color section of Fisher Body Corporation working on exclusive Cadillac designs, according to L. P. Fisher, president of Cadillac.

Many of the cars designed by Hibbard have captured a long list of elegance competitions in France, Germany and Spain. His cars have won the Grand Prix in similar competitions at Monte Carlo, Cannes, Paris and Le Touquet.

Faulkner President Of Pierce-Arrow's Sales Organization

The appointment of Roy H. Faulkner as president of the Pierce-Arrow Sales Corporation, operating Pierce-Arrow's retail branches, and vice-president in charge of sales of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., is announced by A. J. Chanter, first vice-president and general manager.

Faulkner is already active in his new position and is now permanently located at the Pierce-Arrow administration headquarters in Buffalo.

He assumes complete charge of the company's entire sales organization and will be responsible for outlining the sales policies and procedures that will govern its operation. In addition to nearly 600 Pierce-Arrow distributers and dealers, he will be in direct charge of the four great metropolitan branches of the Pierce-Arrow Sales Corporation in New York, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

Rockne Fourth in 4 States, Fifth in 2, During September

Evidence of Rockne's climb up the automobile sales ladder, says George M. Graham, vice-president of the Rockne Motor Corporation, is the fact that advance registrations for 28 states for September had already shown Rockne in fourth place in four states and fifth in two more.

"This is a decided improvement even over our showing in August," Graham said. "In that month we were in fourth place in two states—California and South Dakota—and were in eighth place for the entire country. September registrations for a little more than half the states show us not only holding our same position in California and South Dakota, but also show us in fourth position in Arkansas and North Dakota as well. In addition Rockne has moved up to fifth place in registrations in both Maryland and Minnesota."

While September registrations were not complete, Rockne stood in seventh place for all 28 states and the District of Columbia that have reported to date, Graham said.

Sinclair Co. Spends Two-Thirds Advertising Money in Newspapers

That more than 66 per cent of all money spent for publication advertising by the Sinclair Refining Co. is going to newspapers has just been disclosed at an advertising exhibit opened at the headquarters of the company, 45 Nassau street, New York.

Newspapers are receiving over three times the amount spent for radio, and six to seven times that going to magazines.

Because of the high regard which the Sinclair Refining Co. has for newspapers as a medium for advertising its new Sinclair regular gasoline, which was recently stepped up 70 per cent in anti-knock value at a cost of $18,000,000 in refinery improvement, newspapers occupy one of the most prominent positions in the exhibit.

New Tire Tube Lets Air Trapped Inside Casing Escape Easily

It has been, and still is, common practice among most tire manufacturers to puncture every casing before it leaves the factory.

With the introduction of drop center rims there arose numerous complaints from motorists that their tires were developing blisters on sidewalls, or separating under sidewalls or treads. Manufacturers began an investigation that led to a discovery which even they could hardly believe. The trouble, they found, was caused by trapping of air between casing and tube in mounting.

The trapped air problem has always existed to an unknown extent, but it was not recognized as a definite cause of tire failure until drop center rims became popular. This type of rim, being of one piece construction and having no splits or loose side flanges, aggravated the problem because it more frequently and easily formed a continuous airtight seal that offered no outlet for the air except through the valve hole. As a remedy, the manufacturer punched a hole in the sidewall of the casing so that the air might escape.

The United States Rubber Co. now has found a better solution of the problem, it believes, in the development of a new tube, known as the vented tube. This tube is knurled or corrugated to form vents so that the trapped air at any point of the casing is automatically led out through the valve hole during the first few revolutions of the wheel.

Horizontal Cylinders In New Type "12" For City Bus Uses

A 12-cylinder horizontally-opposed engine, of 225-brake horsepower, powers a new type city coach for mass transportation service announced by The White Co.

Cylinders in the new engine, instead of operating in an upright position, as in present motor coaches, trucks or automobiles, operate from a horizontal position, giving the engine a flat or "pancake" appearance. The overall height is but 16 inches.

This permits the engine to be mounted, with all accessories, under the floor of a coach, giving unrestricted riding area for 44-seated passengers and 56 standees, a total of 100 passengers.

SCOUT MERIT BADGE SHOW COMES TO END

Until Anniversary Week in February Troops Will Concentrate on Own Activities.

With a large attendance at both the afternoon and evening sessions yesterday, the seventh annual Boy Scout Merit Badge Show at The Arena came to a close. It was the last big event of the year for the combined troops of the St. Louis council.

Until anniversary week, which is in early February scouts will concentrate on improving their own troops and preparing for the regular monthly boards of review.

Speakers at the Merit Badge Show had high praise for the scouts. Jesse W. Barrett, State commander of the American Legion, told them that "scouting is one of the finest things in American life. It is constructive, wholesome, and it is of tremendous importance."

"This great exposition," he said, "is concrete proof of what the Scout movement is actually doing. It is making boys healthy in body, mind and heart. It is teaching them brotherhood and patriotism and converting them into the manly men of tomorrow."

Others who spoke on the value of the Scout movement were Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Henry J. Gerling, superintendent of schools.

C. H. Mills, activities director, said that about 8000 names of boys between the ages of 8 and 14 had been gathered by the Scouts in their citywide canvass two weeks ago, in an effort to increase their enrollment. The census was taken as the first step in the new "Ten-Year Plan."

Troop Notes

PEANUT REMOVED FROM LUNG

Child 3 Years Old Strangled on It Month Ago.

George Randall Clay III whose parents call him "Corkey"—was expected to be able to leave St. Louis Children's Hospital today following removal of a piece of peanut from his lung in a bronchoscopic operation yesterday.

His parents brought him here in considerable alarm following removel of part of the peanut in a Kirksville hospital, when it was thought the remainder had broken into bits. "Corkey," who is 3 years old, strangled on the peanut nearly a month ago when he and his parents were spending a vacation on the farm of his grandmother, Mrs. Anna Furnish, at Greentop, Mo. His father is a senior in the Kirksville College of Osteopathy.

WETS' INDORSEMENTS FOR CONGRESS ISSUED

Thirteen Democrats and 9 Republicans on Missouri List—O. K. for Both Kiel and Clark

The Missouri Association Against Prohibition yesterday announced that it indorsed all 13 Democratic candidates for Congressman-at-large, in next week's election, and nine of the 13 Republican candidates. It indorsed both the candidates for the United States Senate, Clark, Democrat, and Kiel, Republican. It said nothing about the governorship or other administrative offices.

The association did not indorse the three Republican congressional candidates who were indorsed, a few days ago, by the Anti-Saloon League. These are Congressmen Manlove and Hopkins and former Congressman Palmer.

It also did not indorse Phil A. Bennett of Springfield, former Lieutenant-Governor, who was indorsed by the Anti-Saloon League before the primary, but who for some reason, not stated by the Anti-Saloon League has not its indorsement now. Bennett is thus in the position of being the only unindorsed candidate, as to the wet-dry issue, among the 26 who are seeking Missouri's seats in Congress.

"Five of the Democratic candidates," the association Against Prohibition says, "Messrs. Cannon, Lozier, Milligan, Dickinson and Romjue, have dry records, but have pledged themselves to vote for immediate modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This pledge must be and is accepted at its face value." The Democrats named were indorsed by the Anti-Saloon League before the primary, but have not its indorsement now.

After listing the nine Republicans whom it indorses, the association says, "If you want to vote for 13 wet candidates, fill in from the wet Democrats." It has indorsed all the Democrats, but lists the five recent drys last, as if to indicate that "wet Democrats" should be picked from the earlier part of the list.

The 13 Democrats indorsed are Cochran, Williams, Shannon, Ruffin, Wood, Duncan, Claiborne, Lee Cannon, Lozier, Dickinson, Milligan and Romjue. The nine Republicans indorsed are Dyer, Niedringhaus, Hadley, Stewart, Miller, Davis, Otto, Johnston and Clark.

25 U. S. STUDENTS CONSIDER LEAVING VIENNA UNIVERSITY

Visit American Minister, Who Advises Them to Form Defense Society.

VIENNA, Oct. 29.—A delegation of 25 American students, including non-Jews, visited Gilchrist Stockton, the United States Minister, today to ask whether it was advisable for them to return to the United Sates in view of recent anti-Semitic disturbances here. Stockton assured them that far-reaching protection would be accorded. He advised the students to remain aloof from Austrian politics and to organize an American self-defense group should trouble recur.

The students expressed satisfaction and said that if they were again attacked they would leave the country.

National Socialist newspapers denied that Americans were injured last Wednesday during disorders. Three American students were reported injured at that time and the rector of the University of Vienna made an official apology to the United States Minister.

26 Races at St. Louis U.

Fifty-nine foreign students are enrolled in St. Louis University this year. Twenty-six races are represented. Mexicans constitute the largest number of foreigners.

JUDGE PARK DISCUSSES RELIEF IN CHARLESTON, MO., TALK

Democratic Candidate for Governor Urges Constructive and Sympathetic Program.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Oct. 29.—Judge Guy B. Park, Democratic candidate for Governor, in a campaign speech today urged "constructive relief for the unemployed and sympathy with their problems."

He said, "We are confronted with the crushing weight of unemployment. The working people of our country, who have contributed so much to the welfare of the commonwealth, are undergoing privations and suffering beyond description. This depression, brought on largely by Republican misrule, has fallen heavily upon those who live by their labor, and no more reproachful testimonial to the inadequacy of the discriminating Republican system can be conceived than the millions now out of employment."

U. S. Treasurer to Speak.

Maj. Walter O. Woods, treasurer of the United States, will address a luncheon meeting of the City Club tomorrow. The City Club's drive for 700 new members begins with the meeting.

Speculative Forces Reach Stalemate in Securities Markets— Price Average Up 1.7 Points Over Previous Period.

STOCK PRICE TREND.

	Sat.	Fri.
Advances	116	255
Declines	186	97
Unchanged	93	116
Total issues traded	395	468

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Speculative forces reached a stalemate in the securities markets this week.

Favorable factors included maintenance of U. S. Steel's preferred dividend, further gains in Electric Power consumption, continued return of currency from hoarding, further influx of gold, and rapid piling up of excess bank reserves.

Against this, however, was the fact that October was drawing to a close, and the time of the usual year-end letdown in general business activity approaching. Also, third quarter earnings statements appearing for scores of corporations indicated that the summer period saw a new low for the depression in earnings, and that restoration of general corporate earning power would take time.

The action of commody prices was rather disheartening, but important declines were limited to a few items. The bond market also was a rather sorry affair early in the week, but it stiffened later.

Freight Loading and Steel.

In freight car loadings November, normally sees a rather decided falling off. Steel production is likely to reach its normal autumn peak in October, although executives expressed hope that, with the automobile industry starting on its 1933 models, and railroads likely to do a little buying, operations might be well supported through November.

Normal pre-election hesitancy was widely mentioned in Wall street as a factor in the quiescence of the security markets, but it was clear, however, that the market lacked anything in the way of decisively stimulating news to move it higher. The steel preferred dividend was counterbalanced by the largest quarterly deficit ever reported by the corporation. On the other hand, a belief that the seasonal betterment in business has been, to a degree, of a basic character which should tend to bolster it against the year-end downward tendency, and the hope of improvement when the seasonal stimulus appears in basic lines in the early months of next year, were important influences against selling.

The turnover on the Stock Exchange was the smallest for any week since July. Activity appeared to be greatest on advances, with business drying up almost completely on declines. The price average of 90 representative shares ended the week at 55.6, up 1.7 points from the previous Saturday. Bonds failed to recover fully their losses of the early part of the week, the average of 60 corporate issues ending the period at 70.0, against 70.3 on Oct. 22.

Fractional Net Losses Prevail at the Finish of Saturday's Trade.

The weekly report of freight car loadings, showing a slight decline after five weeks of gains, nipped a rather feeble rally in the stock market today. Important liquidation failed to appear, but small early gains were lost after publication of the report, and in leading issues fractional net losses prevailed at the finish, with some down as much as 1 to 2 points. The day's transfers were only $359,820 shares, making it the smallest Saturday turnover since Oct. 1.

The weekly report of the movement of revenue freight, covering the period ended Oct. 22, showed a total of 642,173 cars, only 8405 below the previous week, and, with the exception of that week, the best of any wek this year. Nevertheless, on the basis of individual carrier reports appearing earlier in the week, brokerage quarters had been inclined to lok for a small gain, perhaps 3000 to 5000 cars, so floor traders switched to the selling side, on publication of the report. The day's trading, however, amounted to little more than bored swapping of stocks by professionals.

Rails Show Small Losses.

Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Lackawanna, lost about 2 points, and rails off a point or so included Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern preferred, Illinois Central, Louisville and Nashville, Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Industrials off a point or so included U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "B," Liggett and Myers "B," Case, National Biscuit, Corn Products, United Aircraft and Westinghouse Electric. International Business Machines dropped 3 in a thin market.

Norfolk and Western failed to follow other rails down, rising 2½ in the early trading. A couple of the Railway Equipments, General Railway Signal and American Brake Shoe, were up a point or so in small turnover. Hershey rose 2 points.

The radio issues and Westinghouse were off a little, while General Electric was steady.

Sag in Commodity Prices.

Week-end business surveys hinted that the seasonal peak may have been reached, but, inasmuch as it has appeared later than usual, the hope is being expressed that the year-end letdown may be less than usual. The modest gains in steel production appear to be held. The movement of freight, which usually reaches and holds around the year's best levels this month, normally turns downward in November.

A sag in commodity prices may have been a factor in the late dip in the share market, although wheat did not reach its lowest until after the close of the Stock Exchange. It then got down more than a cent to new ground for the history of the Chicago Board of Trade cotton dipped 65 to 75 cents a bale.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The Stock Exchange terminated the week in a cheerful frame of mind but business was very restricted, with traders awaiting forthcoming events. British funds improved slightly while international issues were quietly firmer.

Berlin—Prices on the Boerse reacted favorably to Baron von Gayls speech and the improvement in the British pound.

Paris—Closed.

SALES EXECUTIVE FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE

Manufacturing concern manufacturing a coal burner, automatic control fire and heat regulator for warm-air furnaces, has an excellent opportunity for anyone who can qualify.
Right party can obtain exclusive state distributorship franchise.
Our product retails at $27.50, including installation, and more than pays for itself in a single heating season. Will bear strictest investigation as to the merits and demand for the product.
The man we want must be able to furnish references as to his executive ability of organizing a distribution through the dealers. He should have a background of not less than $25,000 a year earnings.
Applications will be treated confidentially. Address Box T-148, Post-Dispatch.

CARLOADINGS SHOW DECREASE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The American Railway Association, a private organization maintained by the carriers, announced today the car loadings of revenue freight for the week ending Oct. 22 totaled 642,173 cars, a decrease of 8405 from the preceding week's figure.

The loadings were 127,500 cars under the same week in 1931 and 317,319 under the same week two years ago.

Miscellaneous freight loaded for the week of Oct. 22 totaled 236,250, a decrease of 3340 under the preceding week and 48,513 under the same week last year; less than carlot freight 178,744, increase 1297 over the preceding week, decrease 35,968 under the same week last year; coal, 140,805, decrease 2904 under the preceding week, and 12,016 under the corresponding week last year; livestock, 23,696, decrease 1193 below the preceding week and 7039 below the same week last year; grain and grain products, 32,984, decrease 87 cars below the preceding week and 7179 below the same week last year; forest products 18,573, decrease 979 below the preceding week and 5249 under the same week last year; ore, 6283, decrease 846 below the preceding week, and 10,641 under the same week last year, and coke, 4838, decrease 353 under the preceding week and 895 below the same week last year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows total surplus and undivided profits, $900,372,100 (unchanged); total net demand deposits (average), $61,921,000 (increase); time deposits (average), $19,778,000 (increase); clearings week ending today, $2,399,656,346; clearings week ending Oct. 22, $3,501,456,210.

TRADE TRENDS

Hides—Responding to reports of sales of large quantities of spot hides by leading producers, values on the New York Hide Exchange rose sharply for a time during the past week. Sales in the spot market, the Exchange reported, approximated 400,000 hides, which considerably reduced the accumulated holdings of the large producers.

Cocoa—Prices were under pressure on the New York Cocoa Exchange during the past week on a further increase in New York warehouse stocks. They now stand at 645,356 bags, a record high, and an increase of 43,151 for the week.

Farm Income—September farm cash income rose sharply above normal seasonal expectations and reached substantially the same figure as in the corresponding month of 1931, according to a joint estimate of the State Street Research and Management Corporation and the Corn Industries Research Foundation. The estimate covering a 71 per cent sample of all farm items sold for cash during the month totals $313,000,000 compared with $237,000,000 in August, an increase of 32 per cent, as against a normally expected seasonal betterment of only 21 per cent.

Sugar—September consumption in the United States is estimated by B. W. Dyer & Co. as 537,082 tons, compared with 573,751 tons in September, 1931, a decrease of 6.339 per cent. Distribution in the United States in the first nine months of 1932 was 4,473,261 long tons, a decrease of 2.86 per cent from the same period of 1931, the same authority estimates.

Lumber—Production for the week ended Oct. 22, as reported by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, totaled 120,091,000 feet, which was higher than any week since June with the exception of the week ended Oct. 15. Orders received were 130,945,000 feet, the lowest of any week since early August.

NEW YORK COTTON CLOSE BARELY STEADY, 13-15 OFF

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The cotton market was easier today under week-end hedging. Trade buying noted during the middle of the week was less in evidence.

December contracts sold off to 6.12c or 15 points net lower, and within 4 points of the previous low price for the present movement. They closed at the lowest for the day, with the general market barely steady at net declines of 13 to 15 points.

The opening was 4 to 8 points lower under scattering liquidation and increased southern selling, particularly from the Eastern belt. A private report placed the indicated crop at 11,677,000 bales, compared with an indication of 11,362,000 by the same authority a month ago and the last Government estimate of 11,425,000 bales.

Otherwise, the pressure came chiefly from week-end hedging but, with demand limited, prices sagged off, with spot houses sellers of near months.

Reports received from the Southwest said the country basis was the strongest of the season with a seemingly good demand.

Liverpool cables did not fully meet Friday's late decline in the local market, but private advices said there had been hedging and scattering liquidation in that market promoted by the labor situation. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance from U. S. Ports at the end of the week was estimated at 188,000 bales against 198,000 last year.

R. P. LAMONT'S ESTIMATE OF RAILROAD STEEL NEEDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Robert P. Lamont, president of the American Iron & Steel Institute, today estimated that the railroads, which for two years have been buying less than normal requirements, will be obliged to place orders for $2,000,000,000 of steel, once they have sufficient earning power again to justify such buying.

This figure was arrived at by calculating the efficiency of steel buying by rail road and railroad equipment companies in recent years, as compared with average annual needs.

"The railroads last year spent for maintenance and normal buying of rails, ties, rolling stock and other such items, $1,100,000,000, less than a 10-year average beginning with 1920," said Lamont. "Buying for the current year is, no doubt, at an even lower rate, so that there should be an accumulation of deferred maintenance and normal buying something over $2,000,000,000."

In 1931 Class 1 roads, as shown in the Bureau of Railway Economics reports, spent $29,548,000 for new freight cars, against $181,028,000 in 1930; $25,821,000 for locomotives, against $88,494,000; $13,850,000 passenger cars, against $44,791,000, and for miscellaneous equipment, $4,886,000, against $13,956,000.

WHEAT PRICES SLIDE DOWNWARD ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 29. — Wheat slumped today, December opening off ⅛c, later went off ⅝c, and at the end of the session was down 1⅜c. May opened up ⅛c, later went to down ⅛c, and closed at 1⅛c decline.

Liverpool closed up ½@⅝d.

Local wheat receipts, which were 43,400 bu, compared with 63,000 a week ago and 315,000 a year ago, included 23 cars local and 8 cars through. Corn receipts, which were 28,600 bu, compared with 96,000 a week ago and 70,000 a year ago, included 19 cars local. Oats receipts, which were 13,200 bu compared with 13,200 a week ago and 24,200 a year ago, included 6 cars local. Hay receipts were 3 cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Premiums were maintained at about the highest level on the crop. Offerings continued light. Corn averaged about steady on a small volume of trade. Oats were steady to ½c lower and in fair demand.

RANGE OF PRICES.

LOWEST CHICAGO WHEAT PRICE EVER FOR FUTURE DELIVERIES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Wheat fell today to the lowest price ever recorded for future deliveries in Chicago.

The collapse followed a cable flash that the 1932 harvest of Southern Hemisphere wheat had begun in Australia, and that offerings from below the equator were pressing at Liverpool, foreshadowing fierce world competition. Accompanying were price breaks at Winnipeg, showing that Canada was paralleling the downward course of United States quotations.

Almost unprecedented dearth of immediate available buying demand for wheat rather than unusual urgency of sellers here distinguished the overthrow of values.

Wheat closed prostrate at nearly the bottommost point reached, 1¼@1½ cents lower than yesterday's finish; corn, ⅜@⅝c down; oats unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 5c down.

Slight upturns in price at the opening were ascribed to questionable reports that an Argentine house was buying wheat futures at Liverpool, and that locusts appeared to be spreading in Northern Argentina. It quickly developed, however, that Buenos Aires was cutting prices, and that there was an acute scarcity of buyers in Chicago.

The climax came just before the closing gong. The market had been tottering within small fractions of recently established all-time low levels. A spasmodic recovery of wheat prices did ensue, just as the final bell sounded, but was less than ¼ of a cent a bushel.

Corn, oats and provisions sympathized with weakness of wheat.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, December, 42⅞c, 44⅝@⅞c; May, 48⅝@½c, 50⅛@⅝c; July, 49⅝c, bids. Corn—December, 23⅞@24c, 24⅝c; May, 28⅝@⅝c, 29⅛@⅝c.

WEEKLY METALS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Steel ingot production this week barely maintained its recent rate, now estimated at 10 to 20 per cent of capacity, owing to decreases in orders for miscellaneous products, which were partly offset by slight gains in demand for bars, structural shapes and automobile parts.

Tin plate production is being fairly well maintained. Prices were generally steady, although pressure for concession on sheets from the automobile industry was reported. Demand for pig iron was moderate, with a somewhat easier tone noted in some sections, attributed partly to foreign competition.

Copper weakened as custom smelters reduced quotations to meet competition from second-hand sources. Electrolytic was obtainable at 5¼c or 1c under recent producers' asking prices for delivery in the Connecticut valley. Buyers generally continued to look on, although interest under the market was said to be increasing, owing partly to reports of better demand for finished products.

Consumer demand for tin improved as the market sagged in sympathy with easiness at London. Buying was described as active for both immediate and forward shipment, with recent deliveries said to be reducing importers' stocks.

Lead was quieter, as buying tapered off somewhat after consumers had supplied their nearby requirements. Smelters which had booked a fair volume of orders were not pressing the market, with the price unchanged.

Zinc remained quiet, although a slightly better inquiry was reported at the recent decline. Larger sellers who had maintained their quotations, either met competition or withdrew from the market.

Antimony remained featureless, with nominal quotations prevailing.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Raw sugar was quiet, and in the absence of business prices was unchanged at 3.04c for spots.

Although not very active, sugar futures were firmer. Final prices showed net advances of 1 to 2 points.

According to the latest advices from Cuba, the proposal of the sugar institute, fixing the next Cuban crop at 2,000,000 tons, was agreed to at a meeting yesterday. The United States quota was set at 1,114,991 tons, other countries outside the United States at 725,000 tons, and home consumption, 150,000 tons, with grinding to start on Feb. 1.

Approximate sales were 4500 tons. December closed .90c; January, .89c; March .94c; May, .97c; July, 1.02c; September, 1.07c.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.25c for fine granulated, with a moderate withdrawal demand and no new business reported.

WHEAT PRICES SLIDE DOWNWARD ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 29. — Wheat slumped today, December opening off ⅛c, later went off ⅝c, and at the end of the session was down 1⅜c. May opened up ¼c, later went to down ¼c, and closed at 1⅛c decline.

Liverpool closed up ½@⅝d.

Local wheat receipts, which were 43,400 bu, compared with 63,000 a week ago and 315,000 a year ago, included 23 cars local and 8 cars through. Corn receipts, which were 26,600 bu, compared with 96,600 a week ago and 70,0( ) a year ago, included 19 cars local. Oats receipts, which were 13,200 bu compared with 13,200 a week ago and 24,200 a year ago, included 6 cars local. Hay receipts were 3 cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Premiums were maintained at about the highest level on the crop. Offerings continued light. Corn averaged about steady on a small volume of trade. Oats were steady to ½c lower and in fair demand.

RANGE OF PRICES.

LOWEST CHICAGO WHEAT PRICE EVER FOR FUTURE DELIVERIES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Wheat fell today to the lowest price ever recorded for future deliveries in Chicago.

The collapse followed a cable flash that the 1932 harvest of Southern Hemisphere wheat had begun in Australia, and that offerings from below the equator were pressing at Liverpool, foreshadowing fierce world competition. Accompanying were price breaks at Winnipeg, showing that Canada was paralleling the downward course of United States quotations.

Almost unprecedented dearth of immediate available buying demand for wheat rather than unusual urgency of sellers here distinguished the overthrow of values.

Wheat closed prostrate at nearly the bottommost point reached, 1¼@1½ cents lower than yesterday's finish; corn, ⅝@¾c down; oats unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 5c down.

Slight upturns in price at the opening were ascribed to questionable reports that an Argentine house was buying wheat futures at Liverpool, and that locusts appeared to be spreading in Northern Argentina. It quickly developed, however, that Buenos Aires was cutting prices, and that there was an acute scarcity of buyers in Chicago.

The climax came just before the closing gong. The market had been tottering within small fractions of recently established all-time low levels. A spasmodic recovery of wheat prices did ensue, just as the final bell sounded, but was less than ¼ of a cent a bushel.

Corn, oats and provisions sympathized with weakness of wheat.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, December, 42⅞c, 44⅝@¾c; May, 48⅜@½c, 50¼@⅜c; July, 49⅜c, bids. Corn—December, 23⅞@24c, 24⅝c; May, 28⅝@¾c, 29¼@⅜c.

WEEKLY METALS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Steel ingot production this week barely maintained its recent rate, now estimated at 10 to 20 per cent of capacity, owing to decreases in orders for miscellaneous products, which were partly offset by slight gains in demand for bars, structural shapes and automobile parts.

Tin plate production is being fairly well maintained. Prices were generally steady, although pressure for concession on sheets from the automobile industry was reported. Demand for pig iron was moderate, with a somewhat easier tone noted in some sections, attributed partly to foreign competition.

Copper weakened as custom smelters reduced quotations to meet competition from second-hand sources. Electrolytic was obtainable at 5¾c or 1c under recent producers' asking prices for delivery in the Connecticute valley. Buyers generally continued to look on, although interest under the market was said to be increasing, owing partly to reports of better demand for finished products.

Consumer demand for tin improved and the market sagged in sympathy with easiness at London. Buying was described as active for both immediate and forward shipment, with recent deliveries said to be reducing importers' stocks.

Lead was quieter, as buying tapered off somewhat after consumers had supplied their nearby requirements. Smelters which had booked a fair volume of orders were not pressing the market, with the price unchanged.

BOND TRADE STAGNANT, DULLEST FOR A YEAR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Outside of a few flurries in oil and rail specialties, the bond market was a stagnant affair today, with most traders holding firmly to the sidelines.

It was the dullest session since Aug. 15 last year. Sales totaled only $3,986,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans was unchanged.

The day's features consisted in a run-up of some petroleum company securities and a moderate reaction of several of the recently buoyant carrier liens. Pan-American of California 6s and Richfield Oil 6s advanced 5½ to 7 points, respectively, while Shell Union Oil 5s were up as much as 1⅛ points.

Losses of a point or more were suffered by some issues of Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, Chesapeake Corporation, Rock Island, Erie, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Nickel Plate and Chicago Great Western. Nickel Plate 6s, which will be removed from the trading list of the Stock Exchange on Nov. 1, dropped 5½ points. Trading in the deposit certificates of this issue, however, will continue.

Minor gains and losses were about evenly divided in the majority of the utilities and industrials.

Foreign obligations were quiet and generally easier. The Australians were weak, losing a point or more, and bonds of Buenos Aires were down as much as 10 points.

The United States Government list was steady and inactive.

CURB PRICES CLOSE EASIER AFTER PERIOD OF MULLING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Activity in the Curb market was at an extremely low ebb today and prices, after mulling around uncertainly in the early part of the short session, closed slightly easier.

Most of the leaders opened at bit firmer, but, on the final count, moderate losses prevailed. The turnover approximated only 50,000 shares.

About one-sixth of the day's transactions were in Electric Bond & Share, which after opening at 25⅛ and ending up to 25⅜, slid back to 23⅞ for a loss of 1⅛ points. Aluminum of America lost a point, and fractional declines were recorded by American Gas & Electric, Cities Service, United Gas and Utilities Power & Light. Standard of Indiana, the only one of the leaders that was active, eased ⅛ of a point.

STANDARD STATISTICS VIEW OF COMMODITY MARKET OUTLOOK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Followers of the commodity markets are contemplating the past month's downward trend of prices. While no sustained recovery is promised before next spring, particularly in commodities under pressure of seasonal influences, hopes are expressed that a closer alignment of production and consumption may bring an upturn some time early in the new year.

Recent weeks witnessed a break to record low levels of wheat and corn. Dairy products were unable to acquire full seasonal strength because of well-sustained production. Cocoa was under pressure because of hedge selling. Coffee was uncertain and lower because of the Brazilian outlook. Metal prices eased under the slackening of demand. Hides reacted seasonally. Naval stores showed a steady tone. Linseed oil was firm in prospect of reduced supplies and rubber and sugar prices were relatively well maintained.

In reviewing the commodity situation, Standard Statistics Co. points out that "except during the period of a major economic convulsion such as has been witnessed during the past three years, it is a truism that the price of any commodity is largely determined by supply and demand.

"Undoubtedly marked progress has been made in reducing production during the past three years," the Statistics company adds, "but on the other hand, consumption of commodities, from raw materials to finished goods, has declined at an accelerated pace and, in a majority of cases, at a faster rate than production. In addition, production still is being artificially maintained in a number of instances."

The conclusion is that "it is not unlikely that raw material values will be dilatory in responding to the initial stages of a broad industrial revival which, on the basis of current evidence, will be delayed until next spring, at least."

SHIPBUILDING UNDER WAY LOWEST IN FIFTY YEARS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Commerce Department reports that shipping under way in the world's shipbuilding countries on the first of October amounted to only 901,000 gross tons, the lowest figure in more than 50 years, and some 200,000 tons lower than on June 30 last.

All countries registered a decline, with the exception of Japan, which showed a slight increase. The United States remained in third place among the shipbuilding countries, following Great Britain and Italy, it was said.

NOMINEES' REPLIES ON COST-CUTTING LISTED

The Public, Inc., Cites Their Stand on Bonus—Several Fail to Answer.

Eight of the 13 Democratic nominees for Congressman-at-large, and Bennett C. Clark, Democratic Senatorial nominee, sent no reply to the questionnaire of The Public, Inc., non-partisan voters' organization to reduce the cost of government.

The eight Democratic congressional candidates who did not reply to the questions are: Dickinson, Milligan, Romjue, Lee, Ruffin, Shannon, Williams and Wood.

Henry W. Kiel, Republican senatorial nominee, answered with an unqualified "Yes" all the four questions asked by the organization. The questions were:

Will you oppose and vote against the immediate payment of the Veterans' Adjusted Service certificates and interest?

Will you oppose and vote against bonus payments to any persons, except for or on account of an actual war-connected loss or disability?

Will you oppose and vote against all pork-barrel legislation?

Will you support and vote for immediate reduction of Federal governmental expenses, through the elimination of useless bureaus, departments and agencies and reduction of expenses to the 1927 level?

Some Democrats' Replies.

Of the Democrats who answered the questions, Claiborne answered all in the affirmative, and added a pledge in his own wording for "strictest economy."

Of the Democrats who answered the questions, Congressman Cochran said he had voted against immediate payment of the bonus, "and have not changed my views." He answered "No" to the second question, saying that would change a practice followed by the Government for 50 years. "I am willing to revise laws," he said, "but not entirely to deny all benefits now granted as service pensions." As to the third question, he said, "I will vote against any pork-barrel legislation," and as to the fourth, "I will vote to eliminate all unnecessary expenses, and will not limit the amount."

Another Democrat, Duncan, answered the third and fourth questions in the affirmative, but said the adjusted service certificates should be paid "as soon as the finances of the country permit," and as to the second question, that "all should be recognized" in payment of soldiers' compensation.

Claiborne, a Democrat, answered all the questions in the affirmative, and added a pledge in his own words for "strictest economy." Lozier answered yes to the first, third and fourth questions, but said he was "open-minded" as to the second. Congressman Cannon gave a blanket answer, referring to his record for economy in the last session of Congress as "100 per cent."

Republicans' Answers.

Of the Republicans, Dyer, Niedringhaus, Bennett, Miller, Otto and Palmer answered yes to all four questions. Congressman Manlove answered the first question with "Yes, until such time as the Government Treasury will permit," and the others in the affirmative. Johnston answered the second question in the negative, saying the world "bonus" had been wrongly used, and that the question should be termed disability compensation. He answered "yes" to the other questions.

Hadley, Republican, answered "yes" to the first three questions, but "no" to the fourth, saying he would support all reductions in the public interest, but did not wish to be committed to a specified level. Congressman Hopkins replied that he voted against the bonus measure and would do so again, that he opposed pensions except for service-connected disabilities, that he "voted against the Garner pork-barrel measure and shall do so again," and that he favored reducing governmental activities, as well as bureaus. Davis said that, though an ex-service man, he opopposed immediate payment of the bonus and payment of non-service disabilities. As to the rest, he said, "I led the fight in the Missouri Senate to defeat tax-increase proposals.

Dr. Stewart, Republican, said: "I am fully in favor of a balanced budget through economy, not through increased taxes. I favor control of Government spending and elimination of waste. I believe in a pay-as-we-go policy with no demands for functions which the taxpayers cannot afford. I pledge myself to economy and lower taxes; promise economy regardless of party influence; am opposed to immediate payment of the bonus and to pork-barrel legislation."

Clark, Republican, replied: "I am not making pledges to secure votes or support—if you want that kind of Congressman, vote for someone else."

UNIVERSITY CITY ART EXHIBIT

An exhibition of the work of James L. Wells, Negro artist of New York, is being held at the University City High School, in connection with an art week there this week. Wells is an art teacher at Howard University, Washington, and his work was part of the summer exhibition at the Brooklyn Museum.

Animal pictures by Winfield Stampfer, a ninth grade pupil at the University City Junior High School, are on exhibit there. Talks on the fine arts will be given daily.

HOOVER'S PALO ALTO HOME WIRED FOR POSSIBLE SPEECH

Preparations Made in Case President Decides to Make Trip to California.

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Oct. 29.—Published reports that the home of President Hoover on Stanford University campus was being wired for a final campaign speech to be delivered there Nov. 5 brought explanations from close friends today that preparations were being made merely to prevent any delay in case the President did decide to come home.

The friends of the President said no definite decision had been made and that the preparations would permit a last-minute arrangement of plans.

Mr. Hoover's last public appearance here was on election night in November, 1928, when Stanford students and visitors from a wide area crowded around his home to acclaim his election to the presidency.

MOTHER WHO DROWNED THREE CHILDREN JAILED

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, Ill., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Inez Carrell, young Chicago widow who drowned her three children, entered Coles County jail today to await grand jury action in the indefinite future on murder charges facing her.

Leaving the Mattoon hospital where she had spent the past week since attempting suicide, Mrs. Carrell was brought here in the private automobile of Coroner F. E. Schilling whose inquest yesterday recommended she be held for murder.

"I want to die, I want to die," she cried when placed in jail. She was sobbing hysterically.

She protested against attempts to photograph her in her hospital room with Dr. Orlando F. Scott, Chicago alienist brought here in her behalf by relatives and friends.

She had a shawl over her head as she left the hospital. Her thin figure, racked by an overdose of a sedative self-administered since the night of Oct. 21 when she drowned her children, appeared weak and frail.

The trip to the jail was delayed an hour and a half while Dr. Scott examined her mentally and physically.

"This is a terrible case," he said, "more so if she is sane than if she is insane."

Stench Bomb in Theater.

A two-ounce stench bomb was exploded early yesterday in the lobby of the Merry Widow Theater, 1435 Chouteau avenue. The theater, which employs non-union motion picture operators and has been picketed by the Motion Picture Operators' Union for a year, has been stench-bombed seven times during that period.

Child Study Lectures.

Miss Mabel Lawrence Evans will give a series of four lectures before the Child Study Group organized by Mrs. Hugh Layton of Ferguson. The lectures will be given at the Presbyterian Church on alternate Wednesday afternoons beginning this week. The subjects of the lectures will be: "Psychopathic Patterns in Parents"; "Shall We Work for Obedience or Co-Operation in Our Children?" "Why Children Fail in School"; "On Being Popular With Your Children."

has no right to be human or honest.

The ultimate success or failure of his reign depended on the degree of his niceness. The over-nice ones were invariably thrown down, and sometimes shot; the moderately nice ones learned their lesson and stuck. And while the text-book on the art of pleasing the masses is yet to be written, it is certain that no "sweet" man ever made a successful emperor.

This is as it should be. A ruler, if he wants to be a ruler not in name only, must be ruthless. Not an ideal husband, not a loving father, not a fancier of flowers, not a modern edition of Marcus Aurelius, not a noble exponent of the principles of enlightened absolutism.

The "Hidden Talents."

He must be a cunning tactician capable of out-smarting the biggest cheats among his ministers and not ashamed to draw on the vast deposits of hatred and jingoism when no other course is open for quick and decisive action. But, above all, a ruler must eschew his "hidden talents." Many a kingdom collapsed just because its crowned head was put to sleep by the soothing melody of his "violon d'Ingres."

I have the former Kaiser in mind. Now that he hibernates at Doorn and does his frowning in the rotogravure sections of the Sunday papers, it has become quite fashionable to question his administrative abilities and consider him a chump. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The Kaiser would be still reviewing his adoring troops in Potsdam had it not been for his sincerity and the wealth of his "hidden talents." He was a great orator, a super-architect, a warrior, extraordinary — and his speeches left Germany without a friend in the world. His artistic aspirations were responsible for the monstrosity of the Siegesallee, and his experiments in strategy backed by those of his trusted friend Von Kluck immortalized Papa Joffre and saved Paris in the fall of 1914.

Whether he was "nice" or not depends on one's conception of niceness, but human he was, altogether too human. He raved like an unrecognized genius. He threw scenes like an aging prima donna. He paraded his various idiosyncrasies as only an exhibitionist poet would.

Charm of Eccentricity.

His was the charm of utter eccentricity, and when one saw him at 7 o'clock of a spring morning, jumping out of his shining victoria in front of the Hotel Adlon and testing the cleanliness of the sidewalk with a white-gloved finger, one felt genuinely touched and wished this overgrown boy would definitely choose between the job of sanitary inspector of Berlin and that of emperor of Germany.

Like all persons of overwhelming sincerity, he indulged in emotional luxuries which no sovereign could afford. His animosity against England, his perennial desire to grab the British by the throat, were fed not by his envy of the power of their overseas empire, but by purely personal hatred for his London uncle.

It is terrifying to think that the World War could have been postponed for at least another generation and millions of lives saved had the Kaiser been willing in his dealings with Great Britain to overlook his memories of King Edward VII!

WHAT A GRAND DUKE THINKS OF ROYALTY

Alexander of Russia Finds Ex-Kaiser Was Far From a "Chump," but "Too Human"—How Rulers' Wives Have Destroyed Thrones.

By GRAND DUKE ALEXANDER OF RUSSIA,
Brother-in-law of the Late Czar Nicholas II of Russia and Author of "Once a Grand Duke."

AS a profession, royalty has always lacked professional education. Not unless an heir apparent came to the throne quite late in life—as happened in the case of both King Edward VII and King George V—did he know anything at all about the business of ruling. Brought up and educated by a coterie of pious bishops, iron-headed generals and grandiloquent professors, an average crown prince was obliged to discover for himself the all-important fact that a sovereign has no right to be human or honest.

The ultimate success or failure of his reign depended on the degree of his niceness. The overnice ones were invariably thrown down, and sometimes shot; the moderately nice ones learned their lesson and stuck. And while the text-book on the art of pleasing the masses is yet to be written, it is certain that no "sweet" man ever made a successful emperor.

This is as it should be. A ruler, if he wants to be a ruler not in name only, must be ruthless. Not an ideal husband, not a loving father, not a fancier of flowers, not a modern edition of Marcus Aurelius, not a noble exponent of the principles of enlightened absolutism.

The "Hidden Talents."

He must be a cunning tactician capable of out-smarting the biggest cheats among his ministers and not ashamed to draw on the vast deposits of hatred and jingoism when no other course is open for quick and decisive action. But, above all, a ruler must eschew his "hidden talents." Many a kingdom collapsed just because its crowned head was put to sleep by the soothing melody of his "violon d'Ingres."

I have the former Kaiser in mind. Now that he hibernates at Doorn and does his frowning in the rotogravure sections of the Sunday papers, it has become quite fashionable to question his administrative abilities and consider him a chump. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The Kaiser would be still reviewing his adoring troops in Potsdam had it not been for his sincerity and the wealth of his "hidden talents." He was a great orator, a super-architect, a warrior, extraordinary — and his speeches left Germany without a friend in the world. His artistic aspirations were responsible for the monstrosity of the Siegesallee, and his experiments in strategy backed by those of his trusted friend Von Kluck immortalized Papa Joffre and saved Paris in the fall of 1914.

Whether he was "nice" or not depends on one's conception of niceness, but human he was, altogether too human. He raved like an unrecognized genius. He threw scenes like an aging prima donna. He paraded his various idiosyncrasies as only an exhibitionist poet would.

Charm of Eccentricity.

His was the charm of utter eccentricity, and when one saw him at 7 o'clock of a spring morning, jumping out of his shining victoria in front of the Hotel Adlon and testing the cleanliness of the sidewalk with a white-gloved finger, one felt genuinely touched and wished this overgrown boy would definitely choose between the job of sanitary inspector of Berlin and that of emperor of Germany.

Like all persons of overwhelming sincerity, he indulged in emotional luxuries which no sovereign could afford. His animosity against England, his perennial desire to grab the British by the throat, were fed not by his envy of the power of their overseas empire, but by purely personal hatred for his London uncle.

It is terrifying to think that the World War could have been postponed for at least another generation and millions of lives saved had the Kaiser been willing in his dealings with Great Britain to overlook his memories of King Edward VII!

He hated all that pertained to King Edward — "Uncle Bertie." His jovial face. ("What is he grinning about?") His massive shaking shoulders. "Just like an old woman . . ." His mistress and his friend, Sir Thomas Lipton. ("A King, a paramour and a grocer! What a trio!") His popularity with the Parisians. ("Shaking hands with those republican swine!") His fondness for beautiful women. ("Someone ought to tell him he is a grandfather") . . . He hated, passionately and unreservedly even the side-crease of his uncle's trousers. ("It would be still more original if he walked around in drawers.")

Attempt to Be Human.

Anyone else of lesser sincerity placed in the Kaiser's position would have managed to draw a line between the more than two hundred pounds of King Edward and the 440 million subjects of the British Empire; but drawing lines was not the gift of the Orator of Potsdam.

Nothing is more human than hatred, and the Kaiser persisted in his determination to remain human until the very end. His quarrel with King Edward, his dismissal of Bismarck and his declaration of the submarine war—these are the three fatal mistakes of his reign and these are precisely the three things in his life he enjoyed most. A ward-politician would have known better, but then royalty ARE people.

Next to hatred, love is responsible for the heaviest casualties among royalty. Love for their wives much more so than love for their mistresses. The latter demanded money and jewelry, the former helped to destroy the thrones.

A Pompadour bled her royal lover white, but a Marie Antoinette led her husband to the scaffold. A Gaby Deslys did her intriguing against courtiers and playwrights, but an Empress Eugenie went after emperors and kings.

No major country has ever gone bankrupt because of its philandering sovereign, but the most appalling debacle of the twentieth century was brought about by the love and devotion of an emperor for his consort. The Russia of 1894-1917 could have easily footed the bill of an extravagant imperial paramour but it so happened that the last Czar was an ideal husband.

Toleration of Wives.

Flippant as this assertion may sound, all really great sovereigns of Europe merely tolerated their wives. They knew they had to marry, they realized they had to assure the continuation of their dynasty, but they never discussed affairs of state with the mothers of their children or permitted their consorts to interfere with their decisions.

Peter the Great imprisoned his first wife in a convent just because she attempted to organize her own "party," and Catherine the Great disclosed her extreme cunning in the way she dismissed a particular lover the moment he tried to tell her how she should deal with this or that problem of importance.

I am not talking from hearsay. I have spent many an hour in the archives of our family reading the secret diaries of both Peter the Great and Catherine the Great, and, at the luncheon table of my late father-in-law, Emperor Alexander III, I had many an occasion to see for myself how even the shrewdest of rulers falls a victim to the influence exercised by his loving and beloved wife. A Danish Princess, Empress Marie, could never forgive Wilhelm I and Bismarck the humiliation caused her native country in the war of 1866.

"Germany must be punished! Russia must make an alliance with France! . . ." Coming from that diminutive woman of self-effacing sweetness, this sounded like a prayer. Her husband blinked and sighed. It would have been a real waste of time to try to explain to the Empress that her subjects liked the Germans and distrusted the French and that not one in a million of Russian peasants cared a rap about Denmark or the injustice suffered by that country in 1866.

"Germany must be punished." She never stopped repeating it. She said it at the rate of three times a week for 22 consecutive years. She was boring her husband from within, using every conceivable means to make him see her "point" and understand that his German cousin was a traitor and a brute.

I confess that I admired her courage. The Emperor stood 6 feet 2 in his stocking feet and was never known for the mildness of his temper. Had anyone else dared to tell him what to do he would have probably committed manslaughter.

Each time I heard my mother-in-law broach that fatal German subject I was prepared to witness a formidable scene. On a few occasions the Emperor did get up from the table, once even, seizing a huge silver fork, he bent it into a knot, but that was all.

Unfortunately for him, for Russia and the world; he was deeply in love with his wife and his desire to make her happy must have obscured his view and interfered with the workings of his mind.

I know of no other reason why a man as far-sighted and as practical as my father-in-law should have sanctioned our treaty of alliance with France.

The Debacle of 1917.

Not much need be said about the fatal part played by another Russian Empress, the last Czarina, in the debacle of 1917. It is a simple matter of record that in the crucial days of his life, facing the certainty of a revolution in the rear of his enemies and the danger of defeat at the front, Czar Nicholas II chose to ignore the warnings of his advisers and followed the hysterical promptings of his wife until the very end.

Hers was a case for Siegmund Freud and, while no one has the right to throw stones at a woman who had lost her mind because of the illness of her son, the historians will deal harshly with my late brother-in-law.

They will never forgive him the underlying reasons of his abdication, for the desire to spend one's life "just with wife and children" is middle-class at best, a virtue laudable in a grocer, but utterly ridiculous in a ruler.

What will there be left of the whole idea of monarchism if the fulfillment of a sovereign's oath to uphold the throne of his ancestors is made contingent on his love for wife and children?

Says Theodore Roosevelt Advised Japan To Promulgate a Monroe Doctrine Of Its Own to Cover Eastern Asia

Viscount Kaneko Tells of 1905 Conversation at Oyster Bay — Quotes Late President As Asserting That in the Orient Only Japan Understands the Principles and Methods of Western Civilization.

After a lapse of 27 years Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, member of the Privy Council of Japan, makes the assertion that in 1905 President Theodore Roosevelt outlined and recommended to him privately a "Japanese Monroe Doctrine" in Asia. At that time Kaneko was here as an important figure in the peace negotiations that terminated the Russo-Japanese war.

Viscount Kaneko's account of the views expressed to him by President Roosevelt is contained in an article in the September issue of "Contemporary Japan," recently published in Tokio and reprinted herewith by special permission. So far as can be ascertained, Roosevelt never made any public presentation of the views attributed to him by Viscount Kaneko.

By Viscount Kentaro Kaneko,
H. I. Majesty's Privy Councillor.

VISCOUNT KENTARO KANEKO.

In the early summer of 1905, after President Roosevelt's mediation for a peace conference had been accepted by Russia and Japan, I was invited to lunch at the White House. We talked about the forthcoming conference and discussed many preliminary questions.

Afterward our conversation turned to more personal things. The President said that the style and dignity which his position required him to keep up at the White House gave his guests little knowledge of his family and his personality, and he invited me to be his guest in a less formal way at Oyster Bay. On July 7, after the President had moved to his summer home, I went to Sagamore Hill to spend the night and the following day.

At 10 o'clock Mrs. Roosevelt retired after extinguishing the lamp on the table, and the President and I went to his study, where we discussed the forthcoming peace negotiations at Portsmouth, N. H. The President expressed his opinions freely and asked me to cable them to our Government in Tokio.

A Talk on Porch.

Next morning, after breakfast, sitting on the piazza, the President and I discussed many problems of the "after war" policy of Asia, among them a "Japanese Monroe Doctrine" in Asia which he strongly advised.

And now, when Japan's policies in Asia are causing anxiety and even alarm to other Powers, I venture to believe that the time has come when President Roosevelt's far-reaching views may usefully be given to the world. However, I do not at this distance of time pretend to repeat the exact words of our conversation, which took place nearly 28 years ago but its substance made such an ineffaceable impression upon my mind as can never be forgotten as long as I live.

"Japan is the only nation in Asia," said the President, "which understands the principles and methods of Western civilization. She has proved that she can assimilate Western civilization, yet not break up her own heritage. All the Asiatic nations are now faced with the urgent necessity of adjusting themselves to the present age.

"Japan should be their natural leader in that process, and their protector during the transition stage, much as the United States assumed the leadership of the American continent many years ago, and by means of the Monroe doctrine preserved the Latin American nations from European interference while they were maturing their independence.

"If President Monroe had never enunciated the doctrine which bears his name, the growth of the independent South American Republics would have been interfered with by influences foreign to this continent. The future policy of Japan towards Asiatic countries should be similar to that of the United States towards their neighbors on the American continent.

"A 'Japanese Monroe Doctrine' in Asia will remove the temptation to European encroachment, and Japan will be recognized as the leader of the Asiatic nations, and her power will form the shield behind which they can reorganize their national systems."

When I asked the President how far he thought this "Japanese Monroe Doctrine" should extend, he replied that the sphere of the "Japanese Monroe Doctrine" should include the whole continent of Asia—east of Suez Canal as far as west of Kamchatka—except India, Annam, the Philippines, Hongkong and other European and American colonies. At the same time Japan would observe the American policy of the "open door and equal opportunity" in China.

"If Japan will proclaim such an Asiatic Monroe Doctrine after the peace of Portsmouth," continued the President, "I will support her with all my power, either during my presidency or after its expiration."

This opinion he expressed as clearly and forcibly as possible.

Gratified by Words.

I was much surprised at the President's frankness, and, I need not say, inexpressibly gratified to find that in this powerful statesman Japan has so stanch a friend. This was the first occasion on which I heard any public man in America or Europe speak of a "Japanese Monroe Doctrine."

This opinion of the President, with many other matters which we discussed, I reported to our Government by cipher telegram on July 11, 1905.

His foresight was again shown in relation to the decisive step which assured Japan's future in Manchuria. Peace between Japan and Russia was signed on Aug. 23, 1905. All the world, and particularly America, rejoiced.

On Sept. 10, 1905, after the Peace Treaty was signed, on the eve of my departure for Japan, President Roosevelt invited me to Sagamore Hill to a farewell luncheon with his family. I spent half a day with them. During our conversation, I said to the President:

"You will remember that last July, when I stayed at your house, you advised our Government to proclaim a 'Japanese Monroe doctrine' for Asia. Now I want to ask you, if on my return to Tokio I may report your advice to the Emperor and his Ministers, and let our Government prepare and establish our Asiatic policy in accordance to your view, because your advice is of great importance to Japan."

Views Withheld.

The President answered:

"I have no objection to your reporting to the Emperor and his Ministers confidentially, but I ask you not to make my views public while I am President, because I will announce to the world at some suitable opportunity, after my term of office has expired. When I decide to make it public I will send a cable authorizing you to do the same. So we can simultaneously publish it, you in Japan and I in America."

Thereupon I said:

"Today, if your view is made public, the world and especially the people of America, will be taken by surprise. But in future, should you decide, I will proclaim your magnanimous view on the Japanese Asiatic policy, and will explain to the Japanese and endeavor to have it realized in my power."

On my return home, when I had an audience, I reported to the Emperor, who commanded me to present a written report.

When President Roosevelt completed his term, he went to shoot big game in Central Africa. Then he re-entered American politics in the movement to form the Progressive Party. The six years between his retirement and the World War were full of striking events in which Colonel Roosevelt played a part, and Japan's relations with her neighboring countries in Asia were relatively unimportant.

No Occasion Arose.

No occasion arose to prompt the publication of the opinion which President Roosevelt had uttered in our talk at Sagamore Hill. And now when Japan's policy in Manchuria is much criticized by foreign Powers, it is a matter of the greatest regret to me and to Japan that he died unexpectedly without having uttered in public speech his views on a "Japanese Monroe Doctrine" in Asia.

This opinion, held by one of the greatest statesmen of our time, would have been of high importance had he lived to announce it himself at the present moment, when Manchuria is once more a burning international question. As his old friend and lifelong admirer, I cannot withhold his far-reaching view, and now give it to the world, as my sincere tribute to the memory of the world-renowned American statesman and a great benefactor to Japan in her struggle against Russia for national existence.

When Was Gold Standard in Danger? Period Referred to by President Evidently Was Last February

Records of White House Conferences and Senate Debate on Glass-Steagall Bill Support This Conclusion.

By Charles G. Ross,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.

WHETHER the United States at some time during the financial panic in the first six months of this year was in imminent danger of being forced off the gold standard is, and probably will remain, a matter of opinion. But it is possible, from authoritative sources, to identify the period that the President had in mind when he said at Des Moines that "at one moment" he had been informed by his Secretary of the Treasury that unless some remedy could be put into effect, the United States could hold to the gold standard only two weeks longer.

The context of the President's remarks on this subject at Des Moines, as well as that of subsequent speeches in which he has referred to the menacing effects of foreign gold withdrawals and domestic hoarding, points clearly to early February as the critical two-week period of which he spoke. Information obtained by the Post-Dispatch confirms this conclusion.

This is not to say that early February was, in fact, the most dangerous period in our financial difficulties, or that it is so regarded in retrospect by the Treasury. There is sound authority for the statement that the peak of the crisis, in the administration view, came in June, when the country was threatened with a new and disastrous wave of bank failures. Quite possibly, the magnitude of the danger at that time is now being overstated for obvious political purposes. One cannot talk with responsible and informed officials of the administration, however, without getting the impression that their fears in June for the financial stability of the United States, whether or not those fears were justified and whether or not they are now being exaggerated, were very real.

The Dawes Bank Loan.

Of these fears, one of the greatest was for the safety of Charles G. Dawes' bank in Chicago. When if ever, the whole inside story of the administration's anti-depression measures comes to be written, an interesting chapter may be made of a Sunday afternoon meeting in Washington when it was decided that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation should lend $80,000,000 to the Dawes bank.

It is now being said by the Republican campaigners that the threatening state of affairs in June was due primarily to the fears created throughout the country by the "destructive" Democratic program in the House of Representatives. Any diagnosis of that sort needs, of course, to be heavily discounted. There can be no doubt, however, that unfavorable credit conditions in June, whatever their cause, brought grave alarm to those in charge of the Government—perhaps even graver than the alarm which, communicated to the leaders of Congress, resulted in the February passage of the Glass-Steagall Act.

Nevertheless, the weight of the available evidence is that the President at Des Moines was talking about the situation in February. Senator Watson of Indiana, the leader of the Republicans in the Senate, has placed the critical period in that month, and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, another in the confidence of the administration, has said it was well known that the United States was on the verge of going off the gold standard last winter.

What President Said.

These statements as to the time of which the President spoke are borne out by his remarks at Des Moines. In the same paragraph in which he mentioned the two-week margin by which, as he said, we escaped financial disaster, he called attention to the "enormous sums of gold and exchange drained from us by foreigners" and to the additional adverse effects of domestic hoarding.

"You will realize also," he said, "that our citizens who hoard Federal Reserve and some other forms of currency are in effect hoarding gold, because under the law we must maintain 40 per cent gold reserve behind such currency. Owing to the lack in the Federal Reserve System of the kind of securities required by the law for the additional 60 per cent of coverage of the currency, the Reserve System was forced to increase its gold reserve up to 75 per cent. Thus with $1,500,000,000 hoarded currency, there was in effect over $1,000,000,000 of gold hoarded by our own citizens."

Then followed, without a break, his statement that owing to these drains the amount of gold we could spare for current payments at home and abroad had been reduced to a point where, failing a remedy, we could hold to the gold standard for only two weeks longer.

It is not the purpose here to choose between the President's version of our financial troubles and the statements by Senator Glass and others that he is now, for political purposes, magnifying past dangers. The purpose is simply to note, for the record, the inescapable conclusion from the context of his Des Moines speech that he was speaking of a crisis in February.

Glass-Steagall Act.

The condition which he cited as requiring a remedy, namely, the inflexibility of the Federal Reserve Act with respect to reserves behind currency, was precisely the condition cured by the Glass-Steagall Act, and the Glass-Steagall Act was passed in February in response to presentations made by the President and other administrative officials at a memorable White House conference attended by congressional leaders of both parties.

There is dispute now as to the character of these representations—whether or not they pictured the then existing financial plight of the country in the dark colors now being used by the President and Secretary Mills in their campaign speeches. Senator Glass, who attended the conference and subsequently became the leader in putting the remedial measure bearing his name through Congress, says he was given no intimation that the gold standard was in jeopardy. Senator Watson, who was also at the meeting, says the President and other officials "urged the great gravity of the situation" and the necessity for immediate enactment of legislation" to enable them to prevent imminent jeopardy to the gold standard in the United States."

Whatever may be the exact facts regarding the extent of the pictured danger to the gold standard, the White House conference had a persuasive effect on Glass and his colleagues. Senator Glass laid aside, for the time being, some of his long-held convictions against any broadening of the rediscount base of the Federal Reserve System and, in the language of Senator Watson, "patriotically agreed to proceed with the increased authority asked for." "They are all, says Watson, "very happy over his (Senator Glass') patriotic attitude."

Glass' Speech in Senate.

The memory of the writer runs back to the day when Senator Glass arose in his place in the Senate and explained why he was supporting the various emergency provisions which had been put together under the name of the Glass-Steagall bill.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

The Election

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WOULD like to speak a kind word for our fellow townsman, Henry W. Kiel, and the policies that he represents. He has stated plainly and convincingly his stand on prohibition and beer, on the bonus question and on wage-cutting. I think every working man in the State owes Mr. Kiel a debt, and I am going to pay mine Nov. 8. R. M. HILL.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I DO not like the name "Winter." It calls for a cold, shivery feeling and stings the ears, nose, fingers and toes. But "Park" is a source of enjoyment.

A. VOTER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE is no doubt that the State Government would suffer were Boss Pendergast to have his sticky fingers pulling strings in Jefferson City for the sake of "jobs for the boys," as well as fat contracts for himself. And there is little less doubt that St. Louis would suffer a return to the old Butler Indian days were he in position to dictate our local police and election boards.

M. L. R.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHAT we have suffered in the last three and a half years is a fair example of what we can expect in the next four, in the event of Mr. Hoover's reelection. W. J. SHEA.

Collinsville, Ill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS I understand Henry Ford's plea, industry needs four more years of Hoover because industry has had four years of Hoover. In medicine, a large overdose of poison will counteract the effects of a small overdose, but I was not aware that Ford had added the accomplishments of a physician to his attainments as historian, litterateur, economist and diagnostician of what the country needs. J. D. H.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

O, YE Hoovers and ye Mellons
O, ye men who hate reform,
Don't you hear the distant thunder,
Don't you see the coming storm?

C. S. SCHNEIDER.

Paxton, Ill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PRESIDENT HOOVER will be recorded in history as the last great witch doctor. It seems a long cry from Jeremiah and Balaam to Mr. Hoover, but it is very doubtful that either of those ancients ever played upon the ignorance of a people with more skill than Mr. Hoover did at Des Moines.

T. E. TEDLOCK.

Skiatook, Ok.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HENRY FORD is a wow at making cars, but he is a bow-wow at political speaking. L. M. W.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE been riding the Republican ship of state for 40 years and am now 62 years old. Our leaders started this ship across the ocean to London about three years ago. It struck a leak and has been sinking ever since. Now I am going to jump overboard and try to swim ashore. I will vote the Socialist ticket as a protest, for once in my life.

A. B. DOWELL.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOOVER: Hunger, hooey and hokum.
Roosevelt: Reflation, repeal, relief.

PHIL A. REILLY.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUNG men of this country, your forefathers fought for their liberty and we shall do the same, not with swords of steel, but with ballots on election day. Go to the polls and insure your future happiness by voting for Norman Thomas. C. STEVENS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE been reading your editorials about the Kansas City machine, but have not read a single one about the rotten Republican machine of St. Louis, the rottenest in the State or, for that matter, in the United States. We in rural Missouri are all for Judge Park for Governor. J. S. P.

Green City, Mo.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN this time of greatest stress and trial for some of us, we are comforted on all sides with the news: "Prices are going up!" What puzzles me is how prosperity can be restored by raising prices and reducing incomes.

HARD PRESSED.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM astonished not to hear from some Democratic source that Mr. Hoover is responsible for the jobless riots in Belfast, Ireland, and London, England. It would be running true to form for the Democrats to make such a charge.

LEWIS A. STONE.

Swampscott, Mass.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN the coming election, we have a physician and a layman as opposing candidates for the office of Coroner. It seems to me that selecting a layman for Coroner would be about the same as selecting a layman for Judge of one of our courts. MRS. G. G.

Gov. Roosevelt and the Cry of Radicalism

In a last desperate effort to save the election, the Republican leaders are raising the cry of radicalism.

In Boston, Representative James M. Beck characterizes Gov. Roosevelt as "a demagogue, more dangerous than William Jennings Bryan." He declares that with his election "the forces of radicalism will have triumphed and the result will be to convert this proud Republic into an imitation of the Soviet regime in Moscow."

In Cincinnati, Secretary Mills professes to fear that the Governor seeks currency inflation, price manipulation, the guarantee of bank deposits and payment of the bonus.

In speech after speech, President Hoover views with alarm the flood of imports with which the Democrats will inundate our workers, and from Washington the Republican National Committee denounces the economists' criticism of the Hawley-Smoot tariff as "a purely political propaganda movement originated by Socialists and radicals whose support in this campaign has been invited and welcomed so enthusiastically by Franklin D. Roosevelt."

In Detroit, Henry Ford directs his employes to vote for Hoover, and in Philadelphia the John Wanamaker store, not to be outdone, prints an advertisement imploring "all merchants, manufacturers, mill owners, wage earners, heads of families, protecting their dependents, to join in safeguarding our country from outside attacks aimed at the destruction of our American institutions and the dissipation of our national finances."

Republican campaign speeches have gradually come to follow the same formula. Today, they are a machine product as standardized as the Ford car. First come the paragraphs which deplore the depression, blame it on Europe and absolve the administration of all responsibility. Then come the paragraphs which outline the achievements of the administration, a list which includes many measures which were enacted by Democratic votes, organizations which are being administered by Democratic executives, steps which the President long opposed and in which he tardily and reluctantly acquiesced, and other items the wisdom of which is still to be proved. Then follows the hair-raising recital of the sins of the Democratic House of Representatives, made up of a number of proposals which never became law, many of them passed by Republican votes, some of them less terrifying than we are given to suppose.

All of which is offered to prove the thesis that the Democrats in Congress delayed recovery; that prospect of a Democratic victory in November further delays recovery; that the Democrats are dangerous, ignorant and unsound and will keep us in a depression from which superior Republican wisdom is already releasing us.

It is pretty obvious that business has not been much impressed by this attempt to panic the country into voting for Hoover. The betting on Wall Street shows that financial center expects Gov. Roosevelt to be elected. The simultaneous recovery of the business index and security prices demonstrates that business feels that it has nothing to fear from this result. Nor is it difficult to see why this is true. For one can go over the addresses delivered by Gov. Roosevelt during this campaign with a fine-tooth comb without discovering a shred of evidence to support the thesis of Democratic radicalism.

Gov. Roosevelt has made a telling attack upon the administration's record. But he has proposed no sweeping or fundamental reforms. He has denounced the Grundy tariff, but he does not propose to repeal it. Rather, he promises to content himself with the slow process of negotiating reciprocal trade treaties with the several nations of the world. He has assailed the administration's fiscal record, but he has proposed only to block the bonus, to reduce expenditures and to place a tax on beer. He has denounced the administration for complicity in the speculative excesses of the boom period. But the policy which he proposes in its place is mild enough. He will not permit public officials to give tips on the stock market. He will put an end to governmental approval of foreign loans. He will prevent the use of Federal Reserve credit for security speculation. He will control holding companies selling securities in interstate commerce. He will promote corporate publicity. He will separate investment and commercial banking. He will supervise banks more rigidly. Certainly this falls somewhat short of Communism.

Indeed, the concrete proposals of Gov. Roosevelt and Mr. Hoover have much in common. Both ban the bonus. Both promise a reduction of Federal expenditures. Both would put an end to the stabilization activities of the Farm Board. Both would lighten the burden of farm mortgages. Both would collect the war debts. Both would reorganize the Federal Land Banks. Both would limit public works to projects of a self-liquidating nature. Both would use Federal funds to prevent starvation. Both would regulate the interstate transmission of electricity. Both have declared for more rigid supervision of banks.

It is true that Gov. Roosevelt's position on two issues—power and unemployment—is in advance of Mr. Hoover's. But when he approves unemployment insurance, old age pensions and a later school-leaving age, he is talking about state, not about Federal, matters. His declaration for the regulation of holding companies in the power industry and for the public generation of electrical energy at Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals, Columbia River and the St. Lawrence is heartening. But he opposes public transmission of the energy so generated and insists that private ownership and operation must be the guiding principle in power policy.

This is something less than Socialism. The Governor's railway speech, an exceedingly able performance, proposed Federal regulation of competitive bus and truck services, abandonment of wasteful competition, elimination of unprofitable mileage, and control of the manipulative activities of railway holding companies—a sound program, but one which is thoroughly acceptable to responsible leaders in the industry.

Gov. Roosevelt stands a step to the left of Mr. Hoover. But that still leaves him a good day's journey from anything which can honestly be described as radicalism. He has warned business that economic power is a public trust; that the state must guard against its abuse. But he has not proposed to socialize economic power. His regulatory program is that of an enlightened conservative. His attitude toward social legislation is similarly intelligently moderate.

The attempt to make Gov. Roosevelt out a Red is an abject failure. None of his proposals threatens the permanence of private property. Nowhere has he preached economic revolution; advocated fundamental change. Conservatives, liberals and progressives can and doubtless will vote for him. Radicals will have to turn to Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate, or W. Z. Foster, Communist candidate.

An Injustice to Mr. Hoover

We believe that Senator Cutting of New Mexico, in his Denver speech, did Mr. Hoover a great injustice when he said:

> In the last days of the 1930 session, the great humanitarian vetoed the Rankin bill, which I have no hesitation in calling the most just and most equitable measure for disabled veterans ever passed by Congress. As a substitute, he forced through both houses a law granting compensation to veterans for injuries unconnected with the service.

This statement gives a wholly false view of the 1930 legislation. Mr. Hoover did veto the Rankin bill and he did force a substitute through both houses, but a study of the two bills leads inevitably to the conclusion that Mr. Hoover's bill was superior in several respects.

Both bills were bad because they admitted to the public crib veterans whose disabilities have no connection with war service. The temper of Congress at the time was such that Mr. Hoover could not have prevented such legislation from passing. It surely would have passed over his veto. He, therefore, adopted the course of tempering the evil as best he could.

He vetoed the Rankin bill because it was a radical departure from our policy of pensioning World War veterans whose disabilities arise from civil life; because it singled out 75,000 to 100,000 such men out of 380,000 possible civil life disability cases; because, under it, a man who had served a few days in the army would receive aid on the same basis as a man who had fought in the Argonne; because it could have resulted in paying larger pensions for civil life disabilities than are paid to men wounded at the front; because the bill contained no safeguard against men of independent means claiming benefits for civil life disabilities, and for various other cogent reasons.

Whereas, the first-year cost of the Rankin bill would have been $110,000,000, the first-year cost of the Hoover bill was estimated at less than half that sum; the latter bill excludes men who pay an income tax; it restricts the pensions to modest sums ranging from $12 a month for 25 per cent disability to a maximum of $40 a month for total disability; it made ineligible all veterans who had served less than 90 days; in its final form, it was free of such ridiculous provisions as one attached by the Senate that the country should pay pensions to men suffering from social diseases incurred during the war.

Mr. Hoover can be criticised for putting his pen to any legislation by which men are permitted to draw doles from the Federal Treasury, as veterans, when they came unscathed from war service. But to give out the impression that the Rankin bill was better than the one he signed is to engage in that kind of flubdub too common in the heat of campaigns.

An Argument for Political Opposition.

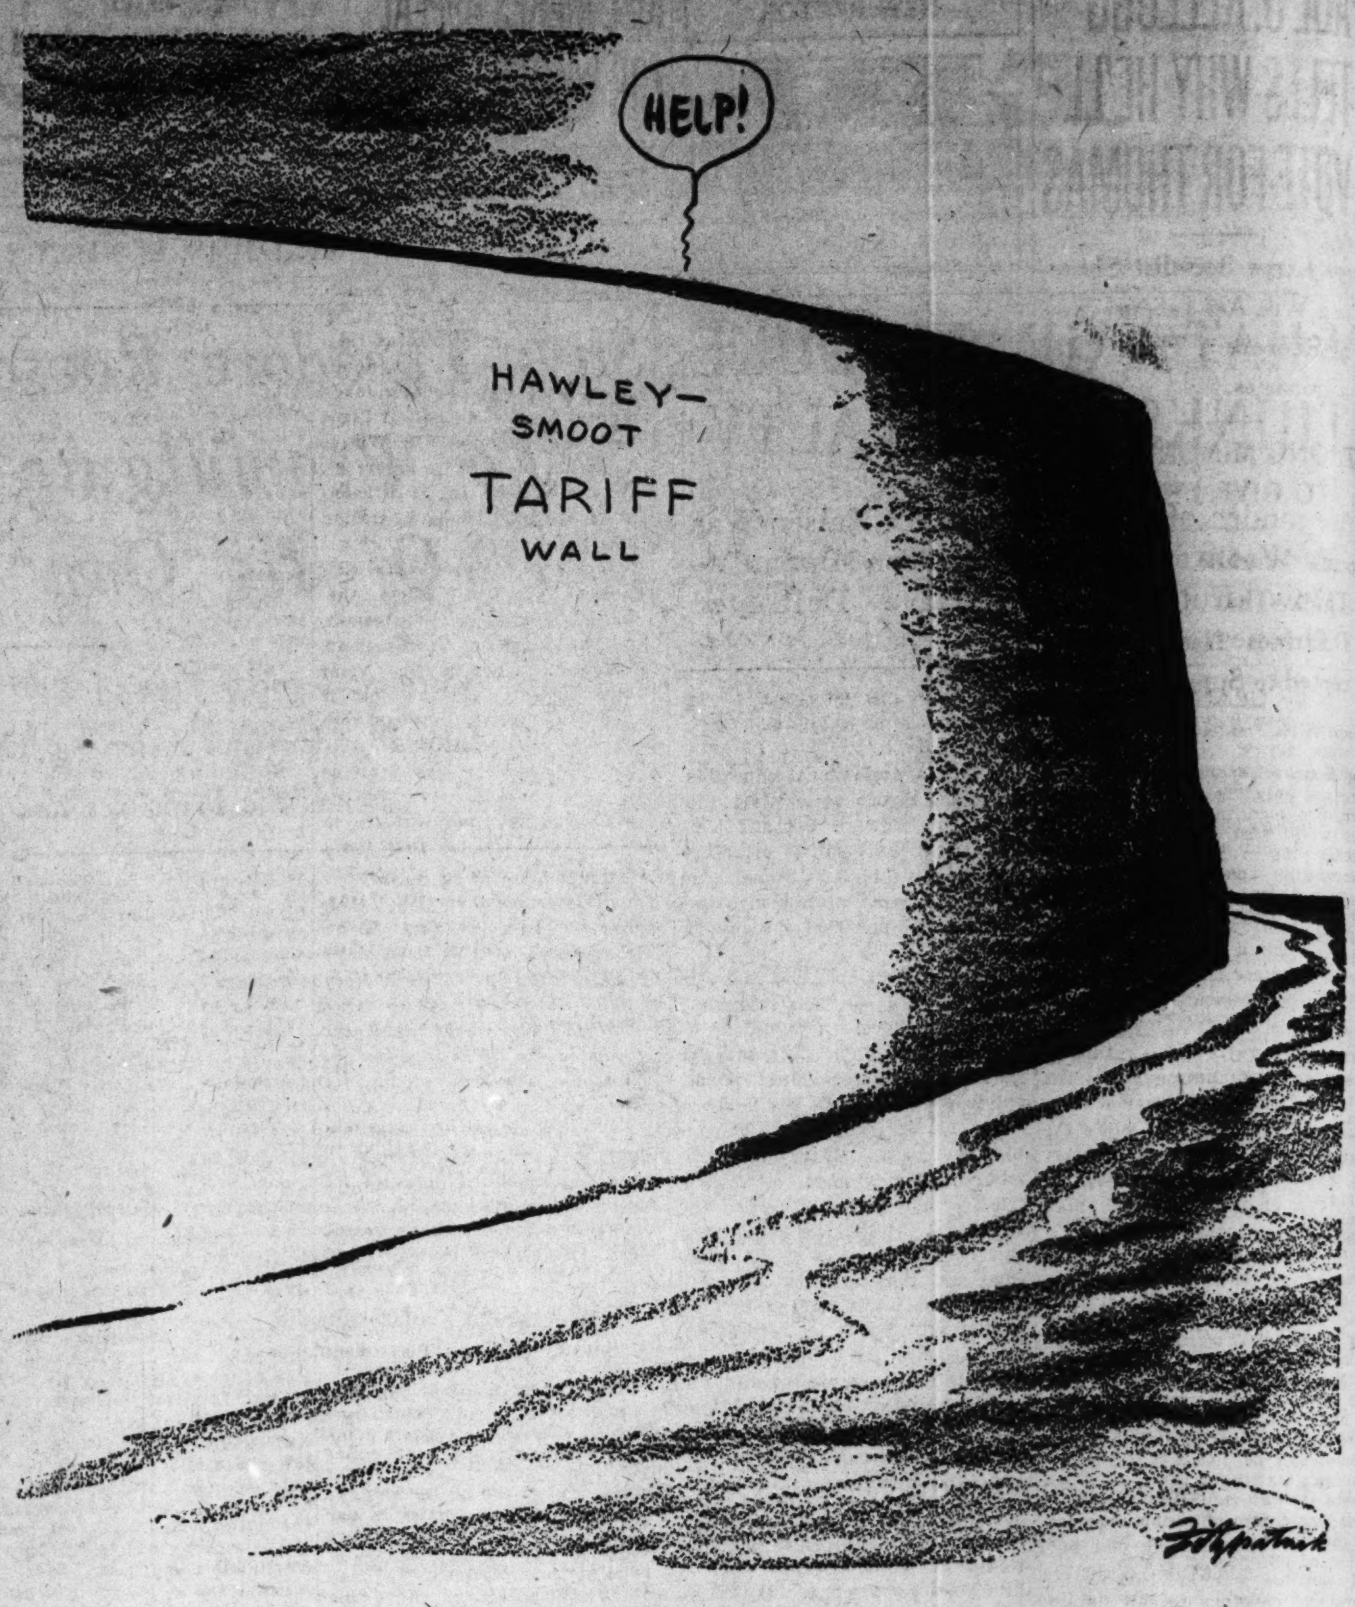
Of the many reasons for the Democratic drift this year, there is one which, while not bulking large in the minds of the voters, yet is of incontestable validity. We refer to the need of keeping intact a strong minority party in the United States, whose function is to examine, criticise and challenge the majority party's leadership and, at times, take the reins itself. In England, the party or parties ranged against the party in power are officially recognized as "His Majesty's opposition." If the Republicans, despite all indications, should win again this year after 12 years of control of the national government, a blow would be dealt to the Democratic party from which it could hardly recover.

As it is constituted at present, we do not think the death of the party, per se, would be a calamity. It would be so only because there is nothing else to take its place. Unlike in Great Britain and many Continental countries, the Socialists have never been able to make much headway in the United States. In the last national election, they polled less than 300,000 votes, a miserable showing considering the length of time they have been in the field. It is expected this year that they will poll in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 votes, but these ballots in the main will be more expressive of discontent with the two major parties than approval of the Socialist program. In other words, if there were any actual danger of Norman Thomas' election, many of those who will vote for him in November would recoil sharply from his candidacy.

We reprint on this page today an interesting article from the Springfield Republican, stressing the disunion in the Republican party, and calling attention to the historical parallel of 1912, when the opposition party, profiting by Republican disunion, assumed power and made a matchless record of progressive legislation.

Our two-party system, certainly, is full of grievous faults. Each party contains mutually antagonistic elements, which are grouped together only because they wear the same labels. But a one-party system would be worse. It would be a step toward Fascism. A Republican victory in November would invite the establishment of a one-party system, and this tendency would be greatly augmented if the next four years should witness economic recovery. Another Republican victory in 1936, as reward for restoring prosperity, and what would meanwhile happen to the Democratic party, already disabled from numerous defeats and suffering the chronic disability that normally there are more Republicans than Democrats?

Another opposition party would form, of course, but it would probably take many years before it gathered power enough to challenge the dominant Republican leadership. With little or no check on its behavior, it is easy to imagine how that leadership would exercise itself. It is to prevent such an eventuality that many thoughtful Republicans, who are also believers in the two-party system, are going to vote the Democratic ticket Nov. 8.



THE FORGOTTEN MAN.

The Choice for President

Independent Springfield (Mass.) Republican, for Hoover in 1928, tells why it now decides to support Roosevelt; G. O. P. capacity to govern is exhausted, it says, and party is rent by dissension; Democrats will control Congress, and may be expected to achieve harmony; absence of great claims for nominee is considered helpful.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

TO the extent that the Republican is a public journal of independent opinion, it accepts its responsibility for changes of government in which measurably, more or less, it may have a hand. If Mr. Hoover goes out, Mr. Roosevelt comes in. The Republican will not attempt to dodge whatever degree of responsibility it might bear for Mr. Roosevelt's election by "declaring" for Norman Thomas or by urging anyone to vote for Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Thomas is unquestionably very attractive to many sorely troubled voters. Much in his platform is rationally progressive as well as idealistic. We do not find his economics convincing because his economics of Socialism is not practically adaptable to this country's immediate requirements. His more radical economic proposals, such as his recent proposal of a capital levy of some 50 billion dollars on the private wealth of this country, in order to lighten the tremendous burden of debt, are not within the range of practical statesmanship. The British Labor party had the capital levy in its program when it came into power, but the idea faded away amid the realities of government.

Yet a "protest vote" for Mr. Thomas, under present conditions, may be justified on other grounds than Socialism as a system. The Republican's own course must be pragmatically determined by its own responsibilities, and these dictate, now as in the past, a choice between the two presidential tickets upon one of which must necessarily fall the burden of office, of administration and of national leadership in the next presidential term.

This decision in favor of Gov. Roosevelt rather than either President Hoover or Mr. Thomas is dictated by the evidence converging from all sides in recent weeks and months as to the stark realities of the situation in the United States. As in 1912, when the Republican finally preferred for President the Democrat, Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, the Republican party today has largely exhausted its effectiveness as the chief instrument of government. How anyone, in the least detached from partisan interests, can fail to recognize this fact is a mystery.

The Republican party is now rent by no such organized division as it was in 1912, yet the unity of the party is split in several directions, notably in the open revolt against President Hoover's leadership and candidacy by conspicuous adherents of the Roosevelt cause 20 years ago. One has only to mention such names as Senators Johnson and Norris—who are on the stump against Mr. Hoover—also Borah and La Follette, to illustrate the present disorganisation of the Republican party. A conspicuous representative of the party's conservative wing, also, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, is obviously so far disaffected that he is saying nothing to promote Mr. Hoover's re-election.

It is unnecessary to rehearse facts repeatedly given great publicity demonstrating the present demoralization of the Republican party as an organization. In a number of important states, its local organization is shattered by quarrels, as in Illinois, where the Republican candidate for Governor is being bitterly fought by the Chicago Tribune and other Republican papers. We are merely viewing realistically the political situation in declaring that the Republican party is so stricken that its capacity for national government in the immediate future is seriously impaired.

This newspaper four years ago did what it could to give Mr. Hoover the support in Congress of united, strong majorities. They were at least elected, but what happened? Those majorities fell into disharmony and futility. Today no Republican majorities are even in sight for the next Congress, if Mr. Hoover should be re-elected. Mr. Hoover himself in his Detroit speech used language which revealed his own expectation that the next Congress will be Democratic. And this is what the chief political correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, the leading Republican paper of the Middle West, reported only last Sunday:

"While the events of the remaining fortnight will determine whether Mr. Hoover shall succeed in snatching victory from the jaws of defeat, it is already apparent that, whatever the outcome in the presidential contest, the next Congress, also elected Nov. 8, is destined to be Democratic in both branches, overwhelmingly so in the House and by a narrower margin in the Senate."

What does this mean but a Republican party so shattered that it cannot elect congressional majorities even if its candidate for President squeezes into office again by a small electoral college margin? We faced a similar situation and prospect in 1912; and now, as then, our best judgment is that the Democratic party is the sole practical alternative.

The Democratic party is far from being all that could be desired. As, in 1912-16, however, that party did achieve under the responsibility of power a cohesion, harmony and effectiveness that amazed a nation accustomed to the prolonged feuds of Bryanites and anti-Bryanites, so today we may hope that it will discharge fairly well its obligations as a party of government, if these should devolve upon it.

In 1912, our preference for Mr. Wilson for President did not require us to "desert" Mr. Taft, whom the Republican had supported in 1908 and, so far as it could, during his administration. And so now the Republican is not "deserting" Mr. Hoover, who, it believes, has practically exhausted his capacity to serve effectively as President. This fact is no more discreditable to Mr. Hoover than it was discreditable to Mr. Gladstone, after stormy years as Prime Minister, to reach a time when he no longer could command the support essential to successful political leadership as first Minister of the Crown. To regain the political favor and strength among the people necessary to carry on a government at all successfully, Mr. Hoover needs a period of retirement from office, precisely as so great a political leader as Mr. Gladstone needed it repeatedly in his long public career.

If to this realistic survey of the political situation which the United States evidently confronts today is added the several points of difference of view on important public questions between this paper and Mr. Hoover, there is but one course to pursue, in all honesty of opinion and judgment. With these differences goes a deep-seated feeling that to the national psychology or atmosphere which produced the speculative orgy of the stock market in 1927-29, and the enormous private investments in foreign bonds and new domestic securities of doubtful worth, as later events proved, the regime of which Mr. Hoover was a part and, because of his gospel of the millennium in 1928, became the symbol, did contribute. We do not hold Mr. Hoover responsible in a personal sense; yet he came to symbolize the system that crashed, and on that account a change in government is needed—granting cordially the value of his services in the work of salvage the past year or two.

For Gov. Roosevelt, no great claims are being made. The Republican will make none. And this reserve is fortunate, perhaps, if he is to become President. So much was claimed for Mr. Hoover four years ago that the popular notion of a "miracle man" in the White House became such a handicap as to be a source of fearful weakness in trying times of depression. Extraordinary expectations for the Governor of New York should not now be raised. He and his party will have their opportunity, in case he is elected. If, in 1936, they have failed, then the country will know better than it does now whence it is to travel from there and by what route.

The Debacle of Feminism

Mary R. Beard in Current History.

ONE of the important consequences of the depression is the disaster which has overtaken rugged American feminism. Just at the hour when it seemed that the women's program of equal rights was to be fully realized after a struggle of 80 years, the crisis came to leave the movement stranded.

American women have been accustomed to a high degree of personal privilege, and they are unprepared, both physically and mentally, to cope with financial calamity. Indeed, they appear to be more stunned than men, judging from the silence among them as to the means of recovery. Women had turned so far from the broad study of life in their effort to emulate the men in the immediate landscape that they failed to foresee that the equality which they coveted might eventually prove to be equality in disaster.

The very transfer in the ownership of wealth to women in recent years in America was in part their misfortune, because property rights became a heavy burden on their hands. Equal pay for equal work, especially in the teaching field, grew meaningless when an entire staff of instructors had to serve without remuneration; an oversupply of teachers in every city raised apparently insoluble problems for the most ardent egalitarian. An ideal of factory labor on the same terms as men enjoyed signified nothing when neither men nor women could get employment of any sort. Even the battle for the remaining posts lost its heroic qualities to some extent and resembled an atavistic tooth-and-claw struggle in a narrowed and cramped arena.

Instead of the benefits which they had confidently anticipated from economic equality, the feminists were unexpectedly confronted with defaults on dividends, a rapidly contracting labor market, a new dependence that the older family system of economy never knew and the possibility that the capitalist system of production and distribution in which they had been participating so blithely was overworked.

PAUL U. KELLOGG TELLS WHY HE'LL VOTE FOR THOMAS

Says Large Socialist Showing Will Aid Liberal Side of Roosevelt, Thwart Reactionaries.

STRONG MINORITY TO GIVE LEVERAGE

Social Worker Does Not Think That Old World Doctrines Need Be Accepted to Support Party.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A vote for Norman Thomas this year is a vote not only "for a new and affirmative lead in American life," but it will also be an aid to the liberal wing of Roosevelt's hybrid Democratic party in forcing through decent social legislation during the next few years, Paul U. Kellogg, editor of the Survey-Graphic, declared today in a statement issued by the Thomas and Maurer Committee.

"Paul Kellogg knows the tragedy, the breakdown in morale, the havoc of starvation, disease and death that have been epidemic in the United States for the past three years," the committee said in presenting Kellogg's analysis of his reasons for supporting the Socialist candidates. "His decision to support the Thomas and Maurer campaign is therefore of great significance as reflecting the feeling of the social service workers of America, up against the collapse of capitalism, able to give crumbs when loaves are needed, forced to beg for pennies when only dollars will do any good."

"My conviction that one primary job before the American people is to bring our consumptive capacity abreast of our advances in applied science and corporate expansion," Kellogg's statement begins. "That means trying to make the old American dream of opportunity for all come true in our time. It means enhanced purchasing power, an altogether new standard of living, work and earnings to buy what modern production can put out so plentifully but can't sell.

Back of the Depression.

"As things stand, we have applied our organizing genius so lopsidedly that our industrialism is crop-bound, our distribution of income top-heavy, and vast reaches of our people are hag-ridden by insecurity. It was this fault that underlay our post-war prosperity, that gave it a shell of hilarity but sapped its underpinnings. Along with war and its overhang, the nationalisms that are throttling trade and the rest, this has been the great casual factor that has carried the world depression to such depths in the U. S. A."

Kellogg's other six considerations bring this down to the campaign:

"2. The failure of organized business to curb the boom or to control the slump.

"3. The failure of the Republican regime to grapple convincingly with either emergency, much less with the forces behind both. The President has personified this retreat before realities on the part of the dominant groups in this country. He has acted according to his lights and theirs but they are only tail lights; backed into the future, looking over his shoulder.

"4. The chance which Roosevelt holds out for a changed front. That has counted heavily with me and I've held off until "5. The growing expectancy of his election makes me feel freer to make a long-range decision.

"6. My lack of assurance that the Democratic party will prove a vehicle for that change.

"7. My belief that a strong minority offers a new chance for leverage."

Kellogg an Independent.

Kellogg may be classed as an independent, as he is on the Lehman and Wagner committees in the State, says he wil vote for Hillquit in the city, is a hearty suppporter of George W. Alger for the Supreme Bench, and would vote for Stimson as Secretary of State if that were an elective office, because of his stand in the Far East.

To quote from his summing up of the political situation:

"If the depression has not shaken loose the opportunity for a forward move, one way or another, returning prosperity is not likely to offer a better chance. What has seemed likely has been that there might be a merger of the insurgents in both major parties and we would have the line drawn between

Kellogg an Independent.

Kellogg may be classed as an independent, as he is on the Lehman and Wagner committees in the State, says he wil vote for Hillquit in the city, is a hearty suppporter of George W. Alger for the Supreme Bench, and would vote for Stimson as Secretary of State if that were an elective office, because of his stand in the Far East.

To quote from his summing up of the political situation:

"If the depression has not shaken loose the opportunity for a forward move, one way or another, returning prosperity is not likely to offer a better chance. What has seemed likely has been that there might be a merger of the insurgents in both major parties and we would have the line drawn between two political formations which would stand for real alternatives before the American people. I found some promise of that in attending the progressive conference held in Washington last year that started in to frame a common platform for congressional action.

"Such a development has not as yet panned out. With Norris, Cutting, La Follette and Johnson jumping the traces, it may come in the next few years. But here and now the Socialist party offers a nucleus of initiative, with all the force of the hard times giving it driving power, and with the Thomas and Maurer committee stretching its tent ropes to include those outside the party who wish not only to protest against the failure of the older political bodies to serve the times at Washington, but to strike out for a new and affirmative lead in American life.

With Roosevelt in 1912.

"I participated in the Progressive campaign under Col. Roosevelt in 1912. More flowed from it, in the states and nationally, in the way of constructive action than from any other movement since the turn of the century. In the same way, the growth of the Socialist vote may prove the most significant fact in this whole year's election.

That, even more than the swing from one old party to the other, will register the protest against what's been happening to leadership at Washington. A powerful minority polled behind a progressive program is bound to affect action by the major groups in Congress. It may help rather than hinder Roosevelt in any efforts he may make to face forward and outflank the reactionary groups in his own ranks to say nothing of the Republican opposition.

"There are those who cannot accept the old-worldliness of the ideology that clings to the Socialist party in this country, but are aware of the new yeast at work in the movement. The Thomas and Maurer Committee affords a basis for collaboration without doctrinal commitments. We can subscribe to the thrust of immediate proposals and to the espousal of economic planning for the general welfare.

Vantage Ground for Four Years.

"As I see it, then a thumping vote for Thomas and Maurer will count not alone on election day. It will afford vantage ground from which to press for constructive action throughout the next four years. And it may also let out by a wide notch the chance for a new political movement to gather head—a party far larger and more representative of the insurgent element in American life than any present minority groups, one through which the American people could begin to mind their own affairs again. We have the emotional and practical energy to work for impersonal objectives and government should be a natural outlet for our frontiering spirit in a new day.

"Moreover in voting for Norman Thomas I am registering my approval of a man toward whom I have a real feeling of admiration. His writings and speeches show his caliber, his insight into all that's afoot. I have seen him in action under circumstances that showed his mettle.

KIEL MAKES APPEAL FOR WINTER'S ELECTION

Says Victory Would Assure Cities of Honesty Among Police and at Polls.

In an address last night broadcast over stations KMOX of St. Louis and WDAF of Kansas City, Henry W. Kiel, Republican nominee for United States Senator, made an appeal for the election of Lieutenant-Governor Edward H. Winter as Governor in order to assure St. Louis and other cities of efficient and honest police administration and honest elections.

Touching on national issues, Kiel denounced what he called the "pork-barrel" bill of Congressman John N. Garner of Texas, now Democratic candidate for Vice-President, and promised that if elected to the Senate he would vote against any such legislation.

Kiel, who served three terms as Mayor of St. Louis, reviewed the record of police administration in St. Louis and recalled that for a time he was president of the Police Board as an appointee of Gov. Caulfield. He said it was an excellent record of freedom from fraud and protection of the citizens from racketeering so prevalent in many large cities, made possible by the appointment of men of high character to the Police Board by Republican Governors in the last 12 years.

"This long record of excellent performance by the Republican Governors of Missouri," he said, "coupled with the pledge of Winter that he will continue the policy of appointing men with the same ideals, and the similar pledge in the Republican State platform, gives 100 per cent assurance that if Winter is elected Governor, St. Louis can expect to maintain the honest, efficient Police Department and honest election department.

"These things are vital, not only to the city of St. Louis but to outside St. Louis. Many visitors come to our city and they need police protection. In fact, on a bright Sunday we have had as high as 40,000 visiting automobiles at our St. Louis Zoo. We have to assure these people by the maintenance of a good police department that they will be protected from thugs and robbers.

"In elections an honest police and election department in the city of St. Louis means much to the State of Missouri. If in St. Louis there was a corrupt election machinery the votes you cast throughout Missouri would not mean much. They could be set aside and invalidated by the corrupt votes put on by careless or corrupt election officials. So that not only are the citizens of St. Louis interested in the honesty, integrity and efficiency of the St. Louis Police Department and election department, but also the citizens of the entire State."

When Was Gold Standard In Danger?

To a Senate which heard him with the closest attention and respect, for there is no man in Congress whose views on the Federal Reserve System are more highly regarded, the Virginian replied to criticisms that he had "surrendered to the inflationists."

Addressing himself to the credit expansion features of the bill, Glass said he had no apology to make for having refused "to be put in an attitude of contumacy or of obstinacy when those responsible for the administration of this government and for the great banking systems confront me with disclosures that would seem to indicate that something of this kind is necessary."

The reluctance of Glass to support certain provisions of the bill was plain; it was equally plain that he had been moved by an emergency in which, as he said, the bankers of the country had been "frightened to death" and had "ceased to function."

This part of his speech, with its outspoken indictment of the bankers, was striking and effective. Ever more so was the part in which the Virginian explained that one section of the bill had been drawn up to fortify the "free gold" supply of the United States against raids from abroad.

"I suppose I may," said Glass, "without exceeding the caution which ought to be observed, say that the Reserve System has been threatened with raids upon its gold supply by foreign nations, notably by France. The real purpose of this section of the bill is to put foreign nations upon notice that if they, in conjunction with their business men, want to raid the gold supply over here, we have this method of meeting the situation."

Passage of Measure.

Glass spoke on Feb. 17, and two days later the Senate passed the bill.

"With the going into effect of that law," Secretary Mills has said, "all doubt as to our ability to meet foreign demands was removed."

How was the gold supply fortified against foreign demands? The law required at least a 40 per cent gold reserve behind Federal Reserve notes. Before the passage of the Glass-Steagall bill, the balance of the security had to be composed of eligible commercial paper. Because of the scarcity of this kind of paper, the gold reserve against notes had risen in February from the required 40 per cent to about 75 per cent and the "free gold" supply—the gold above the amount needed for reserves—had been correspondingly diminished. The Glass-Steagall bill permitted the excess gold reserve to be released by providing that Government bonds as well as eligible commercial paper might be used behind Federal Reserve notes.

In his Detroit speech the President returned to the "great peril" to the monetary system of the country, which had been "increasingly threatened by the terrible impact of foreign gold withdrawals and our own hoarding and the inflexibility of the Federal Reserve act."

In his statement of the remedies which had been used in the depression he referred to the "extension of authority to the Federal Reserve Board to meet the danger to our gold standard and to expand credit in counteraction to the strangulation due to hoarding and foreign withdrawals."

This is an accurate description of the purposes of the Glass-Steagall act, and that act was passed in February as a strictly non-partisan measure, directly after Congressional leaders had been informed at the White House that emergency financial legislation was necessary.

CORRECTION ON SACKETT ITEM

He Was Not the Guest of the Steuben Society Here.

It was stated erroneously in last Thursday's Post-Dispatch that Frederic M. Sackett, Ambassador to Germany, was the guest of the Steuben Society at luncheon at Hotel Jefferson.

Ambassador Sackett was the guest of St. Louisans of German descent at a luncheon sponsored by City Counselor Muench, Arnold C. Stifel and Max L. Teich. The Steuben Society had nothing to do with the luncheon, its officers stated, and added, "The Steuben Society is not sponsoring the political tour of Ambassador Sackett or any other political speaker, whether Democratic, Republican or Socialist."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 30, 1932.

Donald Brian Back in 'Merry Widow'

After Twenty-five Years, Original Star Returns With Revival of Franz Lehar's Delightful Operetta—"Another Language" Coming Next Sunday Night.

"THE MERRY WIDOW," with Donald Brian in his original role of the dashing Prince Danilo and Virginia O'Brien singing the title part, will begin an engagement of one week at the American Theater tonight. And for the occasion the American will return to before-the-war musical show prices. The best seats at night are being sold at $2 plus tax, with balcony locations available at $1.50, $1 and 50 cents. The matinees on Wednesday and Saturday will be played at $1.50 top plus tax.

For a quarter of a century this gay operetta has set a standard in musical entertainment that has been extremely difficult to approach. It was by reason of his delightful score that Franz Lehar entered the international Hall of Fame and his lilting refrains, largely in waltz tempo, have carried down through the years. For instance, "The Merry Widow Waltz."

Among those in the cast are three former Municipal Opera players, Allen Rogers, Ruth Altman and Detmar Poppen. William White, Howard Quigley, Paul Flood, Nat Burns, Marion Ball and Kathleen Hoyt are also in the company with the Cecilia Corley Dancers and the Bebe Barri Girls.

DONALD BRIAN was the original Prince Danilo in the American production of "The Merry Widow," with Ethel Jackson the first "Widow" in this country. Joe Coyne created the part of Prince Danilo in the English version, produced in London, where it ran for 1000 consecutive performances. Henry W. Savage was the producer who gave the operetta its first American hearing. It was a sensation from its initial performance in New York 25 years ago and ran for some two years.

Simultaneously with its New York engagement, the operetta was running in almost every capital in Europe. Later it was one of the great successes of the Municipal Opera stage in Forest Park.

Brian has starred in many plays and musical pieces since he first flashed into prominence in the Lehar masterpiece. He was, earlier, in "Florodora" and later, a shining light in "No, No, Nanette." A few months ago Brian, with Miss O'Brien, revived "The Merry Widow" at Erlanger's Theater in New York, where it again met with an enthusiastic reception.

"ANOTHER LANGUAGE," one of the most successful of current theatrical offerings, is announced for the American for a week, beginning next Sunday night. This drama of American life is now in its sixth month, at the Booth Theater in New York and is just concluding an engagement at the Harris Theater in Chicago. It is marked as exceptional by the fact that Arthur J. Beckhard, the producer, and Rose Franken, the playwright, are both new names to the theater.

As often happens, Miss Franken offered her play to all of the well-known producers in New York, including the Theater Guild. It was favorably considered, but always rejected eventually. Beckhard, who had managed concert stars, read and liked the play and decided to produce it. So it was that on a day in April New York woke up to find it had a hit on its hands, scored by an unknown producer and unknown writer.

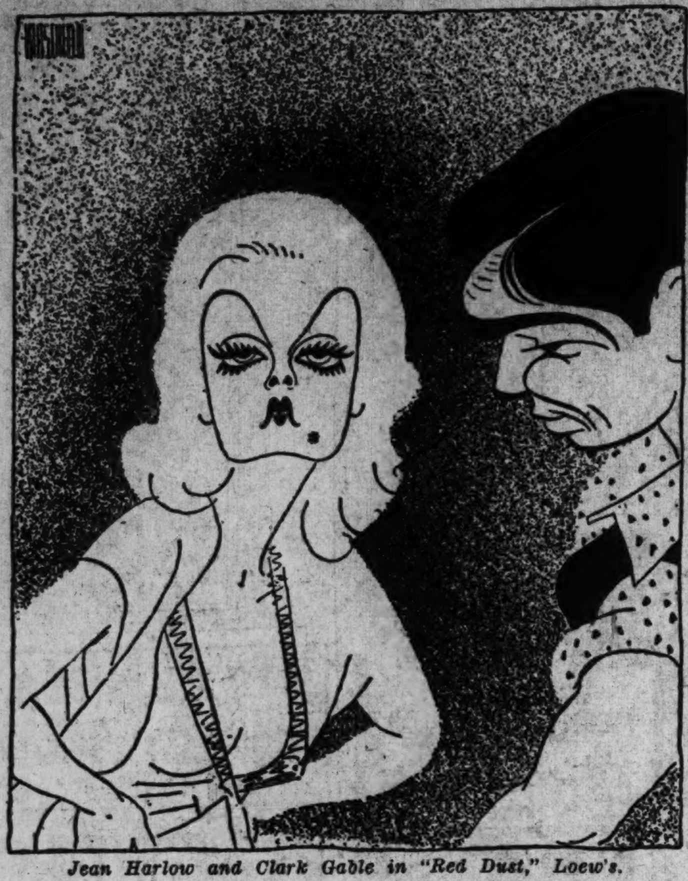
"REUNION IN VIENNA," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, will come to the American the following week, beginning Nov. 14. The comedy ran throughout last season in New York, and the Theater Guild is sending the same company and production to the American. In addition to Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne, the Guild company will include Helen Westley, Ernest Cossart, Minor Watson, Edouardo Ciannelli, Edward Fielding and others.

College Club Benefit.

The St. Louis College Club has chosen Doris Kenyon, soprano, as guest artist for its twenty-sixth annual scholarship benefit performance to be given at the Odeon on Friday evening, Nov. 11, when she will make her first personal appearance in St. Louis in "Lyric Silhouettes."

"Perfect Alibi" at St. Louis U.

The Playhouse Club of St. Louis University will, as its first stage production of the year, present A. A. Milne's mystery drama, "The Perfect Alibi," on Nov. 15 and 16 in the university auditorium.



Jean Harlow and Clark Gable in "Red Dust," Loew's.

Hall Johnson Choir Sings at the Odeon

St. Louis, which so appreciated the Negro choirs which formed a musical background for the presentation of "Green Pastures" last year, will have a chance to hear a greater choir, created by the same master of Negro melody when Arthur J. Gaines, at the Odeon tomorrow night, presents the Hall Johnson Negro choir in its first appearance in St. Louis. It has, however, been singing together for several years.

Some 20 Negro spirituals and secular songs will be presented tomorrow night, aside from request and encore numbers. Johnson has himself provided interesting program notes upon the significance of the individual songs.

Kochanski, Violinist, Plays Here Tuesday

Kochanski is not without a genuine talent in composition, as witness one of the numbers he presents in his program at the Odeon Tuesday evening, his "Flight," which was dedicated to Col. Charles Lindbergh, and was inspired by the epochal flight of "the Spirit of St. Louis."

Kochanski, however, is not limited to modernism in music for his program will include Bach's E Major Preludium, Tartini's astonishing "Devil's Trill" sonata and the Mendelssohn E Minor Concerto. Of today's composers, Ernst Dohnanyi is represented by a Gypsy-like andante, Maurice Ravel by a Habanera, and Manuel de Falla by a dance from "La Vida Breve."

Tibbett in Concert At Odeon on Friday

With the concert on next Friday evening by Lawrence Tibbett in the Odeon there will be inaugurated the newest musical venture for St. Louis, the Artist Series, which is designed to be an annual feature. The series will comprise four concerts and the following three this season will be Jascha Heifetz, the violinist, on Thursday evening, Dec. 1; Lily Pons, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 18, and the Don Cossacks, the company of 36 former officers of the Czar's army, said to be one of the unique musical features of the day.

Tibbett will afford a promising opening to the series next Friday evening. Stewart Wille will be at the piano.

Eden Male Choir in A Concert Saturday

The fall concert of the Eden Club male choir will be held next Saturday night in the large auditorium of the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue.

Max Hiendlmayr will direct the choir of 50 voices and the program will include a wreath that comprises small parts of the waltzes written by Johann Strauss, entitled "Ein Waltzerstrauss von Strauss Waltzer."

Lee Tracy in "Washington Merry-Go-Round," at the St. Louis.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

EXACTLY how rubber and hell are raised in Cochin-China, is well shown by Jean Harlow and Clark Gable in "Red Dust" down at Loew's. The picture is put in a warm setting and Clark and Jean spare no pains to keep the heat turned on. Gable, a crude rubber king, with the accent more or less on the crude, was getting along very nicely in the wilds with no plot for a movie in sight until Miss Harlow, who knew her he-men and her jungles, arrived on the scene. Jean, very blonde and not in the least bit sunburned by exposure to a lot of things, picked Clark for her own at first sight just like the female movie customers did in this country. She might have got him and ended the film then and there but Mary Astor dropped in about that time, too, making it the banner year for white women visitors in Cochin. There was a Mr. Mary Astor, but Clark got him out of the way by sending him into the wilds to build a road in the rainy season. Affairs get pretty complicated after that but, at the finish, Jean lands her man and she and Clark settle down to raise more rubber trees, or something, for the rest of their jungle lives. While the picture is not meant for movie goers with old-fashioned ideas, the younger generation, which understands such things, will consider it a knockout.

Vote for Roosevelt.

JUST why Will Hays, the Czar of the movie, ever let "Washington Merry-Go-'Round," which is at the St. Louis Theater, get past the eye which he keeps open for the Republicans, has not been explained. Certainly this pretty powerful picture—which bears no relation, by the way, to the book of the same name—coming just before election, will make a lot of votes for Roosevelt and the rest of the Democratic ticket appealing, as it does, to impressionable movie patrons for a change in Washington. Maybe the story wasn't meant to be an exposure of conditions in the national capital today. Probably the author was aiming at the system in general, but the introduction of views of the bonus army and its camp pins the happenings fairly definitely to the year 1932. True, the picture goes to some pains to point out that most of the men in high places are honest and honorable, but it shows, at the same time, how these same gentlemen are easily handled by the boys who know what they want. It calls for a new deal, an overturn of power and, just now, that is asking for a fresh set of faces in the Government offices. The story is spun around the idea that Lee Tracy has just been elected to Congress, passing over the fact that no new Representatives were being elected or taking their seats at the moment when the bonus army was camping on Washington's front door mat. Lee has gone to the big city to turn the rascals out and just what he is up against and what he accomplishes makes a swell movie. One thing he does is to win the heart and hand of Constance Cummings and, take it from us, Constance is worth winning.

Old Doc. Nagel.

CONRAD NAGEL, who has been specializing lately in down-and-out doctor roles is once more a South Sea Island beach hound in "The Man Called Back" at the Fox. The title tells the story for Conrad is called back to life and love and happiness by Doris Kenyon and is re-established as one of London's leading medical lights by the time reel eight rolls around. During most of the picture Conrad's return was slowed up by the fact that Doris had a husband but when the right time came along he died, conveniently enough, and the plot ran along to the usual cheerful ending. On the stage at the Fox Cap'n Menke's show boat company, fresh from its triumphs on the Missouri River, is presenting a tabloid version of that good old meller, "The Lure of the City" but the theater is a little too large to allow the river troupers to appear at their customary disadvantage.

Another Columnist.

THE Missouri is putting considerable stress on its picture, "Thirteen Women" but a far better film is its No. 2 screen offering, "Okay America." To be sure the fans have seen a good many celluloid dramas revolving around the lives of newspaper columnists lately but this is one of the best of the lot with Lew Ayres giving a fine impersonation of Hollywood's idea of a newspaper man and furnishing plenty of excitement while breaking up a gang of racketeers. The other story, "Thirteen Women," tells how Myrna Loy, in later life, got even with a lot of school girls who refused to take her into their sorority. Myrna was a half-caste Japanese with the smile of a follies girl and the heart of a killer. She pretty nearly wiped out all of her girl friends before ending her own life, but her diabolic goings on never ring very true and the customers laugh in the wrong places.

Another Tragedy.

AND at the Ambassador, Three on a Match," a title which has practically nothing to do with the picture, is also a tragic affair which never quite reaches the believable mark although Warren Williams, as a broker who is married to a not very good wife, does his best to put the thing on its feet. As a matter of fact the entire cast is excellent with Ann Dvorak, Joan Blondell, Bette Davis and our old friend of Grand Central stock company days, Lyle Talbot, turning in good performances but the story, which involves a child kidnaping case, is never very entertaining even to those who like kidnaping stories.

The Players' Club In a Milne Comedy

The Players' Club, co-founder with the Artists' Guild of the Little Theater of St. Louis, will present for the public at the Artists' Guild next Friday night A. A. Milne's English comedy, "To Have the Honor," under the direction of Mrs. Chester Williamson.

The cast, which has been selected from the Players and Little Theater groups, will include Eric Applewhite, Margaret Werner, Mary Margaret Conway, Ann Ivy Sargent, Jean T. Knowles, L. Avon Blue Jr., F. Ray Lewis Ruehler, Dan Bartlett, Eleanor Knapp, Maudian Jones Crane and Archer O'Reilly Jr.

To Discuss Better Films.

The Better Films Council of St. Louis and St. Louis County and the Motion Picture Distributers and Exhibitors will hold a joint luncheon at the Coronado Hotel Tuesday. Problems of the management and criticisms or recommendations of the council will be discussed.

School Alumnae in Play.

The Webster College Alumnae will present "Miss Lulu Brett," Zona Gale's Pulitzer prize-winning play, and "An American Comedy of Manners" in the Little Theater of Webster College, Thursday and Friday evenings, Nov. 4 and 5.

Farce at Downtown Y.

"The March Hares," a three-act farce, will be presented by the Mummers Dramatic Club on Nov. 10 and 11, in Brown Hall, Downtown Y. M. C. A. Willard Holland and Virginia Rudolph have the leads.

Levitzki Soloist For the Symphony Program at Odeon

After Long Absence Pianist Will Return This Week to Play the Saint-Saens Concerto in G Minor.

AFTER an absence of nine years Mischa Levitzki, pianist, returns to St. Louis and a place on the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's programs this week, when at the concerts at the Odeon Friday afternoon and Saturday evening he plays the Saint-Saens Concerto in G minor under the baton of Vladimir Golschmann. Levitzki played the solo part of that great concerto when he made his debut here in 1917.

Incidentally the Saint-Saens work is in the great pianistic tradition. Its composer wrote it in 18 days when, at the heighth of his own career as a concert pianist he was to appear as soloist of a concert conducted by the great Anton Rubenstein.

When Levitzki first appeared here he left an impression that has only been deepened by the brilliance of his career in the years since. He missed being American-born by the fact that his parents returned for a visit to their native Ukrain. He was little more than a baby when he first studied piano, and at 8 he appeared in a concert in Brussels. At 13 he graduated from the New York public schools and began studies with Stojowski in the Institute of Musical Art, upon the recommendation of Walter Damrosch. There followed further studies with Dohnanyi in the Berlin Hochschule fur Musik. In 1914 the youth made a Berlin debut, but the wa intervened to make difficult a concert career. He returned to America, where his successes beginning with 1916 were instantaneous and brilliant. Since then he has become one of the most widely traveled and most popular of artists, having toured America 14 times and visited Europe almost as often, while his art has been hailed as far as the Orient, where he had given more than 40 concerts.

Conductor Golschmann has arranged a program of interest leading up to the Saint-Saens Concerto with which the soloist brings the conserts of next Friday and Saturday to a close. Opening with Beethoven's "Coriolanus" overture the concert's program presents two works of major symphonic importance, the Mozart Symphony in F flat, blithe and joyous, and the lusty humors of "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" as recorded by Dr. Richard Strauss.

New Acts Engaged At Liberty Theater

Sid Rogers, singing and dancing comedian, is starred this week at Oscar Dane's Liberty Theater. Another new addition to the music hall's cast is Elvira Lowe, blues singer.

Two tabloid dramas, an "Olympiad" feature including a wrestling match between two local exponents of that art, several acts of vaudeville and the regular "girl show" are included on this week's bill. Marie Devoe in "Dope" and a short skit titled "The Whip" are the two interludes of tabloid drama, the latter being offered at the midnight show beginning at 11 p. m. Vaudeville acts include the Aerial Patts, La Reno, and "The Frog Man."

German Play Tonight.

"Erbschaft mit Hindernissen" (Inheritance with Obstacles), a modern comedy by Hermann Graetsch, will be given by the German Actors' Co-operative Association for the first time in St. Louis tonight in the auditorium of the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue.

"Strange Interlude" Film Coming.

"Strange Interlude," Eugene O'Neill's famous drama which, on the stage, proved one of the most revolutionary plays in history, will be seen as a talking picture on the screen at the Shubert Theater, where it begins a "road show" engagement next Sunday. The cast will be headed by Norma Shearer and Clark Gable.

Tragedies of the Films

Mary Astor and Jean Harlow, Together in a Picture Here This Week, Met Major Calamities, but Joan Blondell, on View in Another Screen Story, Has Lived On Excitement Most of Her Life and Has Escaped Any Great Grief—Wally Beery's Opinion of Himself.

TWO women into whose lives have come great tragedies are together in a picture which is on view this week, "Red Dust" at Loew's. Jean Harlow is one of the pair and the film was finished just a short time before her husband killed himself out in Hollywood. Mary Astor is the other and her husband died a few short years ago when the airplane in which he was making a picture fell into the ocean off the California coast.

At that time Miss Astor was in the middle of a screen story and after a short delay, went ahead with her work. Miss Harlow is still in retirement but will get back to the cameras before long according to all reports.

Irene Dunne in "Thirteen Women," at the Missouri.

Neither Miss Astor nor Miss Harlow had figured to any extent in the news before tragedy overtook them. Both were experienced movie performers but excitement had passed them by. On the other hand Joan Blondell, who is in "Three on a Match" at the Ambassador this week, has escaped any calamities but her short life has been crowded with excitement in many parts of the world.

Joan Blondell, by the way, is her real name. She was born in New York and her father and mother were old stage troupers so that a property trunk was her first cradle. At the age of four months she was carried on the stage of the Globe Theater as the daughter of Peggie Astaire in "The Greatest Love."

She has been on the stage during the twenty odd years of her interesting life. Has played repertory all over the globe: tank towns in China, split weeks in Australia, one-night stands in Germany and has crossed this continent fifty-six times while playing in vaudeville. Has been a circus hand, a clerk in a New York department store for the shortest period anyone ever held a job—fifteen minutes, and now is one of the promising stars in the movies.

JOAN was educated while on tour in vaudeville and in New York. In that city she attended the College of Industrial Arts and was prominent on the swimming team. Wanted to get school all washed up in a hurry so she could go back to work. Finally she threw caution to the winds and shipped to Australia on a cattle boat with a theatrical troupe.

Amazing publicity stories come out of Hollywood about its people. Some of them apologize for their brashness, others for their brazenness. Because of this, one hesitates to present the fact that Joan says she is a direct descendant of a merry minstrel dubbed David Blondell, one of the original troubadors that Richard the Lion-Hearted took with him on crusades to sing entertaining ballads, roundelays, hey-nonny-ohs, and the "Frankie and Johnny" of the period.

Returning to the present century, La Blondell eventually returned to New York and secured a role in a stage play, "The Trial of Mary Dugan." Then a more important role on Broadway in "Maggie the Magnificent." Then a still more important role in "Penny Arcade," in which she played opposite a rising young actor named James Cagney.

Her motion picture opportunity came when Warner Bros. bought "Penny Arcade" for the screen. Joan and Jimmy were signed to go to Hollywood to play their original stage roles. That was the beginning for both of them.

JOAN appeared in fourteen pictures during her first year in Hollywood and she prefers the screen to the stage, declaring, "More money in the movies." Wants to make enough money so she can retire and travel around the world in style. In reply to the question "If you left stage or screen, what sort of position would you seek," she replies, "I'd love to be secretary for Al Capone." She says she would also like to be a sergeant of marines aboard a battleship.

She prefers to live in Hollywood because it is near her work. "Otherwise," she says, "I would prefer to live in Hollywood." She never goes to Hollywood parties but likes to dance at the Ambassador. She wears lounging pajamas most of the time when not working and when resting at the studios you will see her in a pair of white duck trousers and a sweat shirt if you happen to be going to California, that is, and are able to break into the studio.

IT IS fairly easy to see that Joan Blondell doesn't take herself very seriously but then neither do some of the others out in the Gold Coast. For instance listen to this:

"Just a couple of character players who, according to the law of averages, should have been washed up long ago—that's us."

It was Wallace Beery, talking about Marie Dressler and himself, two of the most popular of today's movie players.

Not only do audiences elsewhere like to see them, but their fellow-players seemingly like them, too. Dressler and Beery are among those whom members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences have nominated for awards for their work this year.

Beery, by his statement, implied that his continued vogue is somewhat of a surprise to him. It isn't an ordinary thing for a player to have had a successful career of 24 years in the movies. I can't think of any other whose professional life parallels his.

Beery always, since he began movie acting in small parts in 1908, has been in demand. True, there are other actors who started as early as Wallace did and who achieved stardom long before he did, but none of them still are as active as he.

Harold Lloyd, who has been consistently successful, didn't start until 1910, when Beery was a "veteran" of two years. Chaplin also came later. Tom Mix, whose career started about the same time as Wally's has been in and out of pictures.

Milne Comedy To Be Given at Artists' Guild

Players' Club Will Present "To Have the Honor" For the First Time in St. Louis.

THE Players' Club, which, with the Artists' Guild, is a founder of the Little Theater of St. Louis, will present A. A. Milne's comedy, "To Have the Honor," at the Artists' Guild Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 o'clock. The play will be presented Thursday for the members of the Players' Club and their guests, on Friday night the play will be open to the public, and Saturday night has been reserved for the members and guests of the Artists' Guild.

This play has never been seen in St. Louis. In 1924 it had a long run in London, with Sir Gerald du Maurier, eminent English actor and son of the author, playing the leading role of Prince Michael.

Those responsible for the staging of the play at the Artists' Guild are Mrs. Chester Williamson, director; Mrs. George Barnard Gannett, properties; F. Ray Leimkuehler, settings; Dr. Archer O'Reilly, stage manager; John Chamberlain, lighting, and Mrs. Lee Harris, costumes.

"To Have the Honor" will be one of a series of plays to be given this season by the Players' Club. The officers of the board recently elected are: L. Avon Blue Jr., president; Eric Applewhite, vice-president; Mrs. Chester Williamson, secretary; Miss Adele Schmitz, assistant secretary; Mrs. Edward Hudson Barstow, F. Ray Leimkuehler, Dr. Alphonse McMahon and Max Muench, directors.

The cast of "To Have the Honor" has been collected from the Players' Club and the Little Theater as follows: Eric Applewhite, Prince Michael Robeski; Mrs. Matt Werner, Jennifer Bulger; Miss Mary Margaret Conway, Angela Battersby; Miss Ann Ivy Sargent, Imogene Faithful; Mrs. James Knowles Jr., Mrs. Holt; Archer O'Reilly Jr., Capt. Holt; F. Ray Leimkuehler, Mr. Oliver; Daniel Bartlett, Dr. Ainslie; Miss Eleanor Knapp, the maid; Mrs. Maudine Janes Crane, Mrs. Faithful and L. Avon Blue Jr., Simon Battersby.

Week End Parties For Debutantes

PARTIES for the debutantes over the week-end included a coaching party for Miss Marie Eleanor Busch, daughter of Mrs. Parker Busch; a supper for Miss Mary Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Boyle and Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert, debutante daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert, and a luncheon in honor of Miss Jacqueline Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Thompson, and Miss Suzanne Mackay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Castleman Mackay.

The coaching party was given by Miss Busch's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Hager Jr., of Huntleigh Village. The party gathered at the home of Miss Busch's mother at Grand View Farm, on the Gravois road, and drove in the tally-ho owned by the debutante's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. August A. Busch of Grant Farm, to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hager, where an informal tea dance was held. The guests were Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert, Miss Noel Kennerly, Miss Helene Brown, Miss Jane Katherine Caradine, Miss Ruth Simpkins, Miss Miriam Francis, Miss Marie Louise Evans, Miss Mary Boyle, Miss Frances Conant; Clarkson Carpenter, Philip Tiffany, Henry H. Langenberg Jr., Drew Brown, Henry Carpenter, Herbert Condie, Philip Smith, Albert G. Blanke Jr., Claude Bakewell and Gustave Boehmer.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel, 14 Lenox place, will entertain at a debutante supper this evening at the University Club for Miss Lambert and Miss Boyle. The guests will be a group of the debutantes and their escorts, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos G. Tredway, 101 Aberdeen place, and Mr. and Mrs. Truman Post Young, 1 Harcourt drive will give a luncheon today at Hunt Ford Farm on the Meramec River, for Miss Thompson and Miss Mackay. The summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Tredway and Mr. and Mrs. Young will be decorated in autumn foliage and luncheon will be served from a table decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums in copper bowls. Yellow tapers in copper candelabra will illuminate the table. Ten debutantes and their escorts have been invited.

Three Sonata Concerts

JOHN HALK, violinist, will present a series of three sonata evenings for violin and piano during the season. He will be assisted by Mrs. David Kriegshaber, Mrs. Frank A. Habig and Corrine Frederick. The program will be given in the French room at Hotel Coronado and will be in the nature of informal musicals. The sonata evenings will be on Tuesday, Nov. 29; Tuesday, Feb. 7, and Tuesday, March 21.

Lincoln B. Hockaday Weds at Lenox, Mass.

LENOX, Mass., Oct. 29.

THE wedding of Miss Helen Stuyvesant Voorhees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Greenwood Voorhees of Old Lyme, Conn. and Lenox, to Lincoln Bradford Hockaday, St. Louis, took place at Trinity Episcopal Church this afternoon. The bride's father is the widely known landscape painter, who was one of the founders of the Old Lyme Art Association. Mr. Hockaday is the son of Mrs. Isaac Newton Hockaday, Evanston, Ill.

Mr. Voorhees gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown was of ivory satin, close fitting, with circular skirt, mutton leg sleeves and train. The Venetian point lace veil, which was caught with orange blossoms, was handed down from the bride's great-grandmother, Martha Winthrop.

Mrs. Robert Spurgeon, Noroton, Conn., the former Elizabeth Delafield, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown was periwinkle blue rough crepe with brown turban. She carried bronze chrysanthemums.

There were four bridesmaids, Miss Florence Whistler Voorhees, sister of the bride; Miss Margaret L. Hockaday, sister of the bridegroom, and the Miss Sarah S. Sands and Miss Caroline L. Marsh of Old Lyme. Their gowns were of soft orange crepe with brown turbans and they carried bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. Hockaday's best man was his brother, Newton, and the ushers were Clark G. Voorhees Jr., John C. Bridgman of Old Lyme, James Tyler Patterson of Milford; Guy B. Holt of Hartford; Haring Griggs of Waterbury and Nathaniel N. Noble of Syracuse, N. Y. Thomas L. Moxon, organist, played the wedding marches. The Rev. F. C. Benson Belliss, rector of Trinity, officiated and Bishop Thomas Frederick Davies pronounced the blessing.

Mr. Hockaday and his bride are to live in St. Louis, where Mr. Hockaday is on the editorial staff of the Post-Dispatch. He was graduated from Yale with the class of 1928 and is a member of Zeta Psi fraternity.

The bride was graduated from Wykeham-Rise School at Washington, Conn., and has studied art since then in Paris and New York, where she is a member of the Art Students' League. On her mother's side Miss Voorhees is a descendant of John Winthrop, first Governor of Massachusetts, and of Peter Stuyvesant, last Dutch Governor of New York.

MISS DOROTHY DEHLENDORF, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Dehlendorf, whose engagement to Carl F. G. Meyer Jr. has been announced. —Ashen-Brenner.

Plans for Debutante Parties Announced

MISS NOEL KENNERLY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Kennerly, 28 Portland place, will make her debut on Christmas, her birthday. The affair will be an informal party at the Kennerly home at night, the guests to be limited to close friends. Miss Kennerly was a special maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball and among the social affairs for her this season will be a party Friday evening, Nov. 11, to be given by her aunt, Mrs. H. Blakeley Collins, 50 Portland place. At the latter party she will share honors with Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert, Miss Miriam Francis, Miss Anne Goddard and Miss Frances Conant.

Miss Mary Lucas Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, 4411 Westminster place, will be hostess at a luncheon for the debutanes Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 10, in honor of Miss Mira Lee Benoist, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Benoist, Winnetka, Ill., who will spend November in St. Louis with her grandmother, Mrs. E. A. B. Garesche. Miss Hart's party will be given at the Bridlespur Hunt Club.

Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert, 2 Hortense place, has issued cards for the debut reception of her daughter, Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert, to take place at the Lambert home Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 9, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Miss Mary Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Boyle, 25 Lenox place, will make her debut at a dinner dance to be given by her parents, Nov. 18, at the St. Louis Country Club. Mrs. Arthur H. Feuerbacher, 32 Brentmoor, will issue invitations this week for the debut reception of her daughter, Miss Helen, to take place at her home Tuesday, Nov. 22, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Gay Halloween Party Held at Bellerive Club

Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Duncan Entertain Debutantes and Escorts at Dinner Dance Honoring Daughter.

IN an elaborate Hallowe'en setting at the Bellerive Country Club last night, Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Duncan, 6363 Alexander drive, entertained the debutantes and their escorts at a dinner dance for their young daughter, Miss Winifred Duncan. The occasion was the club's annual Hallowe'en party.

Witches with their broomsticks, goblins, black cats and other traditional symbols of All-Hallows Eve predominated in the decorations. The walls were almost concealed by brightly hued autumn leaves, their colors accentuated by many red and yellow poppies and wisteria blossoms arranged in tall wicker standards placed about the rooms.

The reception hall, where tall trellises partition off the great lounge at each side, was a bower of blossoms and black cats leered from the top of the doorways. Leaves and flowers decorated the balustrade, ending in a large bouquet at the newel post.

Nearby, a life-sized likeness of Mephistopheles, his eyes lighted by electricity and his red robes flowing, stood guard over a fortuneteller's tent. Here the past, present and future of the guests was told by means of a crystal gazing ball, while a blue flood light playing on the booth cast an eerie glow over its occupants and the fat yellow and green pumpkin man who extruded gangly legs and swung an orange cane from the top. Each light in the chandeliers was covered with an orange shade paneled with diminutive witches and flying bats.

The colorful decorations were repeated even more elaborately in the West living room, where Mr. and Mrs. Duncan received their guests. The mantel was banked with leaves and its ledge covered with blossoms. At each side were sheaves of natural rice sent from Southern rice fields for the occasion. One corner of the room was converted into an autumnal forest, where white-garbed ghosts stalked. A second tent, with its crystal ball and its pumpkin man, occupied a clearing in the center, and the false blue moonlight shone on a tall witch, armed with a broom, at the entrance.

Dinner was served in the semi-circular dining room, and there again the Hallowe'en motif was used. The debutantes and their escorts, numbering 115, were seated at one long table following the semi-circular line of the room. Down its entire length lighted orange tapers in crystal candelabra alternated with mounds of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and Jack Horner pies, fashioned of shaded crepe paper and topped with black cats, filled with Hallowe'en favors. At a smaller table, similarly decorated, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan entertained 14 of their friends. Hundreds of balloons combining all the brilliant colors depended like clusters of grapes from the supporting pillars of the room and covered the wall faced by the guests.

In the East room, where the orchestra played, colored lights spotted the dancers.

Miss Duncan wore the gown in which she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. It was of pink flat crepe, with French roses adorning the shoulders.

Preceding the dinner, Mr. and Mrs. George Castleman Mackay, 3693 Lindell boulevard, entertained some of the guests informally for their debutante daughter, Miss Suzanne Mackay.

Entertainment for New York Guests

AMONG the out-of-town visitors in St. Louis are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hemphill of New York, who are guests of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson B. Gatch, 5036 Westminster place. Mrs. Hemphill arrived last week and was joined here yesterday by Mr. Hemphill, who will remain a week.

Among the parties to be given for them this week are three dinners, the first to be given tomorrow night by Mr. and Mrs. Hayward H. Gatch, 1 Lenox place. Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. William H. Luytles of the St. Louis Country Club Grounds, will entertain for the visitors, and Wednesday night Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Maestre, 4893 Westminster place, will give a dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Maury Hill, 4 Arundel place, gave a dinner for Mrs. Hemphill Monday night and Tuesday she was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood Hill, 4915 Argyle place. Thursday Miss Georgia Elliot, daughter of Mrs. Henry Elliot, 35 Westmoreland place, was hostess at a luncheon at the St. Louis Country Club, in Mrs. Hemphill's honor.

ENGAGEMENTS AND WEDDINGS

ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement of Miss Agnes Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Collins of 4919 Terry avenue, and Dr. Fabian J. Burke of St. Louis, formerly of Ellsworth, Minn., was made at a tea given by her mother at their home last Sunday. About 75 guests were present.

Presiding over the tea tables were Miss Geraldine Marshall, Miss Dorothy Joyce and Miss Elizabeth Poepperling, Mrs. James C. Thompson and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Neill.

The prospective bride is a graduate of Fontbonne College and was chosen queen of St. Louis University in 1928.

Dr. Burke is a graduate of Notre Dame and St. Louis University School of Medicine. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Kappa Fraternity.

The wedding will take place Thanksgiving day.

The marriage of Miss Marie Meckfessel, daughter of Mrs. Anna Meckfessel, 4837 St. Louis avenue, and Conrad Ochs, took place Oct. 5 at Bethany Lutheran Church. The bride's only attendant was Mr. Ochs' sister, Miss Anna Ochs. George Roemer was best man. After the ceremony a small reception was given at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Joseph Lakinger, 4837 St. Louis avenue. The guests were limited to members of the family and a few close friends. Mr. Ochs and his bride will make their home at 4127 Lafayette avenue.

The marriage of Miss Rose Cohen, daughter of Mrs. Lena Cohen, 5928 McPherson avenue, and Saul E. Ludwig, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Ludwig, 5185 Vernon avenue, will take place this afternoon at 8:30 at the home of the bride's mother. Rabbi A. E. Halpern will officiate. Owing to the illness of the bride's mother, only members of the immediate families will attend. Among the guests will be Mrs. Morris Siegel of Astoria, Long Island, N. Y., and Mrs. Louis M. Liebowitz of Brooklyn, N. Y., sisters of Mrs. Cohen.

November Calendar Of the Woman's Club

THE November calendar of the St. Louis Woman's Club follows: The Junior Committee of the club has announced a course in rhythmic body culture to be given at the club beginning Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock and continuing on successive Tuesday and Friday mornings throughout the season. The course is under the direction of Lisbeth Ebers Hoops. The Junior Committee is also sponsoring a class in French conversation conducted by M. Jules Gottschalk.

The Card Committee is sponsoring a series of four afternoons, Nov. 1, 8, 22 and 29, devoted to contract bridge, with Mrs. William R. Orthwein in charge. Play will begin at 2:30 p. m.

Nov. 10 will be the regular card day, with luncheon at 1 o'clock preceding the game. Nov. 17 there will be an entertainment by Frank Parker, preceded by a luncheon.

An innovation introduced this year in the club activities is duplicate board bridge play, at 10:30 o'clock in the morning on the third Friday of each month.

A dinner dance will be given at the Woman's Club Nov. 19 by the Junior Committee.

The special program committee of the Woman's Club inaugurated the new season Thursday night with an entertainment which included a dinner party and two plays.

Later the guests were entertained in the ballroom by a program originated by St. Louis women. A group of interpretative dancers under the direction of Miss Virginia Pappe gave five dances, the Irish Jig, the Love Letter, Mazurka Classique, In the Park and The Blue Danube, in costume. The dancers were Lodena and Richard Leonard, Mariette Ewalt, Yvonne Hill and Miss Pappe.

The main part of the evening was occupied with the production of two plays, "Remote Control" by Mrs. Virgil Rule and "The Interruption" by Mrs. William Flewellyn Saunders. The cast for the first play was composed of Robert Vaughan, who once played with E. H. Sothern, in the leading part of Mutrie; Sylvester Kunz, who played the Rev. Stolland, and Alfred Gelfand, who was Alexander. Camilia Stueck and Frederick Stueck were the Scrubwoman and the Man, respectively, in Mrs. Saunders' play.

Polish Washington Celebration.

Members of the East St. Louis Polish community will hold a Washington bi-centennial celebration at Polish Hall, 736 North Seventh street, East St. Louis, this afternoon. A program of songs and dances will be presented by 50 school children, followed by an address by F. X. Swietlik of Milwaukee. There is no admission charge.

Last Political Dinner Of Town Club's Series

THE last of a series of political dinners arranged for members and friends of the Town Club will take place Wednesday at 6 o'clock, when Mrs. James W. Morrison, Groton, Conn., will speak on "The Republican Platform," and reply to the Democratic and Socialist arguments which have been presented by Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming and Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee.

Mrs. Morrison has been sent as delegate to various international conferences of importance, and spoke in St. Louis last year after attending the Pan-Pacific conference in the Orient. Hostesses will include Mrs. T. M. Sayman, Mrs. G. G. Drury, Miss Alma Gibson Robb, Mrs. Grace Burlingham, Mrs. Celeste Biesse and Dr. Pearl Thompson.

A dance recital under direction of Lillian Granzow Conzelman, former Denishawn dancer and pupil of Ruth St. Denis, will be given at the club Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The program as presented by Mrs. Conzelman and a group of young dancers will include visualization of music, folk dances and an Oriental group including Japanese and Indian court and temple ritual dances.

Mrs. Conzelman will be assisted by Marie Barrett, Marjorie Ammon, Myrtle Loewenstein, Lucile Constantino, Fern Klein, Juanita de Munoz, Margaret Heckler, Betty Cleary, Marjorie Varley, Adelaide Melville, Eugenie Andrews and Arthur Ammon.

Dr. Vincent Lo Piccolo Weds Madelyn Viviano

ONE of the largest weddings of the season took place Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the St. Louis Cathedral, when Miss Madelyn Viviano, daugther of Mrs. Peter J. Viviano, 6948 Washington boulevard, became the bride of Dr. Vincent J. Lo Piccolo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Lo Piccolo, 3957 Cleveland avenue. The Rev. Sylvester Tucker officiated in the presence of more than 600 guests.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Vita Viviano, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were another sister, Miss Rosaria, two cousins, Miss Frances and Miss Grace Viviano; the bridegroom's two sisters, Miss Vera and Miss Josephine Lo Piccolo; Miss Ardeth Hogan, Miss Corrine Goodwin and Miss Ivy Jennings. The bride's niece, Anite Marie Piccione, was the flower girl. Salvatore Lo Piccolo was best man for his brother, and the following served as groomsmen: Frank P. Viviano, a brother of the bride; her cousin, Frank C. Viviano; Dr. William Holmes, Dr. Bernard Gerwitz, James Del Vecchio, Benjamin Farrar, Anthony Viviano, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Dr. Louis Panigrosso. The ushers were Peter Viviano, a brother of the bride, who came from Notre Dame Univeristy for the wedding; James Longo and Joseph Paterno.

The bridal party passed down the long aisle, which was marked by tall standards of white chrysanthemums to the altar adorned with clusters of Easter lilies and lighted by ivory cathedral tapers. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Vito Viviano. She wore a gown of deep cream toned satin made with a square neckline and long tight satin sleeves ending in a point over the hand. The high empire waist was defined by a band of seed pearls and from her shoulders fell a court train composed entirely of exquisite rosepoint lace. Her veil of ivory tinted tulle was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms at the back of the head and she carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

The maid of honor wore a gown of cinnamon velvet made on Empire lines, the skirt ending in a short train. Three velvet ruffles of brown and orange outlined the high neckline and fell over the upper arm. The gown was cut to a V at the back, where there were crushed velvet flowers. She wore a small hat of cinnamon velvet with a short nose veil and carried Johanna Hill roses.

The bridesmaids were gowned alike, in honey-colored hammered satin fashioned after the Empire period, with girdles of cinnamon velvet. They wore cinnamon velvet hats with short nose veils and carried talisman roses. The flower girl wore an ankle length ruffled frock of peach satin and carried a basket of roses. Mrs. Viviano was gowned in dahlia tone crinkled crepe with puffed sleeves of matching shirred velvet. She wore brown slippers and a brown hat and her flowers were orchids in a shoulder corsage.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the crystal room of Hotel Chase for the bridal party and the families. The table was decorated in bride's roses and lighted by white candles in silver candelabra. In the evening a large reception for about 600 guests was held in the Palm Room of Hotel Chase. The receiving line stood before a bower of Easter lilies and white chrysanthemums against palms and smilax.

Dr. LoPiccolo and his bride have gone to New Orleans and Havana, Cuba, for their honeymoon and on their return will live at 4190 Magnolia avenue.

To improve Any child's APPETITE
If you want your child to eat more to gain and grow strong, begin this very night with the famous "California treatment!"
A sluggish appetite means a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.
California syrup of figs is doing wonderful things for ailing, sickly children all over the United States.
The one way to conquer constipation
If your baby, boy or girl is bilious—pale-faced and dull-eyed from constipation—breath bad mornings, tongue coated all the time—don't give cathartics that weaken the system! Instead, a little syrup of figs that doesn't disturb either stomach or bowels, but does act on the lower colon—where the trouble lies.
Nature never has made a finer laxative for children; they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California syrup of figs. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. Your child will soon be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.
Children who get syrup of figs, now and then, keep well and avoid colds.

YOU SHOULDN'T MIND. YOU HAVE SUCH A MARVELOUS WASHER
YES, IT'S FINE. BUT I STILL CAN'T GET MY LINENS AS WHITE AS YOURS SHALL I TELL YOU WHY?
YOU USE THE WRONG KIND OF SOAP. LOOK AT THESE SUDS—NO LIFE TO THEM! THEY'RE FLAT AND WATERY. NOW IF YOU USED RINSO—
YOUR WASHER WOULD BE FULL OF RICH, SOAPY SUDS EVEN IN OUR HARD WATER. RINSO SUDS ARE SO LIVELY THEY WASH CLOTHES WHITER—SAFELY
NEXT WASHDAY
I THOUGHT YOU WERE EXAGGERATING LAST WEEK. BUT LOOK AT THIS TABLECLOTH. RINSO WASHED IT LIKE NEW
TRY IT FOR DISHES, TOO. IT'S A MARVELOUS WORK-SAVER—AND SO EASY ON HANDS
Rinso

See how much work one box did for Mrs. J. Jensen of Minneapolis
"RINSO surely does wonderful work. I wouldn't do my housework without it. I kept a list of the work I did with one big box of Rinso. It's surprising how far it goes. Besides washing the floors twice, dishes 5 times, the sinks and tubs 10 times, I did all this laundry work:
4 bedspreads
1 bureau scarf
4 face cloths
6 pillow cases
4 sheets
2 table-cloths
10 towels
7 dish towels
15 handkerchiefs
10 pairs children's stockings
4 pieces children's underwear
4 house-dresses
2 nightgowns
3 aprons
4 pairs socks
4 nightclothes
4 rugs"
A little Rinso gives a lot of thick, lasting suds, even in hardest water. Wonderful for dishwashing and all cleaning. Great for tub-washing; saves scrubbing. Get the BIG box. See how much it will do for you.

A HINT FROM THE "HEART" EDITOR by Timmins
I WON'T PUT IN ANOTHER MISERABLE EVENING LIKE LAST NIGHT. ALL THE OTHER GIRLS DANCING—ENJOYING THEMSELVES—AND I HAD TO SIT AND WATCH . . . I'LL WRITE TO CORA CARTER. MAYBE SHE CAN HELP ME
CORA CARTER'S REPLY
THE VERY IDEA! IT CAN'T BE TRUE
Let me ask you a frank question. Are you always careful enough about "B.O."? Nothing kills popularity quicker than this unforgivable fault.
WELL, THERE'S NO HARM IN PLAYING SAFE. WHY DON'T YOU USE LIFEBUOY? I DO, AND NEVER HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT "B.O."
THESE LIFEBUOY BATHS ARE SO MUCH MORE REFRESHING. MY COMPLEXION HAS IMPROVED, TOO. I'LL NEVER USE ANYTHING ELSE
Now her telephone's always ringing!

LIFEBUOY

You CAN'T attract if "B.O." offends
(body odor)
GOOD looks, radiant smile, pleasing personality—they're all forgotten in a jiffy once people notice you're careless about "B.O." (body odor)! Don't risk this unforgivable social fault. Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. You can tell by its pleasant, quickly-vanishing, extra-clean scent that Lifebuoy is no ordinary toilet soap. Its rich, hygienic lather purifies and deodorizes pores—effectively stops "B.O." Helps protect health, too, by removing germs from hands.
A beauty secret

Political Speeches On Chains This Week.

POLITICAL speeches scheduled for broadcasting this week include an address by President Hoover in Madison Square Garden, New York, which will come over KSD and KWK at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. United States Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Republican, will speak during the Republican farm program on the WJZ chain at 11:15 tomorrow and Tuesday mornings. Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker's speech Tuesday night will be carried by the CBS chain at 8:30. Harvey Firestone Sr. is to speak over KSD at 8:30 Tuesday night. U. S. Senator Carter Glass will speak over CBS net stations at 9:15 p. m. Tuesday. Fannie Hurst, the novelist, will talk over the CBS chain at 8:30 Tuesday concluding the "Get-Out-the-Vote" series. Carrie Chapmann Catt, of suffrage fight fame, will speak over the WJZ net at 2:15 Wednesday. At 9 o'clock Wednesday night, James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee for President in 1920, will speak over KSD.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is scheduled for three network political speeches this week—at 9 p. m. Wednesday, on KSD and the WEAF net; at 9 p. m. Friday, on KSD and the WEAF chain, and at 8 p. m. Saturday, on KSD, KWK and the combined WEAF and WJZ chains. The last speech will be delivered at the Madison Square Garden rally in New York.

A speech by Senator Hattie Caraway of Arkansas is set for 7:45 p. m. Saturday on the CBS chain.

All three chains will broadcast election returns at frequent intervals election night. William Hard and David Lawrence will be the NBC announcers; William Wile for the CBS net. The broadcasts will be continued into the early morning hours if necessary.

Wearing the new lapel microphone, Ted Husing and Herbert B. Glover will halt people on the streets of New York Tuesday and interview them on how they will vote for President and why. There will be four of the broadcasts, each of five minutes — at 9:30 a. m., 11 a. m., 2 p m. and 4:45 p. m. Husing and Glover will do their interviewing on fashionable Park avenue, on lower Broadway, in Times Square and in Harlem.

Report in Favor of East St. Louis Station.

OVER the objections of St. Louis broadcasters, Chief Examiner Ellis A. Yost has recommended to the Federal Radio Commission that it grant the application of Maurice L. Barrett for authority to erect a new 100-watt broadcasting station in East St. Louis, and operate it full time on 1500 kilocycles. The proposed station would be owned equally by Barrett and Nelson A. Darragh, president of the company operating KMOX. Paid in capital stock would be $25,000.

Yost held that a need exists for a station offering local program services to East St. Louis of a civic educational, charitable and religious character. He said also that local dairying, farming, mining and factory industries would benefit from the proposed station. He added that Barrett was financially, technically and legally qualified to be a broadcaster.

To make room for the station, Yost recommended that the commission deny a renewal application of WKBS, Galesburg, Ill., by default because its owners failed to appear at the Sept. 27 hearing to defend its radio license. Yost also recommended denial of the application of Samuel E. Yaste and Burrel Barrish, Galesburg residents, who had applied for authority to erect a new 100-watt station in Galesburg, also asking for the facilities of WKBS.

Counsel for protesting stations have 20 days in which to file exceptions to the report, which will then go to the commission for final action.

First "Radio City" Concert Nov. 13.

SUNDAY, Nov. 13, listeners may hear the first program from the theater that "Roxy" will manage in Radio City, New York. An orchestra of 125 musicians, led by Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, and a chorus of 200 voices will take part. Concerts at 11 o'clock Sunday morning will be an NBC chain feature. The program featuring Morgan L. Eastman's concert orchestra, a quartet, Gene Arnold, narrator, and Jean Paul King, announcer, will be broadcast by KSD and the WEAF network from 9 to 9:30 Monday nights, starting tomorrow. Heretofore this program has come over WJZ chain stations. . . . A series featuring "Whispering Jack" Smith, the Humming Birds trio of women's voices and Arnold Johnson's orchestra will begin at 7 p. m. tomorrow on the CBS chain. . . . Virginia Rea and Frank Munn, who sang for so long as Olive Palmer and Paul Oliver, have been back together as soloists on Paul Whiteman's new Monday night program on KSD. Munn also sings on the Album of Music programs Sunday nights on KSD. . . . The network debut of Howard Thurston, the magician, is set for 7:45 Thursday night, on the WJZ chain. He is billed weekly at the same hour on Thursdays and Fridays. . . . A fashion show broadcast from Paris is set for 4 p. m. next Sunday, over the WEAF chain.

Hall Johnson Choir Here Tomorrow.

THE Hall Johnson Negro Choir, which sings in the Capt. Henry Showboat broadcasts Thursday nights over KSD, will give a concert at the Odeon tomorrow night. Led by Hall Johnson, its founder and conductor, the choir will sing spirituals and secular songs . . . WFAA (800 kc.) broadcasts a pretty "When Lights Are Low" concert from 9 to 10 o'clock Monday nights . . . The national cornhusking championship competition in Henry County, Illinois, will be broadcast during the Farm and Home Hour on the WJZ chain at 11:30 a. m. Thursday, Nov. 10 . . . Van and Don and their "Coo-Coo College," an act that has won popularity on the Pacific Coast, will begin a four-days-a-week series on the WJZ chain, at 12:30 tomorrow noon . . . A new instrumental quartet, the Mediterraneans, led by Vincent Riffici, has been playing unusual Spanish, Italian and French music in the Community Forum broadcasts at 4:30 Sunday afternoons . . . WAAM, Newark, N. J., has among its staff entertainers five blind musicians and a 99-year-old woman singer. The latter, Mrs. Sara Sutton, has a contralto voice which is said to be rich and full despite her age.

Henry Field Denied More Station Facilities.

AN application by Henry Field, Republican senatorial nominee in Iowa, for increased facilities for his station, KFNF, at Shenandoah, has been refused consideration by the Radio Commission on the ground that Iowa is over quota on stations. . . . Charles C. Dawes, nephew of former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, and W. E. Vogelbalck have been negotiating for the purchase of WBKF, Indianapolis, a 500-watt station, the only one in Indiana having full time rights. . . . An attempt to organize another chain of stations, extending from Boston to New York and Washington, then possibly to Chicago and Texas, is reported in New York. Plans originally were for a network to carry transcription programs, but a change has been made to a project to link the station by wires, as in the case of the other networks. . . The 878-foot vertical mast antenna for WSM, Nashville, Tenn., is virtually completed and should be in use by Nov. 10. WSM is now broadcasting with 50,000 watts from a regular type aerial. The mast antenna should insure stronger, more consistent reception of WSM in all directions.

The first will come Wednesday at 10:30 p. m The series will be broadcast every Wednesday in November, and will deal with present day perplexities. In addition the half-hour broadcast will include music by the Lyric quartet. The Layman's Hour is given by the Lutheran Laymen's League of Greater St. Louis.

Radio Trade Notes

Clarion Adds 14-Tube Receiver and Small Set.

A 14-tube Clarion receiver has just been introduced as a leader in the line, according to the F. Tiemann Stove & Hardware Co., distributer. The chassis, in a Hepplewhite cabinet, has Class B audio designed to stand 20 watts output, and twin speakers driven by a double audio system. Other features include a tuning indicator for silent tuning between stations, delayed automatic volume control, a variable noise level control, and a continuously variable tone control.

Twin diode detection is used with a separate automatic volume control tube, as well as accoustic compensation to preserve bass notes at low volume. There is also an automatic selectivity control for tuning distant stations.

Also added to the Clarion line is a five-tube superheterodyne of the mantel type. This is said to be extremely sensitive and to be selective within 20 kc. It has a preselector circuit and dynamic speaker.

School Children Prefer Historical Broadcast Programs

School children prefer history to all other subjects broadcast by radio for their instruction.

A survey conducted by Miss Florence Fox, specialist of the Bureau of Education, shows poetry and music lack the fascination history has for children.

Returns from questionnaires sent to 25 states indicate also that dramatization is the most popular form of presenting educational subjects and that band music is the favorite kind.

Ninety-four per cent of the pupils preferred dramatization, story telling ranking second with 82 per cent. The lecture method was opposed by 75 per cent and the interview by 59 per cent.

Some of the teachers made the criticism that certain programs were too mature for the students' comprehension, interest and experience. About 85 per cent of the pupils heard the programs distinctly.

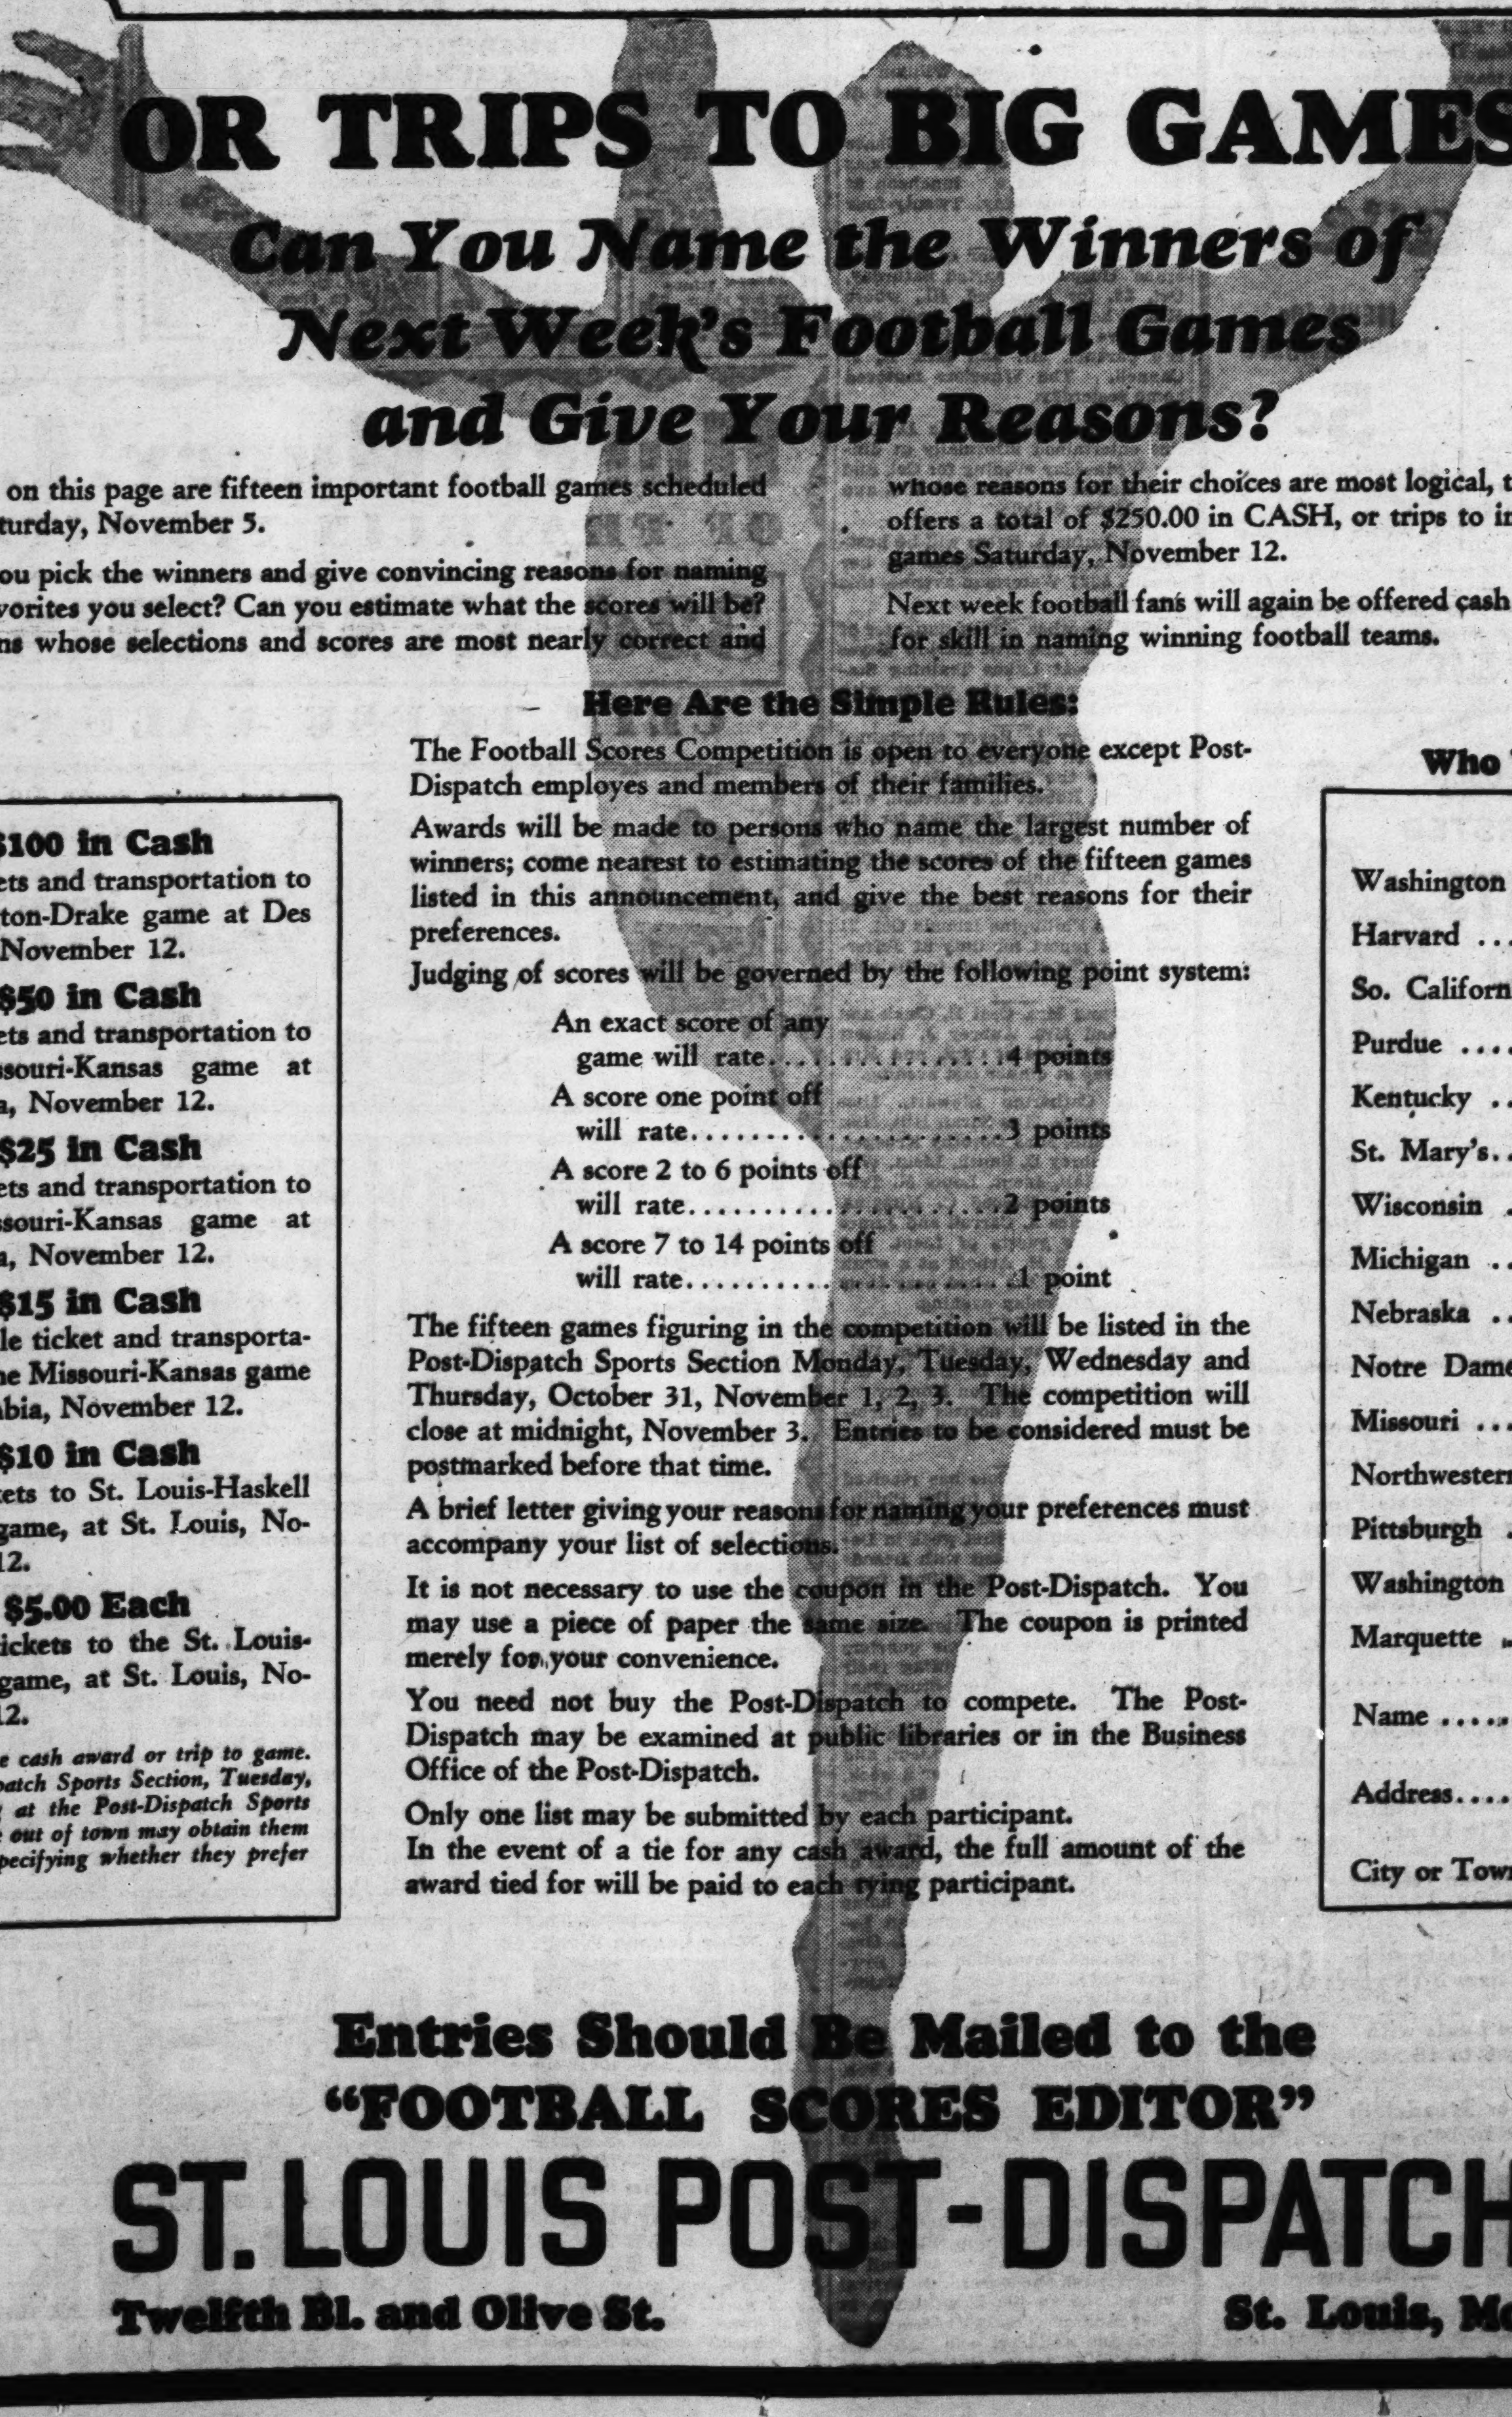
FOOTBALL FANS

$250.00 IN CASH $250.00



OR TRIPS TO BIG GAMES

Can You Name the Winners of Next Week's Football Games and Give Your Reasons?

Listed on this page are fifteen important football games scheduled for Saturday, November 5.

Can you pick the winners and give convincing reasons for naming the favorites you select? Can you estimate what the scores will be? To fans whose selections and scores are most nearly correct and whose reasons for their choices are most logical, the Post-Dispatch offers a total of $250.00 in CASH, or trips to important football games Saturday, November 12.

Next week football fans will again be offered cash or trips to games for skill in naming winning football teams.

The Prizes:

First Award	$100 in Cash or 4 tickets and transportation to Washington-Drake game at Des Moines, November 12.
Second Award	$50 in Cash or 4 tickets and transportation to the Missouri-Kansas game at Columbia, November 12.
Third Award	$25 in Cash or 2 tickets and transportation to the Missouri-Kansas game at Columbia, November 12.
Fourth Award	$15 in Cash or a single ticket and transportation to the Missouri-Kansas game at Columbia, November 12.
Fifth Award	$10 in Cash or 4 tickets to St. Louis-Haskell Indians game, at St. Louis, November 12.
Ten Awards	$5.00 Each or two tickets to the St. Louis-Haskell game, at St. Louis, November 12.

Successful participants may choose EITHER the cash award or trip to game. The awards will be announced in the Post-Dispatch Sports Section, Tuesday, November 8, and may be obtained by calling at the Post-Dispatch Sports Department. Persons entitled to awards who live out of town may obtain them by writing to the Football Scores Editor and specifying whether they prefer cash or tickets.

Here Are the Simple Rules:

The Football Scores Competition is open to everyone except Post-Dispatch employes and members of their families.

Awards will be made to persons who name the largest number of winners; come nearest to estimating the scores of the fifteen games listed in this announcement, and give the best reasons for their preferences.

Judging of scores will be governed by the following point system:

An exact score of any game will rate	4 points
A score one point off will rate	3 points
A score 2 to 6 points off will rate	2 points
A score 7 to 14 points off will rate	1 point

The fifteen games figuring in the competition will be listed in the Post-Dispatch Sports Section Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 31, November 1, 2, 3. The competition will close at midnight, November 3. Entries to be considered must be postmarked before that time.

A brief letter giving your reasons for naming your preferences must accompany your list of selections.

It is not necessary to use the coupon in the Post-Dispatch. You may use a piece of paper the same size. The coupon is printed merely for your convenience.

You need not buy the Post-Dispatch to compete. The Post-Dispatch may be examined at public libraries or in the Business Office of the Post-Dispatch.

Only one list may be submitted by each participant.

In the event of a tie for any cash award, the full amount of the award tied for will be paid to each tying participant.

CORNER ACQUIRED ON CHESTNUT ST., NEAR ALOE PLAZA

H. Sheridan Is Purchaser of Site, 43 by 109, Now Occupied by Old Buildings With Stores.

DURO REALTY CO. BUYS BILTMORE

R. E. Olds, Retired Auto Manufacturer of Lansing, Mich., Former Owner, Here to Close Deal.

By Berry Moore.

The northeast corner of Chestnut and Twenty-first streets, owned by the Gageby Investment Co., has been acquired by H. Sheridan, a client of the C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co., arousing renewed speculative interest in real estate in this part of the city. The transaction is the third recently concluded involving property in this block. No mention of the purchase price was made.

The site, having 43 feet on Chestnut and 109 feet on Twenty-first, is occupied by old buildings, with stores on both street fronts. The second floors comprise apartments or flats. Sheridan made the purchase as a speculative investment.

Several weeks ago the St. Louis Dairy Co., represented by the McDonald Real Estate Co., acquired 44 by 109 feet at 2011 and 2011½ Chestnut street, to provide an entrance from the south to its plant covering the entire Pine street side of this block. A strip on the north side of Chestnut street, 90 feet east of Twenty-first street, previously had been purchased by the dairy company for use in connection with its Pine street plant.

Just West of Plaza.

The property sold is just west of the area bounded by Chestnut, Twentieth, Eighteenth and Market streets, acquired by the city for the Aloe Plaza project, heralded as a civic feature that will prove a factor in the improvement of this part of the city. Having in view the beneficial effect of such a development, the late Nathan Frank, attorney and former Congressman, purchased the entire frontage on e north side of Chestnut between ineteenth and Twentieth streets as an eligible site for a large hotel. The hotel project, which disappeared with his death, is expected to be revived with the recovery of business.

After being delayed nearly two months, negotiations have been oncluded whereby the Duro Realty Co., of which George L. Schaberg s president, has acquired the sixtory fireproof Biltmore apartment t 3643 Washington avenue, occuying a lot 75 by 148 feet. The operty was owned by the Biltore Co., a holding corporation f which R. E. Olds, retired automobile manufacturer of Lansing ich., is president and principal tockholder. The price was no announced, but it was stated that he sale was made subject to a deed f trust for $400,000, executed in this connection. Olds was here ast week to close the deal. H. M. ardell, secretary of the Biltmore ompany, handled the transaction n connection with the Bush-Burns Real Estate Co.

76 Apartments in Biltmore.

The building contains 76 threeoom and four-room efficiency partments, with bath, shower and lectrical refrigeration. There are oth passenger and freight elevators. It was erected in 1920 by F. J. Cornwell Real Estate Co om which Olds purchased it in e name of the Biltmore Co.

Plans contemplate converting the partments into 140 hotel rooms vailable singly or in suites with th or shower. The building is ly a short distance west of Grand oulevard.

Negotiations are progressing for everal other apartments in the West End. These include two of e largest on Lindell boulevard d in University City.

Offers for Anderson Building.

Several offers have been subitted for the former building the defunct firm of Lor- E. Anderson & Co., at 711 Charles street, the 99-year asehold of which was recently urchased by Claude E. Vrooman, al estate operator. In one instance it is sought in exchange for large West End apartment build. It was announced at the time the purchase of the leasehold at a national fire insurance comany, with headquarters in the ast, had practically concluded arangements for a 12-year lease of e building. W. H. Markham & o., of which George D. Markham president, was mentioned promntly in this connection. Markam denied yesterday that the ompany was a prospective lessee. arkham & Co. occupy extensive arters in the Railway Exchange ilding.

REALTY MEN CONSIDER NEW LAWS AT JEFFERSON CITY

Purpose of Meeting Last Week Was to Explain Measures for Next Session Affecting Dealers.

At a meeting in Jefferson City last Wednesday called by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange the representatives of exchanges and owners' organizations from Kansas City, St. Joseph, Joplin, Sedalia, Jefferson City, Fulton, California and other centers were present.

The purpose of the meeting was to explain measures affecting realty dealers which will be introduced at the Legislature in January.

Among the acts proposed was a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment allowing the classification of property so that a mortgage recording tax might be put in force. Others are:

To allow the payment of taxes in four installments instead of in a single annual payment.

To reduce the penalties on delinquent taxes. To permit recorders to copy instruments immediately, if haste is necessary, rather than to allow the deeds to take their turn in recording.

To make the identification of notes by the recorder compulsory so that the purchaser of a mortgage will know that the notes are the identical instruments secured by the mortgage, to require the production of the note at the time a foreclosure trustee's deed is recorded to prevent the possibility of selling the paper as a valid encumbrance after it has been foreclosed; to require real estate brokers and salesmen to be licensed by the State.

REALTY BOARDS TO MEET IN WASHINGTON JAN. 25-28

The mid-winter business meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards will be held at the Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., Jan. 25, 26, 27 and 28.

The Housing Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards has adopted the following resolution, which has been placed before the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and before the National Conference on Construction by Edward A. MacDougall, New York, chairman of the committee:

"The Housing Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards believes the construction and operation of housing facilities of all kinds to be a private business function and not a public utility. We are opposed, therefore, to laws which create housing corporations under state supervision which are granted special privileges including tax exemption, thus creating a favored class of citizens. We are opposed also to governmental loans or subsidies to such housing corporations."

REALTY MEN SEEK TO HALT CHAIN STORE LEASE ASSAULT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—A program to meet the reported proposals of chain store systems to seek bankruptcy in order to break leases was outlined today by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

A committee has been appointed, it was announced, "to investigate bankruptcy laws and procedure insofar as they affect lease or rental obligations and to make recommendations in regard to such laws as would properly protect owners of commercial properties in cases of bankruptcy of chain store tenants."

The committee suggested property owners form committees to search out all facts in connection with individual situations. Lawrence T. Stevenson of Pittsburgh, president of the association, was named president of the committee.

MANY LEASES IN NEW STATE NATIONAL LIFE BUILDING

Leases of space in the new State National Life Building, nearing completion at the northeast corner of Eighth and Market streets, are announced by the agents, Oreon E. & R. G. Scott, as follows: Suite of offices to Jack D. Fink & Co., formerly in the Syndicate Trust Building; part of fifth floor to Shaffer Brennan Advertising Co., now in Bell Telephone Building; Scudder Brokerage Co., now at 707 Clark avenue; Hoyt Bros., Inc., in the Equitable Building.

Harry Diehl has leased warehouse space at Spring and Chouteau avenues from the Trorlicht-Duncker Carpet Co.

All parties in the transactions were represented by Arthur H. Fuldner, manager of the commercial leasing department of Oreon E. & R. G. Scott.

PARKING LOT LEASE MADE

A long term lease has been acquired on the southwest corner Sixteenth and Olive streets, by the Sixteenth and Olive Parking Terminal, represented by the Henry R. Weisels Co.

Two leases were effected. The corner 153x69 ft. for the account of Sydney Real Estate Co., of which Col. Sydney M. Shoenberg is president. The next adjoining lot 52x69 ft. was leased for the account of John J. White. The lot will be immediately graded to sidewalk level by the lessee, who will conduct a parking lot.

BUSINESS BUILDING IN CLAYTON PURCHASED

Syndicate Acquires Chamber of Commerce Structure Containing Law Offices.

The business and office building known as the Chamber of Commerce Building, at 14-16 South Central avenue in Clayton, has been purchased by a syndicate headed by J. C. Brown of the law firm of Ralph, Nolan, Rush & Brown. The firm occupies offices in the building. The St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce has quarters on the street floor. The second floor is occupied by law offices.

The Schwenker Real Estate Co. handled the transaction.

The building, which is of fireproof construction, is situated on the east side of the courthouse square. It was erected some years ago by the Western States Life Assurance Co. for its general offices, but upon the dissolution of the company passed to others.

This is one of the most important real estate transfers for cash made recently in Clayton.

50 PCT. DROP IN BUILDING CONSTRUCTION IN U. S. IN YEAR

$54,339,300 Total for First Half of September, Compared With $111,735,600 in Same Period in 1931.

Construction contracts awarded in the 37 Eastern states during the period from Oct. 1 through Oct. 15 totaled $54,339,300, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This compares with a total of $58,901,900 for the period Sept. 1 through Sept. 15, and with $111,735,600 for the first half of October, 1931.

Of the current total, $10,305,600 was for residential building, $13,507,400 for non-residential building and $30,526,300 for public works and public utilities.

Residential building awards in the 37 Eastern states during September showed a gain of $2,000,600 over the August record; this was almost 10 per cent. Normally a decline of about 4 per cent is registered between August and September residential awards. The September total of $22,803,900 compares with $20,766,800 for August and $54,552,800 for September, 1932.

At the end of the first quarter of 1932 residential building awards showed a decline of 63 per cent from the corresponding period of 1931; the second quarter showed a contraction of 70 per cent from the like 1931 period; the third quarter, likewise, showed a loss of 70 per cent from the corresponding quarter of 1931, but for both August and September the rate of loss in residential awards was progressively smaller than was shown for the quarter as a whole.

Total construction awards let in September amounted to $127,526,700, as compared with $133,988,100 in August and $251,109,700 in September, 1931. For the third quarter of the current year contracts of all classes amounted to $390,283,500; this contrasts with a total of $381,001,000 for the second quarter and $771,213,100 for the third quarter of 1931. It now appears possible that the final quarter of the current year may produce a contract volume approaching that shown for the third quarter, which in turn would mean a total for 1932 for the 37 states ranging between $1,400,000,000 and $1,450,000,000.

Non-residential building awards let during the third quarter of 1932 amounted to $134,050,700; this compares with $144,274,000 for the second quarter and $318,196,800 for the third quarter of 1931. For the first nine months of 1932 non-residential awards suffered a decline of 57 per cent from the corresponding period of 1931.

Contracts awarded for public works and public utilities during the third quarter amounted to $182,921,200; this contrasts with a total of $159,159,300 for the second quarter and $274,368,200 for the third quarter of 1931. For the elapsed period of 1932 this class of construction sustained a contract loss of 56 per cent from the corresponding nine months of 1931.

INCREASE NOTED IN ST. LOUIS AREA

Construction work undertaken in the St. Louis area during the period from Oct. 1 through Oct. 15, totaled $3,542,800 according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This compares with a total of $4,222,000 for the first half of September and $2,517,600 for the corresponding period of October, 1931.

September contracts for construction reported for the St. Louis territory amounted to $10,301,400, as against $6,804,300 for August and $8,787,800 in September, 1931. Gains over August were shown for each of the four major construction classes, the most significant being in the residential field; increases over September, 1931, occurred only in public works and public utilities, residential and non-residential building showing declines.

For the third quarter of 1932 this territory reported a contract volume of $28,870,400. This compares with $20,877,600 or the second quarter and $29,206,900 for the third quarter of 1931.

The St. Louis territory should show a contract total of at least $22,000,000 for the final quarter of 1932. Of this total, the bulk should go for non-residential building and public works and utilities. Residential building to be undertaken during the period will probably approximate $2,500,000.

STATE COURT TO DISMISS STEINBERG CO. RECEIVERSHIP

Action Tomorrow Will Enable U. S Court to Acquire Jurisdiction of Firm's Assets.

The State court receivership for the closed stock brokerage firm of Mark C. Steinberg & Co. is to be dismissed tomorrow to enable the Federal Court to acquire jurisdiction of the firm's assets and to refer the hearing of the firm's settlement offer to general creditors to Referee in Bankruptcy Walter D. Coles as special master.

The dismissal is to follow the qualification under $25,000 bond of Thomas N. Dysart as custodian of the assets under appointment by Federal Judge Faris yesterday Judge Faris has declined to appoint a Federal receiver in order to avoid additional expenses, but has declared that the assets should be within Federal jurisdiction to permit disposition of reclamation and intervening petitions and of the settlement offer. Dysart has been co-receiver in State court with Mark C. Steinberg, senior partner of the firm.

The settlement offer is to pay general creditors, with claims totaling nearly $1,000,000, 20 per cent in cash and the remainder in promissory notes contingent on future earnings of the nine Steinberg partners. The offer has been accepted by a majority of creditors whose claims have been filed and allowed but is opposed as unfair by 27 creditors with claims of about $39,000. The opposing creditors contend that they will realize a larger amount in cash through administration in bankruptcy than through the settlement.

200 CONCERNS HERE OFFER TO ASSIST ECONOMY LEAGUE

Firms Volunteer to Distribute Membership Cards Among Officers and Employes.

More than 200 St. Louis business firms have volunteered to distribute membership cards of the National Economy League among their officers and employes it was said yesterday by Charles M. Polk, chairman of the Missouri branch.

Applications for blank cards are being received at the rate of 3000 a day, he said, and many are being returned filled out. Offices of the league are at 510 Rialto building.

Polk was pleased to observe, he said, that applications are being received from men who saw service in the World War. "These men realize that their record of honorable service is being jeopardized by the indiscriminate rush for pensions by able bodied men many of whom never saw a battle field," Polk said. "The slogan of the National Economy League is: 'Millions for the war disabled—not one cent for political pensions.'"

PLAN FOR U. S. REGULATION OF FARM MARKETING URGED

Farmers' Union Head Favors Proposal Along Lines of Rail Supervision.

By the Associated Press.

WINFIELD, Kan., Oct. 29.—John Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, declared here today "big interests" in the East are attempting to crush the "small business interests of the West" and outlined a plan for Government supervision of agricultural marketing. He proposed that a "proper department of government" determine each year what part of each major farm crop is needed for home consumption, what part is available for export, and ascertain the cost of production.

"The department," he said, "would require purchasers of all controlled farm crops to secure a Government license and fix for them a price to pay for the produce allocated to home consumption, which would not be less than the ascertained average cost of production including interest on investment." He added that the world price would apply to the exportable portion.

"For 25 years the Government has regulated the marketing of transportation," he added, "on the basis of a fixed price for freight and passenger service at cost plus interest on the investment. Our plan proposes that Government do the same thing for agriculture."

TAXES FORCE HEIRS TO SELL CONTENTS OF MUNICH PALACE

MUNICH, Oct. 29.—Days of pomp were recalled when the contents of a royal palace here were auctioned because the upkeep cost $20,000 annually in local taxes alone. The heirs of Prince and Princess Leopold of Bavaria sold out rather than risk further deficits in the family budget.

Princess Leopold, formerly Archduchess Gisela of Austria, was Emperor Francis Joseph's oldest daughter. She died last July, having survived her husband, who was Crown Prince Rupprecht's uncle by two years.

Pictures and furniture went "dirt cheap." The Polish Government bought for $1600 a large canvas by Joseph von Brandt, representing the liberation of Vienna by King John III Sobieski of Poland. It has been a Polish wedding present to the princely couple. For many valuable objects there were no bids.

Chancellor Throop of Washington University will deliver the address of welcome Thursday morning. Special papers will be read by Dr. M. R. Trabue of Minnesota University, and Dean Frank M. Debatin of Washington University.

Miss Mary Bryan to Wed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The engagement of Miss Mary Sholes Bryan, granddaughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, and Alfred Smith Forsyth, New York attorney, was announced today. The marriage will take place next spring. Miss Bryan is the daughter of Mrs. H. Berger Bryan of Fredericksburg, Va., and William Jennings Bryan Jr., of Beverly Hills, Cal.

HOMES FOR THE AGED HERE OVERCROWDED

Over-crowding, waiting lists and inquiries doubled by the depression were shown in a study of St. Louis and St. Louis County homes for the aged, made public yesterday by the Community Council.

"A respecter of no class," reported the investigators, "the depression has played perhaps the greatest and most pitiful havoc with the fates of the aged, leaving them homeless in their few remaining years."

The City Infirmary reported it was caring for 1015 men and women, white and Negro, as compared with 800 at this time in 1929. Despite admission of 512 pateints this year, the waiting list stands at 200. Applicants must wait three months to a year for admission.

A linen room has been converted into a dormitory at 2209 Hebert street, where the Little Sisters of the Poor care for 234 destitute men and women who are more than 60 years old. Those on the waiting list will have to wait six months. No more applications can be accepted, although two or three persons daily seek admission. The order cares for 256 in another old folks' home on the South Side.

Kirkwood Home Overcrowded.

The Old Folks' Home of St. Louis County, at Kirkwood, which cares for County residents 65 and older, could fill another home the same size right now, said its president, Mrs. Albert E. Wiedmer. With a normal capacity of 47, it is caring for 54 with a waiting list of 12 and 30 inquiries a month, as compared with 25 inquires annually before the depression. Twelve persons have been admitted to the waiting list, but must wait a year or two before the home can accommodate them.

Only 16 of the 43 persons who sought to enter the Jewish Orthodox Old Folks' Home, 1438 East Grand avenue, could be admitted this year, reported Mrs. Leah Gellman, superintendent. It cares for 129 old men and women.

Additions Made to Home.

The Home for the Friendless, 4431 South Broadway, has built a new infirmary, dining room and kitchen which enables it to care for 86 women 65 and older, as compared to accommodations for 75 in 1929. About three persons a day have attempted to get on its waiting list in the last month, although some of those already waiting may not be able to enter the home for two years, Mrs. N. E. Collins, matron, said many applicants were working women who had been laid off and wished to enter a home before their money was gone.

Applications to enter the Colored Old Folks' Home, 3837 Eugenia avenue, have double. The home is able to care for 21 persons by putting some of them three in a room.

IN MEMORIAM

EHRLER, LOUISE—In loving memory of Louise Ehrler, who passed away Nov. 2, 1931:

Her smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall;
She had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet her,
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp her hand in the better land,
Never to part again.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, MOTHER, SISTERS and RELATIVES.

FAUTH, GEORGE J.—In loving memory of our only son and brother, Private First Class George J. Fauth, who made the supreme sacrifice Nov. 1, 1918:

Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

HUGHES, TED C.—In memory of Ted C. Hughes, died Oct. 29, 1927. Sadly missed by his MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

KNOLL, LULU—In memory of our dear sister, who died Oct. 25, 1928:
Gone but not forgotten.
Her Sister, MRS. DORA SIMON.

LONG, IDA A.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away one year ago today.
Sadly missed by her CHILDREN. (c)

McCARTHY, WM. J.—Fond remembrance of my husband, died Oct. 31, 1931.
WIFE, AMY.
Anniversary mass, Monday, Oct. 31, 6:45 a. m., St. Edward's Church.

MEYERS, KATIE—In loving memory of our dear mother, who died Nov. 2, 1926:

To have, to love and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.

Remembered forever by her children,
LEEROY, LOTTIE, TOOTSIE, LAVINA AND MONA.

NOLTE, ANNA—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Oct. 30, 1930. Dearly loved and deeply mourned by her DAUGHTERS.

OLSON, WILLIAM T.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who departed this life four years ago, Oct. 31, 1928:

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
Just the love and sweet devotion
Of one who thinks of you.

Sadly missed by WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

PESCHKE—In sad and loving memory of our dear father, Emil B. Peschke Sr., who departed this life Nov. 2, 1929.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

PREIS, IDA AND CHARLES—In memory of my dear parents, Ida Preis, who died Nov. 2, 1928, and Charles Preis, who died Dec. 9, 1928:

Rest in peace my dearest parents,
Years may go, but memories stay;
You are gone, but not forgotten,
For I shall meet you some sweet day.

SON.

REILLY, MARTIN—Departed this life Oct. 25, 1930.
Deep in our hearts lies a picture of a husband and father we laid to rest. In memory's frame we shall keep him.

Sadly missed by WIFE, CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN. (c)

ZAMZOW, EDWARD W.—In loving remembrance of Edward W. Zamzow, who died Nov. 1, 1930:

Two years, and silent tears still fall
Because you were the dearest of all;
And how I miss you here and there,
Oh, I miss you everywhere;
Though life and death are far apart,
We're always together in my heart;
But parting left a life of sad regret;
Some remember, but I can't forget.

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF GULF LUMBER COMPANY.

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the stockholders of Gulf Lumber Company has been called for Saturday, December 10, 1932, at 2:00 o'clock P. M., at the "Bungalow" situated at the millsite at Fullerton, Vernon Parish, Louisiana, for the following purposes:

(1) To consider, vote upon and authorize amending Article IV of the Articles of Incorporation of said company so as to reduce the par value of common capital stock from shares of $100 each to shares having a par value of $0.25 each; such a change reduces the aggregate par value of the outstanding capital stock from the present authorization of $3,500,000.00 to $8,750.00.

(2) To consider, vote upon and authorize all matters and things which may be necessary, proper or appropriate to carry into effect any amendment or amendments authorized at said meeting, or any adjournment thereof.

(3) To consider, vote upon and authorize any and all other matters and things which may be presented at said meeting, or any adjournment thereof.

By order of the President.
CHAS. E. EBERLE,
Assistant Secretary. (c8)

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

OUR ST. LOUIS BRANCH WILL TAKE ON A LIMITED FEW MEN WHO NEED EMPLOYMENT AND WHO WISH TO SEE IF THEY CAN DO THIS WORK. THOSE WHO CAN QUALIFY CAN MAKE $35 TO $80 PER WEEK IMMEDIATELY. WE WILL TRAIN SUCH MEN FREE. WE WILL FURNISH FULL EQUIPMENT WITH NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED.

Expanding business makes possible this offer—1932 is ahead of 1931. 1931 was by far our biggest year. A similar offer recently gave responsible, adaptable men permanent employment in our organization throughout the entire country. Thus a former carpenter made $45 his first two days in this business. A former insurance man started on a Friday and made over $20 for 15 hours' work.

We have no room for drifters or wishers. This is no get-rich-quick scheme. You cannot make money here unless you earn it. Some men who apply to us fail to fulfill the requirements, but we have found also that many men who never even thought they could do work of this kind have found it to be just the opportunity they sought for years, and are now making more money than they ever previously dreamed of making. We have men making up to $750 a month. Others $600, $500, $400.

Some of our best men never sold anything before. We instruct you so you can do the work.

The method is so effective, the product is so highly saleable, so thoroughly amazing in the way it sidesteps the "We have no money" objection, that new sales records are being made every month, to the envy and admiration of informed business men here and elsewhere. For example, a former chauffeur earned $225 for his last week reported as compared with $4600 for the past six months, an average of $185 per week. He is now in his second year in this work and should earn well over $10,000 in 1933. A former real estate agent started in this work in February and averaged only $87.50 per week his first three months, but last month earned $800. A former steam-fitter made $195 for his last week reported; a former accountant made $900; a former salesman made $160 that same week; another man made over $20 his first two days.

If you are of good reputation, active, alert, willing to learn and to work hard every day to make genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and to get along, make your application Monday morning, 9:15 to 1:15 only, at 561-564 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive streets.

Home Appliance Salesmen

is the first to offer salesmen a complete line of home appliances, each one bearing the G. E. monogram the emblem of quality and research.

ADVANTAGE. Experience has proved the tremendous difficulty encountered in selling an assortment of manufacturers.

COMPLETE LINE. The G. E. line permits you to tell one sales story. Splendid field for cultivating new customers.

PRICE AND QUALITY. Each line offers both.

CAMPBELL, MO., CITY OFFICERS IN 'CIVIL CONTEMPT'

Penalized With Firm That Sold Them Equipment for Operating Municipal Power Plant.

City officials of Campbell, Mo., and Fairbanks, Morse & Co. were held to be guilty of "civil contempt" in an opinion yesterday by Federal Judge Faris in a case involving operation of a municipal light plant at Campbell.

The case was in court on the complaint of the Arkansas-Missouri Power Co., which has a franchise to operate a light plant in Campbell until 1935. As punishment, the Court ordered the defendants to pay to the complainant company all profits of the municipal plant, which was placed in operation in 1930, and in addition to pay the costs of the litigation and attorneys' fees.

The Arkansas-Missouri Power Co. complained that the plan whereby the city built the plant and was to pay for equipment purchased from Fairbanks, Morse & Co., was in violation of the constitutional limitation on the city's authority to incur debt. The city voted a bond issue of $20,000 to pay for the distribution system and was to aset aside from earnings of the plant $866.20 a month to retire the bonds and pay off a debt of $40,000 to Fairbanks, Morse & Co.

Although the ordinance specified the $40,000 debt was not to be a general obligation of the city, the Court held that the taking of all the earnings to pay it made it a general debt in excess of the constitutional limit. This decision was affirmed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals last Jan. 8. The contract was revised, but Judge Faris held yesterday it did not cure the violation of the constitutional limitation.

As a consequence of the earlier decisions Judge Faris had issued an injunction against operation of the plant. It was for violation of this injunction that the contempt order was issued.

The city officials named in the order are Mayor W. A. Flanagan, City Clerk D. A. Snider, City Treasurer Lulu Davis and Aldermen R. N. Gourley, H. V. Sewell, H. E. Chapman and J. F. Proctor. Under the order they are not liable to imprisonment or personally liable for damages.

Judge Faris said that in fixing the punishment he followed the precedent of the United States Supreme Court in a civil contempt case. The city has the right of appeal.

JEWELER BEATEN TO DEATH IN ATCHISON, KAN., STORE

Police Think Robbery Was Motive; Body Found Wedged Behind Showcase.

By the Associated Press.

ATCHISON, Kan., Oct. 29.—Myron Berkson, 68 years old, business man here for many years, was found beaten to death in his jewelry store tonight.

Police said robbery apparently was the motive for the crime. Police were called to Berkson's store by an unidentified person who apparently had entered and found no one to transact business.

Berkson's body was found wedged behind a showcase in the store. His head had been crushed and the upper part of his body was covered with bruises. No weapon was found.

The safe, in which Berkson was known to keep his money, was not opened.

Berkson, a bachelor, also was a pawnbroker.

POLICE IN RADIO CAR CATCH BURGLAR IN STORE

Druggist Had Phoned When He Heard Glass Breaking Downstairs.

Police in a radio car captured a burglar in a drug store at 2780 North Taylor avenue, early yesterday, shortly after the druggist, Robert Epstein, who lives above the store, had telephoned he heard the crash of breaking glass.

The burglar, who said he was Archie J. Woodson, former convict, had entered by knocking out a pane in the back door and unfastening a bar from the inside. His automobile, equipped with radio, was parked near the store.

When police found boxes of cigarettes and cigars at his home, in the 1100 block of Walton avenue, he admitted burglary of a drug store at 4901 Easton avenue early Friday. He has served two prison terms for burglary.

WINTER TO ADDRESS STUDENTS

Candidate Will Talk Tuesday on Interest in Government.

Lieutenant-Governor Winter, Republican nominee for Governor, will speak under auspices of the Washington University Young Men's Republican Club at 11:20 a. m. next Tuesday, at Graham Memorial Chapel on the university campus. He will talk about the interest of young men in political and governmental affairs.

The public will be welcome. Harry Chapman, club president, will preside. Prof. Isaac Lippincott of the school of business and public administration will introduce the speaker.

MEETS CAULFIELD'S CHALLENGE DENYING USELESS EMPLOYES

Head of State Democratic Committee Names Several Members of Governor's Family.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 29.—Rubey M. Hulen, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, addressing a State rally of the Young Democrats here tonight, replied to Gov. Caulfield's recent request that Judge Park, Democratic nominee for Governor, name any "useless employe" of the State government. The Governor said that if such an employe were shown, he would be removed at once.

Hulen said that the daughter of Lieutenant-Governor Winter, Republican candidate for Governor, was on the State payroll for a time during the 1929 legislative session, and, Democratic speakers have charged, was then attending Jefferson City High School. He censured Winter in this connection.

He then named as present State employes the Governor's nephew, William E. Caulfield Jr., clerk in the State Grain Department, the Governor's brother, O. P. Caulfield, of the State Automobile License Office, and nine relatives, by blood and marriage, of State Auditor Thompson, Republican candidate for Secretary of State, who are employed in various State departments.

He offered no facts to show that any of them was "useless." Hulen mentioned also the Governor's brother, William E. Caulfield, as holding a receivership under appointment by a Circuit Judge who was an appointee of the Governor, and the Governor's son-in-law, Clarence Barksdale, as "specialist on liquidating defunct banks under Hoover prosperity."

WILBUR ADVISES USE OF BRAINS AND NOT KICKING APPARATUS

Thinks Democrats Are Mistaken in Depending on Emotional Reaction of Voters.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 29.—Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior and college classmate of President Hoover, asserted today the Democratic party was attempting to win its way to office on the basis of an emotional reaction among the voters.

"I think the Democrats are mistaken," he said, "and I think that the people will use their brains instead of their kicking apparatus. Will the majority sit up and look at the facts, or will they merely go to the polls and vote the depression? That is the great decision that must be made."

Wilbur asserted the only "insurance policy" the American people have had was written by President Hoover. The result, he said has given them only a taste of dangers that have been avoided.

"The President's outstanding characteristic is courage," he told the City Club. "He is not fighting for himself. He is fighting for the American people, because he sees that the Democrats have no program and he realizes that the American people are endangered."

'SILK HAT HARRY' SHOT FLEEING FROM POLICEMAN

Burglar and Ex-Convict Has Record of More Than 250 Arrests.

"Silk Hat Harry" Guyot, burglar with a record of more than 250 arrests and three prison sentences, was shot in the left arm early yesterday when he tried to get away from an officer who took him to a patrol box.

Patrolman Lewis McPherson made the arrest as Guyot came out of a hallway near 1402 South Grand boulevard with two boxes of cigars under his arm and a carton of cigarettes in his coat. In fleeing from the patrol box, at Grand boulevard and Park avenue, Guyot dropped the tobacco. McPherson called halt and fired only once.

Although the tobacco later was found to have been stolen from the Wide-Awake Restaurant, 1424 South Grand, Guyot would make no statement. He is 48 years, old has served two terms in the State Penitentiary for burglary and one in a Federal prison for theft, and has been in the Workhouse numerous times for petty larceny and vagrancy.

HELD FOR KILLING NEIGHBOR AT MONTGOMERY CITY, MO.

Farmer Ordered Held by Coroner's Jury With Victim's Wife and Brother-in-Law as Accessories.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY CITY, Mo., Oct. 29.—A Coroner's jury tonight ordered Wesley Preston, farmer, held for first degree murder for the killing of James Anderson, whose body was found last night on the Anderson farm, and that Anderson's widow and her brother, William Villion, be held as accessories.

Preston testified at the Coroner's inquest today that he had shot at Anderson twice last Aug. 3 then had killed him with the butt of his gun. Preston also told of having buried the body on the farm.

Dr. Buell F. Menefee told the jury that Anderson had been killed by a blow and that, when he examined the body, he found no evidence of gunshot wounds.

Mrs. Anderson said her husband and Preston had been in the barn Aug. 3, that she heard two shots then Preston had come to the house and obtained a gun before returning to the barn. She heard another shot, she testified, and later saw her husband's body near the house.

Villion told of having heard three shots while he was in a nearby field and said Preston said he had killed Anderson after Anderson had fired twice at him.

REED AND PARK WILL TALK AT PARTY RALLY

Democrats Plan Citywide Meeting Tomorrow Night at Coliseum.

James A. Reed, for 18 years United States Senator from Missouri, and Judge Guy B. Park, Democratic nominee for Governor, will be the speakers at a city-wide rally in the Coliseum tomorrow night. It is planned to make this, second only to the recent Roosevelt meeting in the same place, the biggest demonstration of the Democratic campaign here.

Rubey M. Hulen, State chairman, will preside, and will introduce State and local candidates. Senator Reed's speech will be broadcast on Station WIL from 8:45 to 9:30 p. m. Loud speakers will be in use in the building, and for an outside crowd if needed. There will be no charge for admission, but box seats will be given to contributors of $10 to the State Committee, to help defray expenses of the meeting.

For the rest of the week, regional rallies will be held nightly in different parts of the city. Bennett C. Clark, Democratic senatorial nominee, and Judge Park will speak at several meetings.

Judge Park will speak at the City Club at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday, and at Paulian Hall, Union boulevard and Easton avenue, Tuesday night. Another meeting Tuesday night will be at the Greek Church, 4955 Forest Park boulevard, where Clark, Judge Park and Congressman Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City will speak. Judge Park will speak the same night at Rock Spring Turner Hall, Chouteau and Boyle avenues, and James R. Claiborne, candidate for Congress.

Wednesday night Clark and Park will speak at St. Louis Turner Hall, 1508 Chouteau avenue, and at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets. Thursday night they will appear at Polish-American Hall, 1938 Cass avenue, and at Concordia Hall, Thirteenth and Arsenal streets. Friday night Clark will speak at Hibernian Hall, on Finney avenue west of Grand boulevard; Decker Hall, 812 North Tenth street; and Liederkranz Hall, Grand boulevard and Flad avenue.

Similar activity is planned throughout the State, with meetings in all the 114 counties and in all the cities and larger towns. Much printed matter, coming in part from national headquarters, will be distributed through the State.

Three Democratic radio broadcasts nightly, for the rest of the campaign, will originate in St. Louis, on stations KMOX, KWK and WIL. Among the radio speakers will be former Gov. Gardner, Samuel W. Fordyce, E. M. Grossman, Ernest A. Green, W. Frank Carter, Arthur V. Lashly, Glendy B. Arnold, Guy A. Thompson, William T. Jones, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, Mrs. Mary Ryder, Russell L. Dearmont, Gale F. Johnson, Thomas L. Anderson, Daniel G. Taylor, Clark and Judge Park.

YOUTH WHO KILLED AUNT HELD SANE, MUST SERVE LIFE TERM

California U. Student Attacked Woman and Husband With Knife Last July.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 29.—George Douglas Templeton Jr., was declared sane today by a jury of five men and seven women which previously had convicted him of slaying his aunt, Mrs. Lillian Babcock. The verdict means he will be sentenced to San Quentin prison for life.

Templeton took the verdict nonchalantly. He munched an apple as the jury foreman handed the verdict to the clerk, who read it. His parents, too, were calm.

Templeton, 20-year-old University of California student, was accused of stealing into the house where Mrs. Babcock and her husband, William Rider Babcock, a Manila importer, were sleeping, and attacking them with a knife last July 26. Babcock recovered.

Defense attorneys contended he was unbalanced by deep feeling over financial dealings between his father and his uncle.

CZECHS OPPOSE TARIFF HIKE

U. S. Increases Duty on Rubber Shoes by 30 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—A protest against increased duties on Czecho-Slovakian rubber shoes was filed today by the Czech Legation. The protest requested reconsideration and revocation of a recent order of the United States Customs Bureau against suspected "dumping" of rubber footwear. It said the increased duties of 30 per cent practically made further Czech shipments impossible.

"It is regrettable that suspicions of the Customs Bureau should have resulted in issuance of an order raising duties just at this time, despite the fact that several investigations have not as yet come to any conclusion, whether these Czech goods actually come under the head of dumping," Ferdinand Veverka, the Czecho-Slovakian Minister, said to newspaper men after the protest was filed. "The increased duties could not have come at a worse time for us, as the Czech rubber shoe shipments are now at their height preparatory for meeting the winter demands."

J. H. Whitecotton to Speak.

State Senator James H. Whitecotton of Paris, Mo., and candidates for State and county offices will address a Democratic mass meeting at Kinloch Community Hall, St. Louis County, at 8 o'clock tonight.

FORMER HOOVER SECRETARY TO VOTE FOR ROOSEVELT

John Marrinan, Who Served When Executive Was in Cabinet, Announces Preference.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. — The National Progressive League, organized to work for Gov. Roosevelt, announced today that John Marrinan, secretary to President Hoover when the latter was Secretary of Commerce, would vote for the Democratic presidential candidate.

The announcement quoted a letter by Marrinan to A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, saying in part:

"After having heard Mr. Hoover address himself to farm problems, and to those of unemployment, I have decided to join with those of his old friends and former supporters who regretfully have determined that his leadership lacks that degree of human comprehension and economic understanding necessary to point the country back toward recovery.

"While observing in Mr. Roosevelt less of statistical agility, we find in him more of that kind of intellectual approach which starts with the practical welfare of the farmer and worker and then fits industry, commerce, finance, and all their appurtenances into the picture."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. — The Democratic National Committee gave prominence today to a letter written by Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester Co., and former chairman of the Federal Farm Board, denying a report that his company's plants would close if Roosevelt were elected.

The letter was written by Legge to the Chicago Tribune, dated Oct. 21, and said in part:

"The letter published on the editorial page of today' Chicago Tribune from a contributor signing himself Charles Tyler is untrue and unjustifiable and is calculated to injure the business of the International Harvester Co.

"There is no truth whatsoever in Mr. Tyler's statement that we called a meeting of Harvester employes in the Moline-Davenport area and informed them that if the Democratic nominee were elected, we planned to close down our factory there for two year.

"The Harvester company's plans and programs depend upon economic conditions, not on political conditions. We have firm faith in the future of American agriculture."

MORMON CHURCH 'TAKING NO PART' IN SMOOT'S CAMPAIGN

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 29.—A statement declaring officers of the Latter Day Saints Church are taking no part in the political campaign in this state in their official capacities was issued today. It was signed by Herbert J. Grant, president of the church who is in Chicago recovering from a surgical operation; Anthony W. Ivins, his first counselor, and Rudger Clawson, president of the council of 12.

"We neither aid nor oppose any candidate or party," the statement says. "We offer no counsel to members of the church which may be considered partisan in its nature. We urge all to a dispassionate, intelligent and honest use of the ballot, but we do not attempt to influence the choice of any voter." United States Senator Reed Smoot, candidate for re-election to his his sixth consecutive term on the Republican ticket, is a member of the Council of 12.

Kansas City Ex-Mayor Says 'Boss' Wants to Rule Boards.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 29.—Former Mayor Albert I. Beach of Kansas City, described Circuit Judge Guy B. Park, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, as a "respectable unknown nominated by Tom Pendergast, Kansas City machine boss, in order to gain control of the Missouri State government," in a campaign address here tonight. He urged the election of Lieutenant-Governor E. H. Winter, Republican, as a "man qualified by training and experience" to be Governor of Missouri.

Beach said Judge Park was nominated "because Tom Pendergast overran the weak remonstrances of other qualified candidates, who knew they were caught in a trap, because the Kansas City boss wants to extend his control to such State institutions as the Highway Department, the Public Service Commission, the Penitentiary and the Food and Drug Department."

'PANTHER WOMAN' TO MARRY

Recent Movie Recruit Explains Chicagoan's Presence at Studio.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 29.—Announcement of her engagement to marry him was the answer given today by Kathleen Burke, 19-year-old "panther woman," to the protests of officials against the constant presence of Glen R. Rardin, Chicago photographer, about the studio. They will be married, she said, as soon as there is a lull in her movie work.

Rardin closed his Chicago studio and came here when Miss Burke, whose home is in Chicago, won a recent national contest to select an amateur actress to play the role of the "panther woman" in a forthcoming motion picture. He is a former member of the University of Indiana football team.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29.—The Panther, regal jungle cat and football team alike, is most dangerous when wounded, cornered. it bares its fangs for the last fight to the death.

A mighty Notre Dame eleven, hailed the greatest in the land, found that out for the first time today as the Panthers of Pittsburgh, battered and groggy, lashed out, in a dying fourth-quarter effort that stunned the green grenadiers from South Bend, sent them reeling down to a 12-to-0 defeat, and chalked on the pages of football history one of the greatest upsets of all times.

Driven like sheep before the charge of 11 shepherds in bright green, the Panthers reeled through three periods of a struggle that held a mammoth crowd of 65,000 in the huge stadium on Pittsburgh's highest hill breathless with fear for the home boys. Three times, once in each scoreless quarter, the Panthers staggered back under the drive of a team they say in the Mid-West is the best that ever came out of the Indiana University where Knute Rockne founded the greatest of modern football dynasties.

Each time the effort was greater, the plight of the hapless defenders more desperate. Each time that bitter drive was greater than anyone had expected, and the great crowd huddled against the bitter wind that swept the field, seemed only to hope that from somewhere the Panther would summon strength enough to keep the raiders from the goal line up to the end.

But although the depression leered at Bob, he didn't scare worth a cent. He socked it. He did this by decreasing the cost of production of fight shows to the promoter—especially to the handlers of smaller shows.

Riley found two or three years ago that, although fight promoters in distant cities might like to use his boxers, the cost of shipping these fighters from the West to the East, North or South was sometimes prohibitive.

Transportation Problem Solved

WHEN a promoter signed a fighter for a bout a few years ago, it meant that for each and every battler brought to the scene of action it required two round trip tickets and expenses!

Figure what that would total, for example, if Jack Tippett wanted to bring a boxer from Philadelphia or New York here. The cost would be about $250. For ordinary fights that would be half as much as a principal in the main event could expect.

Add transportation and expense costs for a four-bout program and the total would dis-

Michigan Team Spots Princeton 7 Points, Then Makes 14 of Its Own

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 29.—The Maize and Blue clad warriors of Michigan, badly outplayed in the first two periods, hit the comeback trail during the second half of their gridiron battle with Princeton's Tigers here this afternoon and emerged with a 14 to 7 victory.

Michigan	0	2	6	6—14

Michigan scoring: Touchdowns—Bernard, Ward. Safety—Bales (tackled by Ward).

After being helpless on the ground and in the air for half of the game, the Wolverines showed a great change of form and scored touchdowns in the third and fourth periods. A punt blocked by Capt. Ivy Williamson turned the tide of battle. Chuck Bernard, Michigan center, grabbed the ball and ran two yards for the score.

It was the hard line plunging of Jack James, Princeton fullback, that gave the visitors the advantage in the first half. Michigan's forwards were unable to stop his plunges and the homecoming crowd of 30,000 saw the Wolverines fall behind for the first time this season.

A break gave the Tigers their opportunity to score in the second period. A light rainfall made the ball slippery, and Harry Newman fumbled a punt on the Michigan 16-yard line. The ball was recovered by Fairman of Princeton. James gained 13 yards on three plunges, and Bales took the ball across the Wolverine goal line. Fortune place-kicked the extra point.

A safety gave Michigan two points in the same period.

After the rest between halves, the Wolverines used a seven-man line most of the time and were more successful in stopping James' smashes at the guard.

Johnny Regeczi and Ted Petoskey then reeled off first downs on tries at the tackles, and the Wolverine rushing attack took the ball to Princeton's 33-yard line before the Tigers braced. Regeczi punted out of bounds at the 10-yard line, and on the second play Williamson rushed in to bat the ball off the punter's toe. There was a wild scramble for the pigskin, which finally reached the hands of Chuck Bernard. His touchdown gave Michigan an 8-to-7 lead. Newman's attempted place-kick was wide.

The second Michigan touchdown came midway in the final period on a forward pass from Newman to War

The victory gave the Wolverines a clean record for intersectional football games since 1926. Their victims include Navy, Harvard and Princeton.

Ohio State Again Forced to Accept Tie.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—The deadlock jinx again haunted the Ohio State University football team today as it played a 7 to 7 tie with Wisconsin before 17,000 customers.

Three weeks ago Ohio was held to a similar tie by Indiana and last Saturday played Pittsburgh to a scoreless deadlock.

Statistics showed Ohio registering 13 first downs to two for the Badgers and gaining 141 yards from scrimmage to 36 for Wisconsin. In the air Ohio made 59 yards on four completed passes to one yard on one completion by Wisconsin.

Scoring: Touchdowns, Minnesota, Tenner (sub for Larson); point from Try after touchdown, Manders (place kick). Referee: Fred Gardner, Cornell; umpire, H. G. Hedges, Dartmouth; field judge, John Getchell, St. Thomas; head linesman, J. Lipp, Chicago.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 29.—Minnesota unpacked a driving power house attack, centering around big Jack Manders today and swept to a 7 to 0 victory over Northwestern before 35,000 chilled fans.

Four times the Gophers drove down the field but in three cases the fighting Wildcats stopped them only five yards short of the goal.

Success finally crowned the Gophers' effort when Fullback Manders, temporarily in the role of signal caller, changed the offensive strategy from running plays to passes.

Starting from midfield, a pass from Pug Lund, halfback, to Robert Tenner, a substitute end, paved the way. The drive climaxed with another pass on fourth down with 18 yards to go, with Tenner catching the ball on another of Lund's throws behind the goal line for the only touchdown. Manders placekicked the extra point.

Minnesota gained 330 yards to 96 for the Wildcats. The power of the Minnesota running attack was evidenced by its total gains from rushing of 266 yards to 69 for Northwestern, while the Gophers also topped the Wildcats in aerial gains with 64 yards gained on five successful passes out of 14 attempted.

Hagen in Tie for Lead.

By the Associated Press.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. 29.—The North Carolina open golf tournament reached the three-quarter mark today with Walter Hagen of Detroit and Henry Picard, young Charleston (S. C.) professional, tied for the lead with 222 strokes each.

ILLINOIS UPSETS CHICAGO, 13-7, ON TWO THRUSTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—The fighting Illini of Illinois today fought themselves out of the depths of Western Conference football to score a startling 13 to 7 triumph over Chicago and wreck the Maroons' hope of a Big Ten title.

The Illini had to fight to win their first conference victory since 1929 when they defeated Chicago on the scene of today's upset. The Maroons needed less than two minutes and only four plays to hack their way to a touchdown, and in the second period the Illini three times gallantly thrust back drives that seemed certain of adding to the Chicago total.

Then in the third period they came out with a forward passing assault that revealed the cunning touch of Coach Bob Zuppke. Drilled to watch Gil Berry's shots at Pete Yanuskus, the Maroons overlooked Frank Froshauer, sophomore halfback starting his first Big Ten game. From the Illinois 46-yard line, Berry fired three to Froshauer and the last was good for 24 yards and a touchdown. Yanuskus tied the score with his place kick.

With Chicago still upset over the suddenness of the Illinois raid, Berry staged the most sensational play of the game a few moments later. Birney quick kicked, but Berry was ready, and snatching the ball on his own 25-yard line, raced through the whole Chicago team for the winning touchdown, a journey of 75 yards. The Maroons rushed over a score in four plays. Vinson Sahlin clipped off 14 yards, and Pat Page and Birney took the ball to the 29-yard line. Then Sahlin shot over his own left tackle for the touchdown and Page placekicked for the point.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 29.—Jimmy Conzelman's Washington University Bears scored a great victory this afternoon. The Missouri Tigers, coached by Frank Carideo and eager to turn the tide of their season's fortunes, outran, outpassed, outkicked and overpowered a lighter Washington University eleven, but the Bears, inspired at critical moments and alert always, defeated the stronger State University team, 14 to 6.

Missouri made 17 first downs to the Bears' five. Missouri gained 246 yards from scrimmage to 103 for the light Washington team. Missouri completed six forward passes, while the Bears completed only one. Missouri showed more power at every phase of football, but despite it all the Bears emerged triumphant, scoring Washington's first victory over Missouri since 1923.

Bears Take Advantage of "Breaks."

Carideo's squad, hungry for its first touchdown and its first decision of the year, played its best game of 1932 and yet it was not good enough, because the Bears were invincible when their goal was in danger and because they seized Old Man Opportunity and tweaked his nose on the two occasions when he knocked at their door.

Washington had to fight hard to protect the lead that they gained by scoring a touchdown in the first quarter and another in the second, and there were times when it seemed that Missouri, by sheer manpower, would break down the Bear defense and make the 14 points unimportant. But the fighting spirit was sufficient, and while the statisticians' report will show the Tigers as superior in virtually every department of the game, there is no one who will tell you that Washington did not deserve its victory.

Bears' Line a Stone Wall.

To Washington's stalwart line must go a great measure of credit for victory. If you want to pin the larel wreath on an individual's brow, you could not do better than to single out little big Gus Erspamer. The chunky little Washington center was one of those towers of strength that you hear so much about. He darted through the line and nailed Missouri ball carriers before they were fairly started. Or, if he was bowled out of action as the ball was snapped, he foight his way again to the thick of the battle and made his presence felt.

But as in the case of the unexpected victory over Grinnell, it was another triumph for the entire Washington team. Heitmeyer, a right guard, who had had only one day's practice on the other side of the line, was forced to play left guard when Harvey Smith was in-

Cleveland's chances of becoming the City High School League football champions were given a tremendous boost as it won from Roosevelt, 7 to 0, in the first game of the City High School League double-header at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday afternoon.

The attendance was estimated at 5000.

Wilfred Kracke, Cleveland's 155-pound full back was the offensive star of the game. It was Kracke who scored the only touchdown and he added the extra point with a drop kick. The score came in the first quarter and although Roosevelt threatened several times later, the Rough Riders failed to push the ball over.

Kracke paved the way for the touchdown after Cleveland had recovered a fumble in midfield by running 35 yards to Roosevelt's 15-yard line. On the fourth down, Rapp shot a lateral pass to Kracke who skirted left end for the touchdown. When his dropkick was good Cleveland was provided with its first victory over the Rough Riders' since 1928.

The Roosevelt line, which had received such high praise in holding the Rough Riders' opponents to one touchdown in three games, crumpled before Cleveland's sustained running-attack. Except for a 33-yard pass from Hans to Schwinke at the beginnnig of the game, Cleveland was content with straight football for the most part to nourish its slight lead.

Cleveland outrushed Roosevelt five first downs to four in the first half. In the second half, Roosevelt put on a determined attack that carried the ball to Cleveland's eight-yard line. The Rough Riders ran three plays with no success and on the fourth a bad pass from center caused Kloepper to fumble, Roosevelt losing the ball on downs on the seven-yard line.

At the beginnnig of the final period, Roosevelt recovered a fumble on Cleveland's 42 and battered its way to the 24-yard line.

Again the Cleveland line held and forced the Rough Riders to lose possession of the ball. Late in the game a forward passing attack proved a dismal failure for Roosevelt; the passes either being grounded or intercepted.

Beaumont got off to a great start in the second game by counting twice in the first period. Charley Vitale and Ed Minges carried the ball over for Beaumont and Nickle converted one of the extra points with a line plunge.

In the second period Beaumont was held scoreless because Central started a flurry that carried the ball at the start of the quarter to Beaumont's four-yard mark, with four downs to make the score. Beaumont held for downs at the two-yard line and Ball kicked out of danger.

After its auspicious start, Beaumont gained plenty of ground, but never kept up the march long enough to cross Central's goal line after the first quarter.

The standings:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Soldan	2	0	1.000
Cleveland	2	0	1.000
Beaumont	2	1	.667
Roosevelt	1	1	.500
Central	0	2	.000

courage almost any small time promoter, when added to the guarantees.

Here's the Answer.

RILEY found that his fighters were not being used. He turned his batteries on the problem. He found the answer and it took the form of a circular to promoters in other cities. Here is what it said:

"Transportation! It's a big item in producing boxing shows these days.

"Traveling by automobile, I can give you three or four GOOD fighters on your next card for the carfare expense of ONE fighter."

And he did. He rigged up a flivver with accommodations for four and he travels in it with his fighters. He looks after them himself and his expense is extremely low. The promoters pay his gasoline bill. Instead of eight railroad tickets for four fighters he can get them for one-eighth the former transportation cost.

Has he made a hit! Milwaukee, Savannah, Ga., New Orleans and points West all are using Bob Riley's boxers—and they like them. Riley is the Moses whose idea is leading them out of the wilderness.

Of course his plan is being copied. And it is probable that the days when even main event fighters can insist on rail transportation for two or more persons has gone forever. The overhead will not stand for it. And the promoters don't have to, thanks to Riley.

He Has the Goods.

IN addition to an idea, Riley has some pretty good fighters. Lou Terry and Dave Barry are very well regarded scrappers. Barry has real class and Terry is tough for all of them.

Recently Terry and Barry were shown in Savannah, Ga., on the travel-by-auto plan. Both boys pleased the crowd and in appreciation of their efforts and Riley's co-operation the Secretary of the Chatham Athletic Club of Savannah, which put on the show, and the secretary of the Savannah Boxing Commission so far forgot the usual disparaging after-the-fight attitude that they wrote letters of commendation to Riley complimenting him and his boys on their fine fighting and splendid co-operation.

It's the first time such an act of appreciation has been called to this writer's attention since boxing and wrestling commissions began to meddle with and muddle our professional sports.

Riley has, or has recently had in his stable, in addition to Barry and Terry, Howard Scott, Chick Rains, Vale Falegano, Allen Whitlow, Jackie Horner, Johnny Hoekstra, Benny Deathpain, Johnny Miles and others. He has done well with all of them and has kept Terry and Barry especially busy.

Not Forgotten, Just Overlooked

LOU TERRY is perhaps, the fighter in Riley's stable deserving most attention. In St. Louis, Terry's home town, fight fans take him rather lightly, although he has had a long and strenuous career. Terry is as tough as mahogany. He never has been knocked down or taken a count. He can hit a terrific punch and he has had the experience of 90 fights, 12 of which he lost ON POINTS.

Has Had 68 Foes on the Floor.

TERRY never has won or lost on a foul. He is aggressive and the only way to make him back up is to knock him back. He has won from a long line of local celebrities. He has knocked out 34 of his 90 opponents and has knocked down 68 of them.

His conquerors have been some of the best boys in his class, including Wesley Ramey, Tracey Cox, Frank Bojorski, Joe Ghnouly, etc. He defeated Battling Shaw, a fighter who stopped Ghnouly, now ranked as No. 2 among the challengers for the junior lightweight title.

Despite all this if one mentions that Lou Terry is going to fight here, fans will assume a sort of "ouch, my sore lip" expression and remark that they are going to see him get knocked out. But that hasn't happened yet. It isn't often he is even outpointed. But for some reason he has not been able to win the favor of local fight fans.

Barry is different. He has caught on. Ring followers believe he is a pretty good boy; and although Terry has accomplished far more, he just can't horn in to popularity.

But, thanks to the auto-bus and the out-of-town promoters, Terry and Riley are still contributing to the entertainment of the "bush towns" and getting the glad hand instead of the marble heart as served up at home.

Mickey Is Hightailing.

SEE where Mickey Walker once more eased out of a fight with Maxie Rosenbloom, making the third down and a long way to go for the toy bulldog. Mickey's first runout of a match with the light-heavyweight king was in Detroit. He pulled it again in Chicago and now, according to his manager, Frank Bachman, who was in the city yesterday, he sidestepped again in New York.

Well, what about it? It only proves Walker's intelligence. Mickey knows there's little use trying to fight a rubber ball; and Maxie personifies one when in the ring.

Walker proved some time ago that he did not want to fight the Bounding Buck of the New York night clubs. Instead of graduating normally from the middle weight to the light-heavyweight class, Mickey a couple of years ago hurdled clear over the light-heavies, because Maxie Rosenbloom guarded the throne room of that division. In jumping backwards out of the heavyweight class, Mickey is once more zooming over Rosenbloom in the hope of finding something soft among the middleweights.

No Punch, but Dangerous.

IN the meantime, Rosenbloom goes bouncing along, one of the queerest and most dangerous rivals a title candidate could face. Maxie can't flatten his foes but he makes them look foolish in the ring and carves them outrageously during a fight.

He has fought 25 times in nine months, according to Bachman, and has defended his title claims twice. He has beaten them all. The N. B. A. champion, George Nichols, who hasn't defended his title seriously since he won it, is one of those rivals who thinks Maxie's room is preferable to his company.

Rosenbloom—despite burning the candle at both ends—and in the middle as well—and notwithstanding he fights two or three times a month, is still the best of the lot at his weight and that is why Mickey is always looking out the window when Maxie wants to call his hand.

Rosenbloom and his manager are on their way to San Francisco, where he will fill three engagements, the first against John Henry Lewis, a Negro fighter who has been attracting attention. Lewis will get little comfort out of his 10 rounds' journey with Rosenbloom.

PURDUE ELEVEN SCORES AT WILL AGAINST N.Y.U.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Purdue gave New York City a brilliant sample of Big Ten football today as it passed and ran over New York University for a 34-9 victory, handing the not-so-violent violets their worst defeat since 1924.

Scoring through the line and through the air, the Boilermakers were the masters of the New York team at every turn and cashed in on every scoring opportunity they had, running wild in the second quarter to tally three touchdowns and adding another in each of the third and fourth quarters.

Three-Cushion Billiard Tourney Opens Tomorrow

Gene Deardorff, St. Louis amateur three-cushion billiard champion, and three players from Champaign ,Ill., will start play here tomorrow afternoon in the opening qualifying play of the national three-cushion championship.

The visiting players are Frank I. Fleming, former amateur champion of Illinois, Walter Schwietzka and George H. Sheffer.

WINTER GARDEN TO OPEN SEASON TOMORROW

St. Louis' three national champions, Adolph Furman, John Bretz and Charleen Power, will swing into action Monday night with the official opening of the ice skating season at the Winter Garden, managed by Earl Reflow. Furman is the national 220-yard title-holder, while Bretz holds the championship at five miles and Miss Power the title at 440 yards.

Charles Powers will begin his seventeenth season as the chief instructor at the Winter Garden with Edward Walsh as his assistant.

The opening of the ice palace was delayed a month, due to the installation of new ice-making machinery. The ice is now made by brine that flows through 17-miles of pipe beneath a concrete surface.

Time of halves in each game, 35 minutes.

Halfbacks will dominate the show when the Stix team opposes the Ben Millers in the second game of the St. Louis Soccer League doubleheader at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. With the return of Raphael Tracy to center half, the Ben Millers will present a line which rivals that of the Stix in general effectiveness.

Tracy, who has been out of the game for three weeks because of an injury to his elbow, will be flanked by young Mac Smith, a first-year man, and Joe Diaz, one of the best halfbacks developed here in years. Tracy, Diaz and Smith play almost identically the same style of game. They all have played forward positions at one time or another and each of them has mastered that phase of the game known as ball control. All three pass the ball well and all are cool under fire. In view of the fact that the Stix forward line has not yet perfected a very mystifying attack, the Ben Miller halfbacks may completely bottle them up.

It was the Stix halfback line that saved the day a week ago when the Coca-Colas were beaten, 4 to 2. Lantern-jawed Billy McPherson, who plays right halfback, scored two of the Stix goals. McNab and Hart scored the others. Hart's game at center forward is improving steadily, but still many of the beautifully executed crosses from Alex McNab's foot are wasted. Alec's crosses are really designed to reach the inside left position where in past seasons they were converted into goals by the tall Billy Gonsalves, but the Stix are using Jimmy Roe at that position and he is not quite tall enough to make the most of a high cross.

While it seems likely that the Miller defenders may hold the Stix to a low score, there is not much assurance that the Miller forwards will penetrate the Stix goal. The return of Al Rudge to center forward will give force and purpose to the Miller attack, but the forward line as a whole has not yet shown any real power.

Phil Kavanaugh's Coca-Colas will oppose the Anderson's in the first game of the afternoon. Although he was painfully hurt last Sunday, Ed Gallagher will return to his position at center forward for Kavanaugh's team.

Wentworth Wins Over Principia Eleven, 13 to 0

Displaying a strong offensive in the final quarter the Wentworth Military Academy football eleven from Lexington, Mo., defeated the Principia College team 13 to 0 in a game at Taylor Field yesterday afternoon. The victory placed Wentworth in first place in the Missouri State Junior College Conference race.

Early in the third quarter Capt. Irelan of Principia snatched a Wentworth pass on his own 22-yard line and prevented what might have been a touchdown. Principia showed a better offense in this period carrying the ball twice to within 20 yards of the Wentworth goal while the visitors threatened once in this period, going to the 18-yard line.

Benton, Principia halfback intercepted a pass on his own 16-yard line at the start of the fourth quarter. The locals failed to gain and kicked out of danger. A long pass, White to Wilson gave Wentworth the ball on the Principia 6-yard line. White then circled left end for the first touchdown of the game. Capt. Ellis' kick for the extra point was blocked.

Can You Pick Football Winners? $250 in Awards for Selections

Contest Each Week for Fans to Estimate Scores and Earn Trips to Out-of-Town Games or Cash, If Preferred.

Can you pick winners of big football games? Would you like to receive $100 in cash or four reserved seat tickets and transportation to the Washington U.-Drake game at Des Moines Nov. 12? Fifty dollars or four tickets and transportation to the Missouri-Kansas game at Columbia a week from next Saturday?

The Post-Dispatch today begins a series of Football Scores Contests in which fans will be given an opportunity from week to week to select winners of 15 games and earn awards mentioned above or others in a total of 15 aggregating $250 for each week's competition.

For the opener, 15 games scheduled for next Saturday are listed and fans are inviteid to try to pick the winners. The entries naming the most winners and making the closest estimates of the total score of each contest and who write the best explanation of the basis of the predictions will be given the prizes, totaling $250 in cash or the alternate awards of football trips for the first four in the list of successful contestants, or tickets to a home game for the next 11 best.

Here are the awards:

First Award—$100 in cash—or 4 tickets and transportation to the Washington-Drake game to be played at Des Moines, Nov. 12.

Second Award—$50 in cash or 4 tickets and transportation to the Missouri-Kansas game at Columbia, Nov. 12.

Third Award—$25 in cash, or 2 tickets and transportation to the Missouri-Kansas game.

Fourth Award—$15 in cash, or a single ticket and transportation to the Missouri-Kansas game.

Fifth Award—$10 in cash, or 4 tickets to the St. Louis-Haskell Indians game at Walsh Stadium, Saturday, Nov. 12.

Ten Awards—$5 each, or a pair of tickets to the St. Louis-Haskell Indians game, Nov. 12.

Anyone except Post-Dispatch employes and members of their families may enter the competition. The rules are simple: Name the teams you think will win the listed games, estimate the scores and write a brief letter (using one side of paper only), giving your reasons for thinking the games will come out as you predict. Be sure to include your full name and correct address. Submit only one entry. Mail to the Football Scores Contest Editor, care the Post-Dispatch, Twelfth and Olive streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Selections of the Nov. 5-game winners and letters must be mailed in time to be postmarked before midnight Nov. 3, to be considered for the awards. Judging of the entries will begin as soon as scores of all the 15 games are known. The names of the successful contestants will be announced in the Post-Dispatch Sports Section Tuesday, Nov. 8 Winning contestants will receive notification which must be presented for identification purposes at the sports department to receive prizes. Should the winner of any award live out of town, he or she may write in his preference between the cash or football ticket awards.

This competition will be a real test of football knowledge. The more familiar fans are with the records of the scheduled teams, their scoring capabilities and defensive strength, the better they will be able to name the winners aand estimate the scores. Then, too, there is the brief letter giving the reasons for the selections, which must accompany each entry. The logic of the reasons given will be a consideration in the judging of entries. ONLY ONE LIST FROM A PARTICIPANT WILL BE CONSIDERED.

It is not necessary that you buy the Post-Dispatch to compete. Copies may be examined at public libraries or in the business office of the Post-Dispatch. Nor is it necessary to use the coupon printed herewith, in submitting your entry. Any piece of paper the same size as the coupon may be used. The coupon is printed merely for your convenience. Just make sure that scores are filled in plainly aand that your name and address are clear (preferably printed). And don't forget the brief letter in which you give your reasons for selecting the teams you favor to win.

Rules of the Contest

THE Football Scores Competition is open to everyone except Post-Dispatch employes and members of their families.

Awards will be made to persons who name the largest number of winners; come nearest to estimating the scores of the 15 games listed in this announcement, and give the best reasons for their preferences.

Judging of scores will be governed by the following point system:

An exact total score of any game will rate....4 points
A score one point off will rate..............3 points
A score 2 to 6 points off will rate..........2 points
A score 7 to 14 points off will rate..........1 point

The fifteen games figuring in the competition will be listed in the Post-Dispatch Sports Section Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3. The competition will close at midnight, Nov. 3. Entries to be considered must be postmarked before that time.

A brief letter giving your reasons for naming your preferences must accompany your list of selections.

It is not necessary to use the coupon in the Post-Dispatch. You may use a piece of paper the same size. The coupon is printed merely for your convenience.

You need not buy the Post-Dispatch to compete. The Post-Dispatch may be examined at public libraries or in the Business Office of the Post-Dispatch.

Only one list may be submitted by each participant.

In the event of a tie for any cash award, the full amount of the award tied for will be paid to each tying participant.

jured and Heitmeyer made a fine job of his new assignment. Glynn Clark was in every play. Bill Connett made many an important tackle.

In the backfield no Washington man stood out, unless perhaps it was Captain Harvey Miller, who played a fine defensive game and chewed off bits of yardage to help each Washnigton advance. Defensively the entire Washington backfield co-operated. Conzelman has no outstanding defensive back. But Harry Brown and Max Tyrrell and Kenny Koerner and Frederickson backed up the line splendidly and when the powerful Tiger ball carriers did succeed in breaking through the line, they found a secondary stone-wall to challenge their advance.

Tigers Fortunate to Score.

So valiantly did the Bears perform that despite all the power of the Missouri attack, the Tigers were fortunate to score. The game was drawing to a close and the stands, resigned to a defeat for the Missouri eleven, just another defeat—were making a last plaintive appeal for just a touchdown when fortune finally smiled and gave Carideo's team its first score of the season.

Meiers Scores on 100-Yard Run.

Bit by bit the powerful Tiger backs chewed off the yardage standing in their way. Ross made four and Johnson made it first down on the two-yard line. Johanningmeier was stopped. But the ball was given to him again and he launched his powerful frame at the Washington line. He seemed to be on his way to home-sweet-home when suddenly the ball popped out of his grasp. Bill Meier, always the alert ball hawk, grabbed the ball before it could hit the ground and off he dashed. He was on his own goal line when he grabbed that ball so he had to run the full 100 yards, the length of the gridiron, to convert the break into a touchdown.

The Tigers looked at him in wonder, confused perhaps by the rule which prohibits a man from running with a fumbled ball. But in this instance the ball had been recovered in the air and was similar to an intercepted pass. Meier hesitated as he streaked down the field, but his comrades, spreading out behind him with a huge fan of interference, shouted to him to speed on his way and Meier carried on. Blumberg place-kicked the extra point and the Bears were ahead by 14 points.

"That was the longest afternoon I ever spent in my life," Coach Conzelman sighed as the happy Washington warriors journeyed back to their hotel after the battle. "I never knew quarters could be so long. And say, you have to hand it to those kids, don't you. They lack a lot of things—weight, speed and experience—but say, you never saw a club fight any harder."

The Bears were fighting hard to stop a Missouri advance, fighting too hard in fact. The Tigers had been stopped on three thrusts at the line and resorted to an aerial attack. But Bill Meier, the alert Washington end, was in the right place at the right time and hauled down the pass and started for the opposite goal. It looked like the break that would make it certain that Tigers would be scoreless for the day, but one of the Bears was too eager and one of the officials decides that the potential Tiger receiver of the pass had been interfered with illegally. The ball was called back and awarded to Missouri at the point where it was presumed the pass would have been completed had it not been for the illegal interference. The decision gave the Tigers the ball on the Washington six-yard line, first down, and while the first thrust at the line was stopped, a pass, Faurot to Schiele was completed for Missouri's first touchdown of the year.

Bears Score on Pass.

Strange as it seem, a forward pass, Washington's weakest weapon, produced the first Bear touchdown. Seven minutes of the first quarter had elapsed when Walka recovered a fumbled punt on Missouri's 20-yard line. A triple pass, ending in a lateral to Miller, netted two yards and then Koerner, who had not completed a pass all year, even in practice, tossed one down the right side of the field to Brown, who took the ball near goal line and raced over for the score. Smith place-kicked the extra point and the Bears were leading 7 to 0.

The Bears were fighting after the manner of Cyrano de Bergerac when they scored their other touchdown. They had their backs to the wall and not possibly or perhaps. The Tigers had the ball within a few inches of a touchdown. They had taken the pikskin in mid-field and a pass, Johanningmeier to Johnson, netting a gain of 48 yards, had placed the ball on the Bears 12-yard line.

As the gun barked ending the contest, Washington rooters rushed from the stands and uprotted one of the Missouri goal posts.

Missouri students quickly bathered to repulse the souvenir hunters from St. Louis and in short order fists were flying.

There weer no police to curb the fighters and so the Donny Brook continued until the Tiger supporters, greatyl outnumbering the little band from Washington had put the souvenir hunters to rout.

The game was witnessed by a crowd of 8000, including about 500 Shriners of Moolah Temple, St. Louis. The Moolah band played and the patrol put on an exhibition drill before the game.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 29.—With Bob Lassiter blasting their opponents apart in a devastating second period offensive, Yale's battered Bulldogs pounded out their first victory of the season today over a fighting but luckless Dartmouth eleven, 6 to 0.

Played to a standstill by Dartmouth, beaten back and threatened repeatedly in the second half, the Elis left the impression with 30,000 chilled spectators that they were fortunate indeed to have maintained their record of never having been licked by Coach Jackson Cannell's pupils.

How closely matched they were was disclosed in the statistics of the combat. Each accumulated 11 first downs; Dartmouth had a total gain, both by air and land, of 227 yards; Yale piled up 222 yards by all devices. It was like that for four furious quarters.

The only difference was in that short period of perhaps five minutes, midway of the second chapter, when the over-driving Lassiter and Andy Callan, a ripping sophomore halfback, literally riddled Dartmouth's defense in a 40yard march to a touchdown.

seconds, the remnants of what had been a great team were scattered all over the hysterical premises, Bob Hogan, Panther quarterback, who was one of the two to finish who did not start, snared one of Mike Koken's passes on his own 27-yard line and Notre Dame pressed as it always had been doing. Warren Heller and Mike Sebastian ripped inside Notre Dame's tackles for a dozen yards between them. Isadore Weinstock, a burly fullback, burst through center on a beautiful spinner for 15 to the Raider 45-yard line.

Then Sebastian, a substitute from Sharon, Pa., who was taking the part of the ailing captain, Paul Reider, raced for Notre Dame's end.

One halfback blocked out Paul Host, Raider end and captain. Sebastian sped for the far sideline. Quickly he cut back, stepping daintily out of the arms of three headlong tacklers, and his battered mates had time to get in front of them. With fiendish precision, they cut down the Notre Dame secondary and Sebastian dashed across the goal without a hand having been laid upon him.

It was an amazing shock to Notre Dame and the great throng as well but there was more to come, swifter, almost, than it takes to tell.

Passing desperately, as soon as he got his hands on the next kickoff, Al McGuff, a substitute halfback, hurled his second effort straight into the arms of Ted Dailey, one of Pitt's two mighty ends.

Dailey took the ball on a dead run as he came up from Notre Dame's 25-yard line, and in a flash was over the goal.

Both attempts at the extra point were blocked.

Notre Dame Morale Destroyed.

Perhaps the strangest picture of all was the sight then of a Notre Dame team, its assurance and cohesion absolutely destroyed, passing wildly like a bunch of high school kids in a demoralized effort to conquer a foe. But the Panthers, exhausted, picking each other up laboriously after each play, had enough left to stop that kind of play and remain in Notre Dame territory until the final whistle.

Never before has a Notre Dame team of modern history been scored upon twice in one minute. Nothing like it has happened to the Green Raiders since Southern California, last fall, caught Notre Dame in the last period and came from behind to overcome a two-touchdown lead and win out, 16 to 14.

With laterals and line drives working neatly, but for small gains, Notre Dame drove 38 yards to Pitt's 25-yard line in the first quarter; marched and passed 50 to the Panther 18 in the second quarter; drove 40 yards to within sight of the goal in the third; and were pressing again after a 40-yard march in the fourth when the lightning struck.

Almost at the start of the fourth period, Pittsburgh was in a hole that seemed bottomless. Trying to punt, after another desperate stand, Bob Hogan was driven back to his one-foot line. But he tried again, and through the arms of the raging Notre Dame forwards, he sailed a punt 70 yards in the

But he tried again, and through the arms of the raging Notre Dame forwards, he sailed a punt 70 yards in the high, cold wind to the Notre Dame 33-yard line.

Irish Figures Impressive.

Notre Dame, through its early power, had a wide edge in first downs, counting 16 to Pitt's six. Notre Dame gained 173 yards from scrimmage, Pitt 164. Notre Dame completed 10 out of 29 forward passes for 85 yards of gain, while Pitt tried only three and completed none.

The punts, particularly with the wind, were amazing all day and several boots traveled through the air over 60 yards. In the first period, Koken got off a hoist standing on his own 28-yard line that Sebastian chased to the Pitt goal, fumbled, and then was tackled over the goal line by Alexander, Notre Dame center. On first sight it appeared the Raiders had scored a safety, but officials ruled it a touchback.

The victory gave the Panther an impressive record without defeat this season. After beating Army, 18 to 13, Pittsburgh was held to a scoreless tie by Ohio State last week, however.

Goes All the Way to Colorado to Bag A Deer, but Kills His First in Missouri

Above is a photograph of George Sniderof St. Louis and the 200-pound buck killed by him the first day of the deer-hunting season. The deer was shot 12 miles out of Doniphan, near the Current River.

George R. Snider, 1111 Belleview Avenue, Bags Five-Year-Old Buck Near Doniphan on Opening Day of Season.

He went all the way to Colorado hoping to bag his first deer. But he had to come back to Missouri to kill one. That is the story George R. Snider, 1111 Belleview avenue, St. Louis, is telling friends today as he described his adventure in Ripley County, Mo., where on Thursday he brought down a four-prong buck, the first in his three years of deerhunting experience.

Snider and his father, J. A. Snider, who accompanied him on the hunt, returned Friday with a fine 200-pound deer he had shot, evidence that there is still big game in the wilder spots of the State. The deer, which weighed approximately 200 pounds, was placed in cold storage and will be butchered and divided among friends of the family this week.

"I got a big kick out of killing this deer for several reasons," explained the younger Snider, who is still on the nice side of 30. "Three years ago I thought I would like to have the experience of killing a deer. I joined a party and made a trip to Colorado. Although other members of the party brought down two bucks, I did not do any of the shooting.

Three Deer Sighted.

"This year we decided to try Missouri. We arranged with a guide named Leo Dodd by letter and on the eve of the hunting season's opening, last Thursday, we were on hand in Doniphan. We stopped at the hotel that night and early in the morning Dodd took us out about 12 miles from town and placed us on 'stands' in the timber and, so Dodd said, about a quarter of a mile from the Current River.

"My father was on one slope of a hill and I on the other. I guess it was something less than an hour after I had been posted in a thicket when I heard my father's gun. I kept close to cover thinking the deer would come my way if Dad hadn't bagged him. And, sure enough, not one deer but three came galloping into a view. Two of them were young ones, out the older fellow had good-sized antlers and I let him have it. He plunged forward and fell about 50 feet over a bluff.

"How far was I when I shot? Oh, probably not more than 50 yards. But I was in heavy timber when I let go. I used a .256 Newton gun with a hollow nose bullet. It did the work.

"When I reached the buck he was dead. He had been shot through the heart. Furthermore, just to prove that my father hadn't missed completely one prong of the buck's antlers had been shot away by father's bullet.

"The guide dressed the deer without skinning him or removing his horns, and we returned to Doniphan.

"Apparently this deer was about 5 years old, at least our guide figured that out. The spot where we killed him was close to Doniphan, and I am told there are numerous deer in this region.

"Believe me, when it comes to deer hunting in the future I'm not going away from this State. Missouri showed me. It cost me a $25 non-resident license to go to Colorado to shoot, not counting all my other expenses. But for a State resident license and deer tag—$4—I had more fun and got results right here at home.

"Sure, I'm going next year."

Another Kills Five-Point Buck.

Several St. Louis parties took advantage of the open season and most of these are still out. Another hunter to report killing a deer was Herman Duing, 5415 Bates street, who returned Friday with a five-point buck weighing 220 pounds.

Duing killed his deer in Oregon County, near Wilderness, on the first day of the season, Thursday.

Duing reported that there were few hunters in Oregon County, but that they were reported to be numerous in the vicinity of Piedmont.

Dr. W. W. Minges, 7218 Forsythe boulevard, also bagged a deer during the three-day season. He killed a five-point buck weighing 200 pounds in Gasconade County Friday afternoon. George Klenk, 7203 Forsythe boulevard, was his hunting companion.

The deer-hunting season closed yesterday, the limit in this State being three days. Only one deer is permitted each hunter, and last season, the first open season for deer in a long time in Missouri, 52 were reported killed.

More than 500 deer of shooting age—bucks with four points on each side may be killed—were reported in the deer counties of the State this year before the season started. Each year sees an increase in their number, according to the State Game Department.

At the State Game and Fish Department at Jefferson City, it was stated yesterday that at that time only 19 deer tags had been returned. The number of Missouri deer-hunting licenses issued last year was 1875. This year's total was not available at the State Game Department, yesterday. In St. Louis exactly 200 deer licenses were issued, or 53 fewer than were issued last season.

Rod and Gun Highlights

THE deer season having ended, the next shooting period to open will be the quail season, Nov. 10. This, according to State Game Wardens, will supply much better hunting than last year's quail hunting period.

A feature of interest is that the two-year optional closure time voted by some counties will end before the close of the year. The quail season lasts until Jan. 1.

Closed counties and the dates in which shooting may be resumed therein are as follows: Atchison, Andrew and Johnson Counties, Nov. 14; Cass County, Nov. 4; Daviess County, Nov. 9, and Harrison County, Nov. 19.

A new form of fish-law violation has developed in this State, according to Game and Fish Department reports. These state that Wardens have found evidences of the use of green walnut hull pulp to stupefy fish.

According to the report, this pulp is placed in a burlap sack, thrown into a likely fish retreat and, when the fish are stupefied sufficiently, they are taken from the water with gigs or even by hand.

Chief Warden Arthur Williams is investigating the reports with the view to prosecuting offenders.

Two St. Charles anglers became involuntary members of the In Bad Society recently, all because they either forgot or did not know that, in seining for minnows to use as bait, they must return to the water alive all those not of legal length.

The culprits will explain to the Judge, later. The State Game Department has issued several warnings against abuse of the minnow seining privilege.

Bird dog fanciers are looking up, this year, with the improvement in the quail situation. More than 50 fine hunting dogs entered the recent field trials at Sedalia, Mo.—the largest field trial in the Middle West. On each of the two days, 65 horsemen followed the dogs and their handlers.

City folks rather laugh when wolves are mentioned in Missouri; but State and Federal wolf-trappers caught five of them last month in their campaign to clean out predatory "varmints."

In all, 19 animals were taken, including 10 coyotes and four bobcats, besides the wolves. Atchison County furnished the 10 coyotes, the wolves came from Carter, Douglas, Butler and Reynolds Counties and the bobcats from Carter and Butler Counties.

TULANE GAINS 331 YARDS BUT BARELY DEFEATS SOUTH CAROLINA, 6 TO 0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29.—Tulane barely wrested a 6-to-0 victory from a stubbornly defensive South Carolina team today. Tulane gained 331 yards to 37 for South Carolina.

Tulane scored in the first two minutes, Zimmerman making a 26-yard run. Two Tulane second-quarter drives failed on one-yard line, Lemmon fumbling once and South Carolina holding the second time. South Carolina got to the Tulane 12-yard line in the third quarter, but couldn't score.

Tulane again threatened in the fourth period, reaching the 11-yard line.

Tulane made 19 first downs to two for South Carolina. Tulane attempted 11 forward passes, completing five, having five incomplete and losing one. South Carolina tried 11, completing one, having eight incomplete and losing two.

FLYERS' HOCKEY SEASON OPENS HERE, NOV. 12

Flyers' Former Coach Here to Institute Action

DICK CARROLL, coach of the St. Louis Hockey team last year, arrived in St. Louis yesterday to institute action to force payment on his contract which he declares the St. Louis club abrogated when it signed Babe Dye to lead the team.

Carroll said that the agreement had two more seasons to run at a salary of $5000 a season, and that the club owed him $4000 from last year.

Harry S. Taber, president of the Hockey Club, stated that Carroll asked for his release at the end of last season to accept a post with the Chicago club after he had been asked to advise the team in the playoffs with Duluth at the time Coach Dye was discharged from the Shamrocks, following a row with Tom Shaughnessy, then vice-president and manager of the Chicago club. This Carroll denies.

A new agreement between the St. Louis Hockey Club and The Arena for the use of the Oakland avenue building has been reached and the club will play its American League games there this season and for the next four years, according to an announcement made last night by Harry Taber, president of the hockey organization.

Taber also stated that the hockey club has undergone a reorganization with a new corporation in con-

Taber also stated that the hockey club has undergone a reorganization with a new corporation in control, although he says all past obligations of the previous company will be assumed.

Babe Dye, former coach of last year's league championship Chicago Shamrocks, who recently was appointed to lead the St. Louis team, has been here for several days getting things in readiness for the players to begin practice this week. Ice will be frozen in The Arena to permit work to begin Thursday.

Season Opens Here Nov. 20.

The league season is scheduled to open here on Nov. 20 when St. Louis plays Kansas City, but there will be a preliminary exhibition on Nov. 11 between St. Louis and the New York Americans of the National League.

The makeup of the American League has not been definitely settled as only four cities have obtained franchises and posted forfeits. It is intended that the circuit will comprise six cities. Those already in are St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Paul and Duluth. Minneapolis, Tulsa and Oklahoma City are still uncertain.

Dye recently stated that he had obtained several players with National League experience for St. Louis. Yesterday he announced the acquisition of James F. "Dutch" Cain, formerly with the Buffalo team of the International League. Cain last season won the award offered by a Buffalo newspaper for being the most popular player in the league. Cain at one time played with the Montreal Maroons.

Amateurs to Try Out.

Among the others already signed are Rusty Hughes, Pete Palangio, Stark, McPherson, Jackson and Kendall.

Dye has stated that he would have about a dozen of the leading Canadian amateurs here for tryouts and one of them, Lawrence Farmer, from Edmonton, already aas arrived.

Stanford Shocked By U. C. of L. A.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—An active young Bruin football team from the University of California at Los Angeles stuck an impudent paw in Stanford's gridiron pie today by winning 13 to 6 from the Indians before 55,000 spectators.

Two blocked punts by Verdi Boyer, a sophomore guard, were the weapons of offense which turned Coach Glenn (Pop) Warner's razzle-dazzle crew back for it ssecond consecutive trouncing at the hands of a team from the southern section of the State. University of Southern California turned the trick a week ago, 13 to 0.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 29.—The undefeated Brown Bears today raided the Stadium for the first time in five years and smeared Harvard's championship hopes with a decisive 14-0 victory.

The Crimson team was completely routed as it bowed, for the first time this season, to the alert Bruins, who capitalized every mistake as they marched 80 yards for their second period tally and drove 65 yards for another touchdown in the third session.

$2 mutuels paid: Tred Avon, $19.50, $6.40, $3.60; Equipoise, $3.40, $2.90; Mate, $3.60.

Tred Avon, reserved within striking distance of the pacemakers, moved up sharply when leaving the back stretch, wore Pilate down rapidly and, holding on with rare courage, just lasted to stall off Equipoise. Latter, forced wide for the first mile, went to the leaders with a bold rush, swung to the inside and finished resolutely. Mate improved his position on the outside and came fastest of all approaching the finish. White Clover II closed gamely, but could not threaten the leaders. Rehoboth showed a good test for the first mile. Late Date had no mishaps. St. Bridcaux was shuffled back going to the first turn, saved ground thereafter, but was not good enough. Pilate collapsed badly in the final sixteenth mile.

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 29.—Tred Avon, S. W. Labrot's Maryland horse, won the $15,000 added Washington Handicap, feature of the getaway program at Laurel race track today.

Equipoise, the favorite, finished second, followed by Mate.

The daughter of Sir Greysteel pulled out from a three-horse blanket finish to win from Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's great campaigner by a head. Mate, A. C. Bostwick's horse, which has been improving recently, was only a nose back.

Labrot won $14,800 for the victory of his Maryland-bred gray horse, while in pari mutuels Tred Avon paid $19.50 to win, $6.40 to place and $6.40 to show.

Tred Avon was always a contender, moving along in fourth position behind the pace-setting Pilate for a mile and then Jockey R. Jones drove her to th front as they came into the stretch.

Following the race, the trainer, Fred Hopkins, announced the Whitney horse would be retired for the remainder of the season. Equipoise won 10 of his 14 starts this year and $107,375.

Sarada Wins Memorial.

Sarada, the dark brown colt of F. A. Griffith of Rochester, N. Y., upset the mile race for juveniles in the Spauling Lowe Jenkins Handicap. Rated as a field horse, he left 12 other youngsters behind to win.

Wave On was second, fighting it out for first most of the way, but dropped back slightly at the finish. Golden Way finished third. The race was worth $7275 to Griffith with Sarada paying $39 to win.

An accident marred the program, witnessed by approximately 20,000 persons. In the first race, Jockey Silvic (Hoochy) Coucci was tossed from Welcome Gift just after the horses passed the judges' stand. The boy was taken to a hospital, where an examination disclosed he had a fractured collarbone.

COLGATE ROMPS OVER PENN STATE, 31 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Colgate continued its march toward the Eastern championship this afternoon by trouncing Penn State, 31 to 0, before a home-coming day crowd. Coach Andy Kerr used few of his deceptive spinners and laterals in beating the Nittany Lions.

The Penn Staters were no match for Colgate, although Morrison and Segel gained on long runs. Kerr used three full teams and Coach Huggins sent in many substitutes thus preventing each eleven from scoring in the final period.

Powerful on offense, Colgate rolled up 22 first downs to three for State, and gained 232 yards by rushing to 66 for State.

DOUGLASS DEFEATS VASHON JUNIORS, 12-0

Douglass Negro High at Webster defeated the Vashon High junior football team at Webster, yesterday, by a score of 12 to 0. Halfback Morrison scored the first touchdown in the third period and Fullback Long scored the second in the closing period. Next Saturday the Vashon team will oppose the St. Charles Negro High in St. Louis.

NORMANDY PUTS WEBSTER OUT OF COUNTY RACE

Showing a flash of strength in passing and a really strong offensive through the line, the Normandy High School football team defeated Webster Groves, 19 to 0, yesterday afternoon at Normandy to gain a .333 percentage in the County League race and to remove Webster from title consideration.

Although each eleven made plenty of fumbles and blocking was not good, Normandy had a strong defensive line which balked all Statesmen threats. The Vikings also had a fine ball-carrier in Eddie Haefler, who was directly responsible for two touchdowns.

Normandy's first score came early in the opening period. After an exchange of punts, Webster held the ball on its own 20-yard line. Gaining little, De Salme kicked, his punt being blocked and recovered by Seymour on the five-yard line. On two plays, Normandy went to the two-yard line, and Haefler carried the ball over through right tackle.

McLaughlin, another Normandy boy who was outstanding during the game, intercepted a pass in the second quarter at midfield and ran to the 35-yard line to start the drive for the second score. Then Haefler passed to "Red" Hess, who made a first down on the seven-yard line. On the following play, Haefler circled right end to score. As on the first touchdown, the kick for the point was blocked.

The teams played evenly in the third period, but in the fourth Normandy counted again on a break. The drive for the touchdown was no break, though, for they started on their own 25-yard line and went to Webster's 12-yard line on plunging and a couple of passes. From the 12, Haefler threw a high pass, Anderson of Webster, knocking it into the air and Westlake, Normandy end, catching it and stepping over the line for the score. Haefler kicked goal.

The lineups:

COUNTY DAY B TEAM LOSES TO WESTERN AND ITS C ELEVEN WINS

In the only ABC League games of the week-end, Country Day "B" and "C" teams split with Western "B" and "C" teams on games played on the Country Day School grounds Saturday morning.

In the "B" game, Western came through to swamp the Brown road team, 27-0. The "C" game developed into a decided reversal in the score, Country Day being on the long end of a 30-0 count. The Codasco team played snappy football and completely outclassed the Western boys.

PINE STREET Y. M. C. A. VOLLEYBALL TEAM WINS OVER WAGNER SEXTET

The Pine Stree Y. M. C. A. volleyball sextet won its fourth match from the Wagner team yesterday afternoon at the Pine Street gym. The scores were: 15—12, 15—11 and 15—11.

The fifth of the series will be played next Saturday afternoon.

FIRPO JOSEPH AT FULLBACK FOR VETERANS IN TODAY'S GAME

The Veterans, pro-football team coached by Garland Grange, promise to show more offensive power this afternoon when they oppose the Cincinnati Blues at Public Schools Stadium in the "Forget-Me-Not-day" game for the benefit of disabled war veterans. Kickoff at 2:30 o'clock.

Firpo Joseph, 220-pounder, who played tackle at St. Louis U. and has been in that position in previous games of the pro season, will start at fullback for the Veterans. Joseph played fullback in his high school days and reported as a fullback in his freshman year at the Billikens school. He decided just a few days ago to try his hand at it again.

Other changes in the Veterans' lineup will see Lee Derry playing quarterback, while Bernie Leahy and Bud Edwards are expected to arrive from Chicago to perform in the backfield. They are "free lance" players after release by the Chicago Bears.

The "big names" of the Blues are Larry Marks and Chuck Bennett, two backs who gained all-America honors at Indiana.

No score has been made against the Blues in three games, and the management ent word that only three first downs had been made against them. Two giant tackles, Walter and George, who weigh respectively 235 and 220, give the team a strong forward wall.

The veterans have won two of four games played and another resulted in a scoreless tie.

This game, arranged by St. Louis Post No. 1, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, is the feature of the forget-me-not day, taking the place of the street sale of forget-me-nots. The veterans get the receipts except for half up to certain amount, which goes to the teams.

Richard Anderson Post, American Legion, band is to play at the game.

Sections of seats have been reserved for today's game and no complimentary tickets have been issued, according to Commander George Tracy of St. Louis Post of the veteran.

The announced starting lineups:

GUNNERS IN MEMPHIS TO PLAY TIGERS TODAY IN THEIR SIXTH GAME

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 29.—The Battery A Gunners, 23 strong, arrived here tonight expecting their football game here tomorrow with the Memphis Tigers to be their toughest of the season. The St. Louis pros, in five games played, have scored 103 points against 13 for opponents.

Country Day Too Strong for Latin High of Chicago

In a home-coming game, the outcome of which was never in doubt, the St. Louis Country Day School team crushed a lighter Chicago Latin School team, 27—7. The game was hard-fought all the way, but Codasco's powerful drive was not to be denied. The Chicago team, made up largely of first and second year men, averaged 150 pounds, whereas the local boys, principally third and fourth year men, averaged 160 pounds.

Held for the first quarter, Codasco put themselves in scoring position by carrying the ball 50 yards on straight football with F. Thompson doing the heavy work. At the beginning of the second quarter a 15-yard run by F. Thompson behind perfect interference was followed by the plunge for touchdown with F. Thompson carrying the ball over. H. Stevens passed to F. Thompson for the extra point. Two more touchdowns followed in rapid order in this quarter, Christy going over on a hidden ball play and F. Thompson making his second score. The half ended 20—0 in favor of the local boys.

Codasco added their fourth and final touchdown in the third quarter and defending with several substitutes in their lineup, saw the Latin boys complete a 40-yard pass for their lone score.

As an added feature two midget teams from Country Day School, the Reds and the Whites, put on an exhibition between the halves. After two five-minute quarters the Reds emerged the victors, 12—0.

The lineup was as follows:

$2 mutuels paid: The Darb, $8.46, $4.58, $2.64; Caesar's Ghost, $11.88, $3.72; Dynastic, $2.26.

The Darb rushed to the front on the inside at first turn, was taken under snug restraint after three-quarters, maintained command easily to final three-sixteenths and continued well under pressure to the last 50 yards, where he weakened but lasted. Caesar's Ghost began fast, lost ground at first turn, was snugged along the first three-quarters and, closing well, was wearing down the winner. Dynastic began very slowly, moved up fast at the second turn and continued to close ground under strong riding thereafter. Technique had no mishap and showed a good effort. Charley O. broke slowly. Thistle Play and Glynson were through after three-quarters.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 29.—Tiring fast, C. V. Whitney's The Darb lasted long enough today to win the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes by a nose from the Brookmeade Stable's Caesar's Ghost.

The race was won and lost at the first turn. There most of the field with the exception of the winner, took a wide swing, and the advantage The Darb won there was enough to put the horse far enough ahead to beat back the surprising challenge of Caesar's Ghost.

Dynastic, the favorite, got away as slowly as usual, failed to gain much ground until they reached the turn and then walked away to squeeze out Technique for third.

The victory paid The Darb $19,945 to add to second money won in the Breeders' Futurity here two weeks ago. Backers got $8.46 for $2 on their play.

The thirteenth runnning of the stake, the race was the fourth of the series taken by the Whitney Stables. The late Payne Whitney won in the past with Tryster, Enchantment and Valorous. His son triumphed today.

Captain Mark Chambers led the East St. Louis High School's attack on the Western Military Academy eleven yesterday afternoon at the Parson's Field when the East St Louisans won, 12 to 6. The contest was a non-league affair as the East Siders had an open date in the Southwestern Illinois circuit.

Chambers accounted for both East St. Louis scores as he plunged through the Cadets' line in the early stages of the first quarter for the first touchdown and then came back in the second after an attack that put the East Siders in the shadow of the goal posts to plunge six yards for his second marker. On the try for extra point on both occasions the victors missed from placement.

The Western team did not score until the final minutes of the final quarter when they opened a passing attack that netted them 40 yards and then on a pass, Henderson to Titus, that netted eight yards scored their only touchdown. Their try for extra point was blocked.

The lineups:

COLUMBIA CONQUERS CORNELL ON PASS

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Thanks to a spectacular 46-yard pass, Montgomery to Matal, in the first period for the only touchdown of the game, Columbia conquered Cornell, 6 to 0, today, before a crowd of 32,000.

8 NEW TEAMS IN MUNICIPAL SOCCER TODAY

The second round of play in the Municipal Soccer League today will see 28 teams playing 14 games at four of the public parks. Eight of the teams are facing opponents for the first time this season when the Carondelet No. 1 and Forest Park groups swing into action. The former group, as usual, will be an All-Nations division, with two Spanish clubs, one of the two German Sports teams and the SS. Mary and Joseph team. The other German club moved to Forest Park when it developed that not enough teams would be available to comprise a second Carondelet division. Other teams in the Forest group are Grace and St. Ambrose, the only teams of this group to return. The Universals, champions last year, have moved to Sherman Park, while Rock Church failed to return.

The teams which failed to return to Carondelet are the Gebkens and Eugene A. C. teams.

In the three other Fairground groups all of last Sunday's winners are matched this afternoon.

The schedule follows:

Fairground Park No. 2: Spick and Spans vs. Russells, 2 p. m.; Cleary's vs. Longos, 3:30 p. m. Referee—William Brady.

Fairground Park No. 3: Meyers vs. St. Matthew's Holy Name, 2 p. m.; Burke vs. Noels, 3:30 p. m. Referee—P. Garcia.

Fairground Park No. 4: Brogans vs. Franklins, 2 p. m.; Newstead and Natural Bridge team vs. Voglers, 3:30 p. m. Referee—H. Donovan.

Fairground Park No. 5: Broadway and Market team vs. Hellrungs, 2 p. m.; Hartmanns vs. Lacledes, 3:30 p. m. Referee—J. Cradock.

Sherman Park No. 1: German Spor ocratic Club vs. Christian Bros. Alumni, 2 p. m.; Kellys vs. Universals, 3:30 p. m. Referee—Cliff Brady.

Carondelet Park no 1: German Sport Club No. 1 vs. Spanish Sport Club, 2 p. m.; La Sociodad Espamola vs. SS. Mary and Joseph, 3:30 p. m. Referee—N. Reidy.

Forest Park: St. Ambrose Y. M. S. vs. German Sport Club No. 2, 2 p. m.; Sunshines vs. Grace Athletic Club, 3:30 p. m. Referee—R. Wall.

SECOND-ROUND GAMES IN EAST SIDE MUNY SOCCER LEAGUE TODAY

The second round soccer games in the first half schedule of the East St. Louis Municipal Soccer League will be played this afternoon at the Jones Park, in East St. Louis.

The Edgemont A. C. will face the Waverlys in the first game, at 2 o'clock, while the Unions will mix with the Sanitarys in the second at 3:15. All four teams composing the league this year are evenly matched. Louis Garcia will referee both contests.

PAINTED 1200 SPECIES OF NORTH AMERICAN BIRDS

And Now, Having Completed a Life Work at 63, Rex Brasher Has Nothing Else to Do—But Experts Declare His Paintings Are the Most Accurate Ever Made.

By JACK ALEXANDER
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

Rex Brasher.

NEW YORK.

WHAT to do once a life ambition is achieved and it is too late to enter upon another one?

Rex Brasher of Chickadee Valley, Conn., ponders this question. At 63, a vigorous, browned man with a close-clipped gray mustache, he has completed a work first visioned when he was a boy of 10—the faithful, accurate recording of the 1200 species of birds in North America. It is a labor that has absorbed his time, energy and devoted effort for 53 years—from crack of dawn to nightfall. No time for cities, except to work for a stake that would take him to a spot where an unrecorded bird preened itself; no time for the theater, or golf, or any of the ordinary amusements; no time for a wife and family. Painting was his master and the birds his friends. They took all he had.

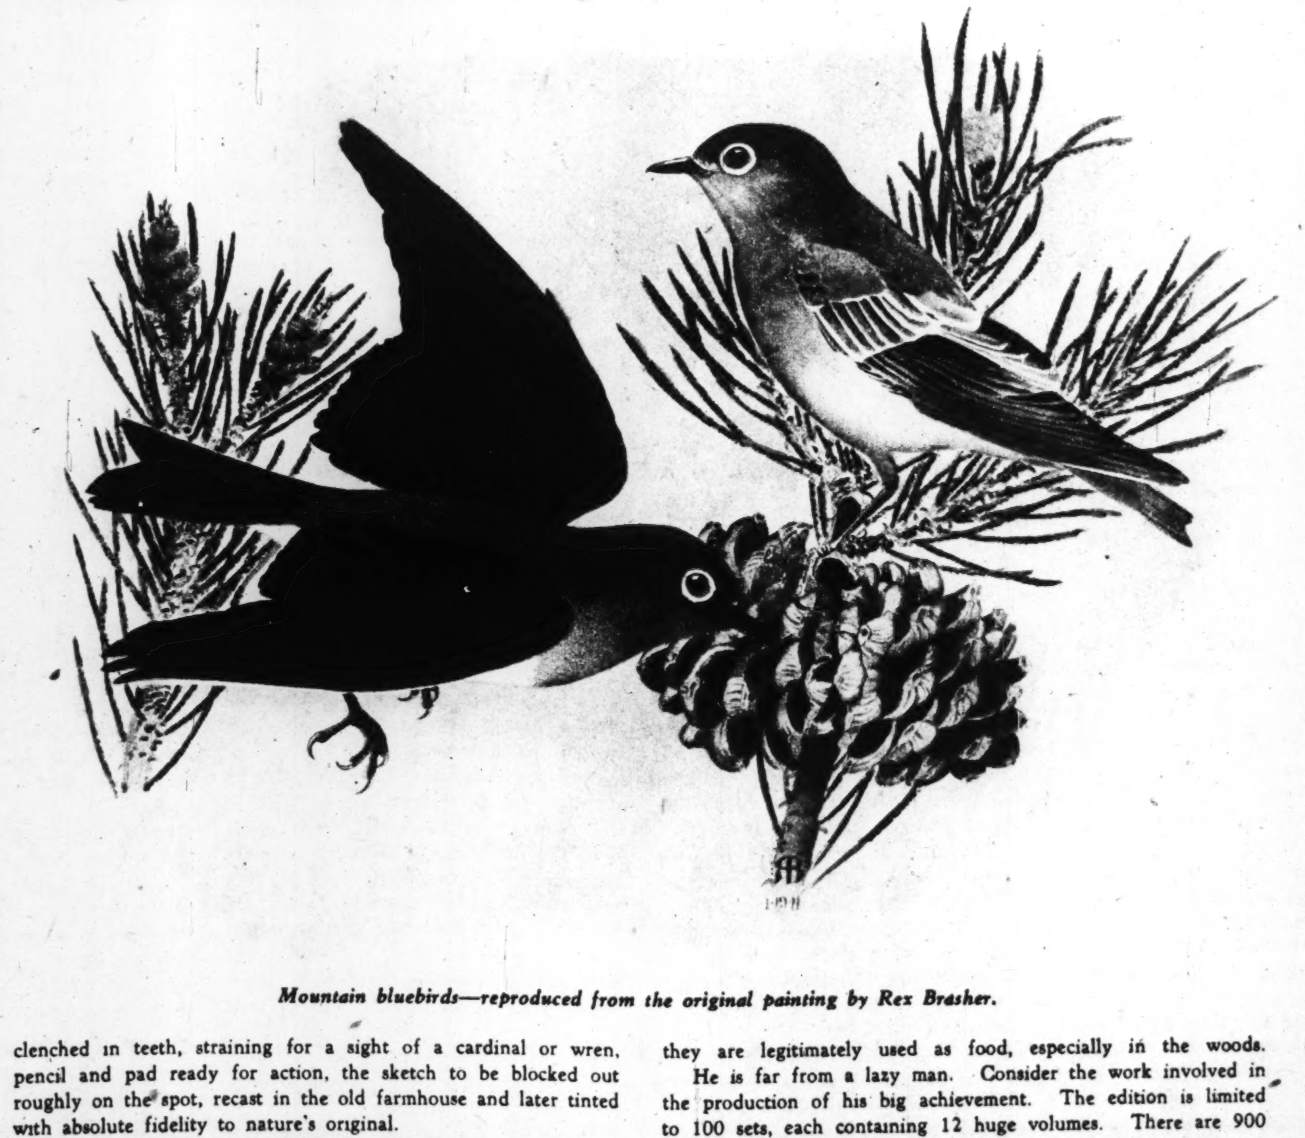
They have rewarded him. His 12-volume set of water colors have captivated ornithologists and others who find their richest satisfaction in the contemplation of nature. It has excited the admiration of critics and ranked him, quite beyond question, as the foremost painter of all time, in his line. Competent judges agree in rating him ahead of John James Audubon, patron saint of bird students. Audubon admittedly idealized some species; Brasher has been content to record with the objectivity of a Japanese.

It is one of those things that simply will not be done again. Now that it is over, Mr. Brasher (who pronounces it Bray-sher) looks to the future with misgiving.

"The hardest jolt was when I found I was through," he said recently.

Much of his time these dull days is devoted to entertaining the pilgrims from the outside world who have beaten a path across the remote valley to his door. They find him a restless man, ever on the loose in the meadow or wood to catch on a sketch some nuance of bird habit he may have missed, the dip of a wing in flight or the droop of talons as a hawk flutters to a landing. He won't go to the city, although New York is a matter of a few hours by train. Hasn't been in town since 1917. Spent half an hour then and was glad to get out.

He has seen only two or three motion pictures in his life. These were wild animal reels and he enjoyed them immensely. He liked "Congorilla." His brother Philip, an engineer, who lives across the valley in Kent and manages the painter's business affairs, thinks he may be able to entice the recluse to a picture house in one of the small Connecticut towns to see "Bring 'Em Back Alive." Meantimes, Rex continues to sketch. It's hard to get over the habit. He also writes poems, but is a little touchy about letting anyone see them. They are chiefly concerned with birds. He is a bit conscience-stricken because he finds that he sleeps sometimes until 7:00 and 7:30 in the morning nowadays—he, a man whom dawn always found afield, pipe clenched in teeth, straining for a sight of a cardinal or wren, pencil and pad ready for action, the sketch to be blocked out roughly on the spot, recast in the old farmhouse and later tinted with absolute fidelity to nature's original.



Mountain bluebirds—reproduced from the original painting by Rex Brasher.

With Horace, Rex Brasher can say, "Non omnis moriar," meaning to convey the idea that he has created something that defies time, for a few centuries, at least, and confers upon him a meed of immortality.

And, whereas Horace was something of a loafer and dilettante, kept in luxury by a rich patron, Mr. Brasher has taken life the hard way. There was no Maecenas for him. He has worked hard and supported himself since he was 15. He has lived roughly and still does. Frequently his only food has been the birds who served him as models. He detests the idea of shooting birds just for the sake of shooting, but sanely holds that they are legitimately used as food, especially in the woods.

He is far from a lazy man. Consider the work involved in the production of his big achievement. The edition is limited to 100 sets, each containing 12 huge volumes. There are 900 plates to a set, or 90,000 in the entire edition. Most plates contain two or more bird figures, the total number running to about 300,000. Each was colored individually. In summer Mr. Brasher worked from 3:30 a. m. to 3 or 4 p. m., in winter from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. His system was to have each of his original 900 pencil-sketched plates photographed 100 times. Assistants helped by painting in background—the sky and sometimes foliage. Mr. Brasher, however, worked entirely by himself in adding the coloring. He made a special point of insuring perfection in the reproduction of the actual color of feet and beak, and of eye expression, points usually done perfunctorily by nature painters.

The minute detail of the originals is admirably painstaking.

Originally, Mr. Brasher hoped to make 500 copies for the edition. But after he had been working some time, his brother did a little arithmetic on a sketch pad and announced: "Shucks, Rex, it's impossible for you to live long enough to do that." So they reduced the edition to 100.

Mr. Brasher's only art training was in the engraving department of Tiffany's, where he got a job after his fifteenth birthday, and in other engraving plants. Five years before going to work he had mapped out his career. At 19 he sailed down the Atlantic coast alone in a sloop. As he passed Far Rockaway, on Long Island, he was entranced to discover in the then wilds, 86 species of birds. Here was a rich hunting ground. Arriving in Key West, he sold the sloop and hurried back to the Rockaways to paint. By 1900, when he was 31, he had made 400 sketches. Dissatisfied with them, he tossed them in the fire and began again. In 1905 he burned the sketches made in the interim. Fearful of approaching middle age and feeling at least in part worthy of his self-appointed task, he began the series now in book form. By 1928 he had finished the sketches, a collection of 900 plates. In order to achieve exact coloration in the final product, he consulted the bird skin collection of Dr. Jonathan Dwight in the American Museum of Natural History. The stack of mental pictures taken by his "photographic" eye over a lifetime of lying in marshes and perching in trees, plus days spent near bird cages in zoos, did the rest. Last August the 100 sets were finished.

A SET sells for $2400. There are about 20 left. Among the purchasers, besides museums and libraries, are Clarence Mackay, William Boeing, airplane manufacturer; Richard Beatty Mellon, banker; Edward S. Harkness, philanthropist; Gerard Barnes Lambert, sportsman; Will Kellogg, cereal manufacturer and Paul de Kruif, author. Besides the complete collections, there are available a number of individual plates, duplicates made during the coloring process, which sell for $15. In a Madison avenue art gallery a few days ago, Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, game conservation enthusiast, bustled in gruffly, and bustled out with several Brasher bird studies under his arm. Senator Hawes has an extensive collection of bird and animal pictures.

The Brasher family is of great antiquity, as American families go. Some hold it to be the oldest in New York. It derives from a wealthy French Huguenot exile, Bras de Fer, who came to America in 1621. Another branch of the family, which settled in what is now Canada, produced a number of public figures, one a Governor-General. The only other member of the American branch who showed such monumental ambition and devotion to a single task as Rex (whose real name is Reginald) was Dr. John Brashear (he spelled it differently), who achieved international fame as an astronomer. Old "Uncle John" was, until his death a few years ago, a familiar figure in Pittsburgh, a slave of the stars and possessor of ribbons and medals from European scientific societies.

There was also a distant ancestor whose named appears in the records of early New York courts. He was fined seven shillings. It seems he had kicked someone's cow. Although, it appears, of a somewhat oblique turn of mind, this Brasher had the old Brasher spirit. He might have kicked a dog or cat. But no. Nothing but a cow would suit him.

Blood Feud Again Takes Its Toll in Kentucky

MANCHESTER, Kentucky.

THE peace of an autumn Sabbath morning brooded over the mountains that border Goose Creek, but there was no peace in Manchester town. Feud fires that had smoldered for thirty-odd years had flared again and sudden death lurked in hidden places. Lives had been taken as toll for other lives taken, but the account of cherished hatreds was still unbalanced and other lives would be taken that day.

Next day court would convene. Violence and death had come on the eve of other court terms and again there were clear portents of coming trouble. Up from London, Commonwealth-Attorney Frank Baker had come, in the face of threats, with his life in his hands, choosing the chance of death rather than the stain of cowardice. With him had come an armed band. The challenge had been accepted and in the night another band formed, using the courthouse for ambuscade.

Frank Baker unwarily strolled from his uncle's house, across the street from the courthouse, and there was a blast of bullets from the courthouse windows. Baker fell at the first fire. Another was killed and several wounded before the firing ceased. Then again there was the peace of an autumn Sabbath.

Clay County, long famed for its family feuds, is torn again by the strife of men who still hold to the code of a life for a life. For the lives that were taken that Sabbath morning, it is not doubted, the forfeit of other lives will be claimed, and it may go on and on, as other feuds have gone on and on, until exhaustion dictates a truce. There are hopes that this will be the last of the feuds, which have practically passed away in other mountain counties.

Most deadly of the vendettas of the past was the Baker-Howard war of the 90s with most of the large families of Clay County involved, and this one, still unchecked, is a heritage of that, although the alignment is not altogether the same.

That other feud, the old folks say, was a repercussion of still another, thirty-odd years further back, as far back indeed as Civil War days, when Bakers and Howards were for the first time arrayed in mortal enmity. Memories are in default as to the cause of that first trouble, but it is safe to presume that it was something trivial, as usual. Whatever the cause, the trouble subsided after a while and until the middle 90s the Bakers and Howards, numerous along Crane Creek, were friendly neighbors.

The old feud flared up again as a result of a quarrel between A. B. Howard and George Baker. After a while it died down again.

At the last election, Judge Roy W. House of Manchester was a candidate for Commonwealth-Attorney. Frank Baker ran against him and was elected. Later, his brother, Ben, was elected County Judge. From the vantage ground of the offices that they held the Bakers undertook to dominate the county, or so it seemed to men on "the other side" who did not want the county dominated that way.

Prominent among the men on the other side were city officials and members of families that were involved in the Howard-Baker-White-Bailey feud of the 90s, so that it became a struggle for control between the two sets of officials.

Among leaders on the other side were Pit Stivers, Police Judge, and Tolman Burchell, Town Marshal. Burchell's wife was the daughter of Jim Howard, who was active in the old feud and later served a prison term in connection with the assassination of Governor Goebel, so the line-up was Bakers, Baileys, Philpots and Hensleys on the one side, and Howards, Burchells, Stivers, Littles and Whites on the other.

There was trouble from time to time in Manchester. Frank Baker had surrounded himself with relatives and friends. The attitude of these was more or less aggressive. One night they shot up the town and then went to Baker's home. A posse followed them there, prepared for battle, but the Baker men laid low.

ANOTHER night there was a red glare "on the hill," the upper part of town, where the courthouse is and where Frank Baker and other Bakers lived. Many shots were fired, the customary manner of giving the alarm, but shots continued to be fired as the fire progressed and the townspeople remained discreetly "under the hill." Frank's home, the home of his brother, John, and two small buildings owned by the Bakers, used as law offices, were destroyed. The Bakers said their enemies had started the fires. The other side laid it to the Bakers, saying they wanted the insurance, and procured the indictment of Frank and John, on arson charges, but the indictments were dismissed.

Then one night last February, with a term of court to convene the next day, fire was discovered in the wholesale store of Wiley Baker, uncle of Frank, and shots were fired to give the alarm. Alf Neal, an aged crippled Negro, awakened in his garret on the hill, making his way down the hill, hurrying as fast as he could, was shot and killed by somebody following him down the hill. Judge Stivers and the Rev. W. R. Walters, Baptist preacher, also hurrying to the fire, said they saw the men who shot him and Stivers named them as George Baker, son of Wiley, and Hugh Hornsby. The Bakers had a different explanation. John Baker said he was on his way to the fire and saw the shooting and named Stivers as the slayer. The theory they advanced was that the enemies of the Bakers had set fire to the store and were lying in wait, expecting the fire would bring the Bakers out and shot Neal in the supposition that he was John Baker. The theory of the other side was that Neal knew too much.

Thus was a clear issue of veracity raised as to who had killed the Negro. The grand jury indicted George Baker and Hugh Hornsby and named Wiley Baker as accessory. Hornsby was tried and acquitted. The others have not been tried.

It was expected that Stivers would be killed. His friends warned him and at the same time sent word to Frank Baker that if Stivers was killed he, Baker, would be killed. That was the situation on the eve of the April term of court. It was Saturday and court was to convene Monday. It was expected that the case against George and Wiley Baker for the killing of the Negro would come up during the term.

A day or two before that Saturday a strange man had been seen in town, taking slant-eyed observation of Stivers. Stivers laughed it off.

There was nothing to that, he said. He had had a long talk with the Bakers and everything was all right. Jim Howard, with a veteran's understanding of feud strategy, was not reassured when he heard about the apparent truce. It looked to him like the purpose was to throw Stivers off his guard. Didn't the Bakers, that time when they killed Wils Howard and Burch Store, at the beginning of the old feud back in the 90s, eat dinner with the Howards the day before the killings? "When they're friendly," he said, "that's the time to watch out." To Stivers, though, truce was truce.

That Saturday Stivers went walking down the hill and had come to just about the spot where the Negro was killed when a closed automobile came up behind him, slowed down. Shots were fired from the half-lowered windows and Pit Stivers fell dead.

The automobile careened perilously down the rocky hill and persons whose attention had been drawn by the shots noted that the windows, quickly rolled up after the shooting, were frosted with something that made them practically opaque.

Out of town, on the improved road that runs to Burning Springs and on to Berea, the killers' car sped. It was found that the telephone wires had been cut. As soon as possible a posse was formed and started in pursuit A little way out the pursuers met a man driving to town. He had been crowded off the road by the killers' car and had taken note of it. It was a dark Chrysler. The windows appeared to have been soaped. He glimpsed the men in the car and they seemed to be Negroes.

WITH this description the posse, making inquiries, was able to keep the trail. A farmer said he had seen two men pass his house and described them. One was small and erect and kept his right hand in his pocket. The description fitted Little Tom Baker, who always carried his right hand in his pocket because it was deformed. The man also had seen the two hide something under a bridge. There three guns were found, wrapped in two suits of overalls, and there was a towel smudged with soot, which probably had been wiped from the faces of the men.

It was learned at Bobtown that the men had separated there, one hiring a man to take him to Berea, the other getting a ride on a truck to Richmond. The police there arrested Frank McDaniel at the home of his aunt, Mrs. George Roark. He was found to have had his soot-smudged collar washed there. McDaniel, Little Tom Baker, Mrs. Roark and John M. Quinn, a lawyer who had been seen with the others about the courthouse on the day of the killing, were indicted. McDaniel was tried and sent to prison for life. Baker has not been caught. The other cases are pending.

The friends of Stivers had said that if he was killed Frank Baker would be killed. Baker knew that he was under sentence of death. His enemies had an additional incentive in his declaration that he was going to reopen the inquiry into the killing of Bev Bailey.

THE October term of court would open on Monday. Baker, who had lived at London after his home at Manchester was burned, had the alternative of coming to Manchester and facing death or resigning his office and going away.

If he resigned and went away he would be branded as a coward who had been driven out of his own county and, as he looked at it, he would be disgraced for life. No, he told his wife and his friends, he couldn't do that. He would go to Manchester and if death came to him he would take it standing up. But he would take such precautions as a prudent man might take. So, when he came here the Saturday before court opened, his relatives and friends came with him in force. There were fifteen to eighteen men in the party that moved to the county seat and put up at the home of Wiley Baker, across from the courthouse. Frank Baker's wife went along and his aged mother, fearful of what might happen, came down from Crane Creek because she couldn't stay away.

That afternoon Frank Baker kept close to the house but members of his party, in groups of three and four, strolled around rather ostentatiously under the hill, with weapons bulging their coats. That night the enemy mobilized. In the darkness other armed men gathered at the courthouse and waited for the dawn.

Morning came and men began to stir around the Baker house. From the windows of the courthouse, more than a hundred yards across the courthouse lot, men watched with fingers at triggers of high powered guns. By 7 o'clock the women had served breakfast in the dining room. Some of the men strolled outside. Presently Baker stepped out at the front door, crossed the porch and the narrow yard and out to the sidewalk and stood there, one may suppose, enjoying the peace of the Sabbath morning.

From the dim interior of the courthouse, through windows in deep shadow from the heavy-foliaged trees, came a blast of bullets and Frank Baker fell dead. John Brockman, who had come far to take a hand because his mother was a Baker, dashed from the house, probably with the thought of rendering aid, and was shot and killed at the porch steps. Frank Baker's mother, assuming that the assassins would not kill a woman or heedless of the danger, tried to go to her fallen son. Bullets hit all about her and drove her back. It is probable that now the men in the courthouse would accept the soft impeachment that they did not want to kill her rather than acknowledge inferior marksmanship.

A fusillade followed, bullets splintering the woodwork and crashing through the windows. The fire could not be returned without such exposure as would invite instant death. The people in the house got behind the fireplace chimneys and lay flat on the floor for safety. Frank Young, a relative of Mrs. Frank Baker, was shot in the hip. Wiley Baker, trying to slip out the back way, was shot in the thigh, apparently from the mountain slope on the far side of the creek, showing that the place was surrounded. He crept into a cornfield and lay there until near noon, when deputy sheriffs went searching for him and found him there.

FOR the greater part of the forenoon the siege lasted, with shots at intervals. Two or three of the besieged received slight wounds from ricocheting bullets. A man named Murrell finally slipped out the back way and hunted up Sheriff Langdon. He said he did not see what he could do, not anyway until the other side ceased firing.

Murrell caught a ride into London and told Judge Lewis what was going on and the Judge asked the Governor for troops, and they were sent.

In the meantime, Manchester on the hill was deserted except by the besiegers and the besieged. People under the hill did not know just how many were dead on the hill. Nobody had the hardihood to try to find out. Men gathered in small groups and spoke in low tones. The church bells rang after a while and children went to Sunday school. Women stood at their doorways and wondered.

Then, along toward noon, the continued silence at the courthouse suggested that the besiegers had withdrawn. About 11:30 the wives of John Milton, jailer, and Theo Philpot, deputy jailer, went to the Baker house to see what they could do. Then others, reassured, began to gather. The sheriff and his deputies came.

There was a question about getting the dead and wounded and the-as-yet-unharmed of the Baker force out of town. The Sheriff said he would provide an escort. At 4 o'clock an ambulance came and the dead were placed in it. The others, including the wounded, entered their cars and with machine loads of deputy sheriffs in front and bringing up the rear, the procession moved down the hill and out the road to Berea, the escort turning back at Burning Springs.

What remained of the Sabbath was peaceful, with the added solemnity of death as it had stalked that day and the constant anxiety as to what may happen another day.

"LET

RUSSELL'S SYSTEM
PERMITS CHILDREN
TO CALL THEIR PAREN
FOOLS AND TO SWEA

"OUR world is a mad world," says Bertrand Russell. And to make it sane, this noted philosopher, mathematician and educational expert suggests, among other things a system of training for children which permits them to call grownups fools, to swear and to talk of "the facts of life" in a way that may seem very improper to conventional people, a system which encourages them to dispute their teachers and get gloriously dirty.

Conditions of freedom such as this, Russell reasons, enable children to grow up fearless, happy, kindly and with untrammeled intelligence. "A world of human beings with this emotional equipment," he declares, "would make short work of our social system, with its wars, its oppressions, its economic injustice, its horror of free speech and free inquiry, and its superstitious moral code."

Of course, the matter of training children to make a better world involves a good deal more than merely letting them speak freely, without fear of having their mouths washed out or their ears boxed. Economics, religion, nationalism, heredity and various other influences complicate the problem. Russell gives a comprehensive treatment of the subject in his latest book, "Education and the Modern World," published by W. W. Norton and Company, Inc., New York.

THE weight given Russell's views is likely to be governed to some extent by the reader's opinion of the author. There can hardly be any dispute as to the intellectual power of this British Earl who signs his books merely as Bertrand Russell. While many will think of him as a brilliant logician, a forceful writer, an interesting lecturer and a successful conductor of a school for young children, to others the small, timid looking man will be chiefly a radical, an enemy of the established order. They will identify him with such heresies as birth control and Communism. They will recall that his first wife, the former Alys Pearsall Smith, an American, divorced him for misconduct and desertion, and that his second wife was denied the privilege of lecturing in a Wisconsin University building because of her views on companionate marriage. They will remember that Russell opposed the World War and because of what he wrote on this subject was sent to prison for six months. To the conservative, almost anything Russell writes, outside the field of pure mathematics, is to be taken with a grain of salt.

Russell is now 60 years old. Left an orphan at 3, he was brought up by his grandmother and taught by governesses and tutors instead of at school, until he entered Cambridge. He won scholarship honors at the university and became a lecturer there. Education is one of his principal interests. He established one of the first schools in the world for pre-school children. He became the third Earl Russell last year on the death of a brother.

As Russell sees it, the world is "reeling drunkenly towards destruction." The main source of the trouble he traces to improper education of children, from infancy on, which he thinks permits or fosters passions, emotional habits and sentiments that makes for social disaster. The cure "is to make men sane, and to make men sane they must be educated sanely." "LET CHILDREN GET DIRTY and SWEAR"

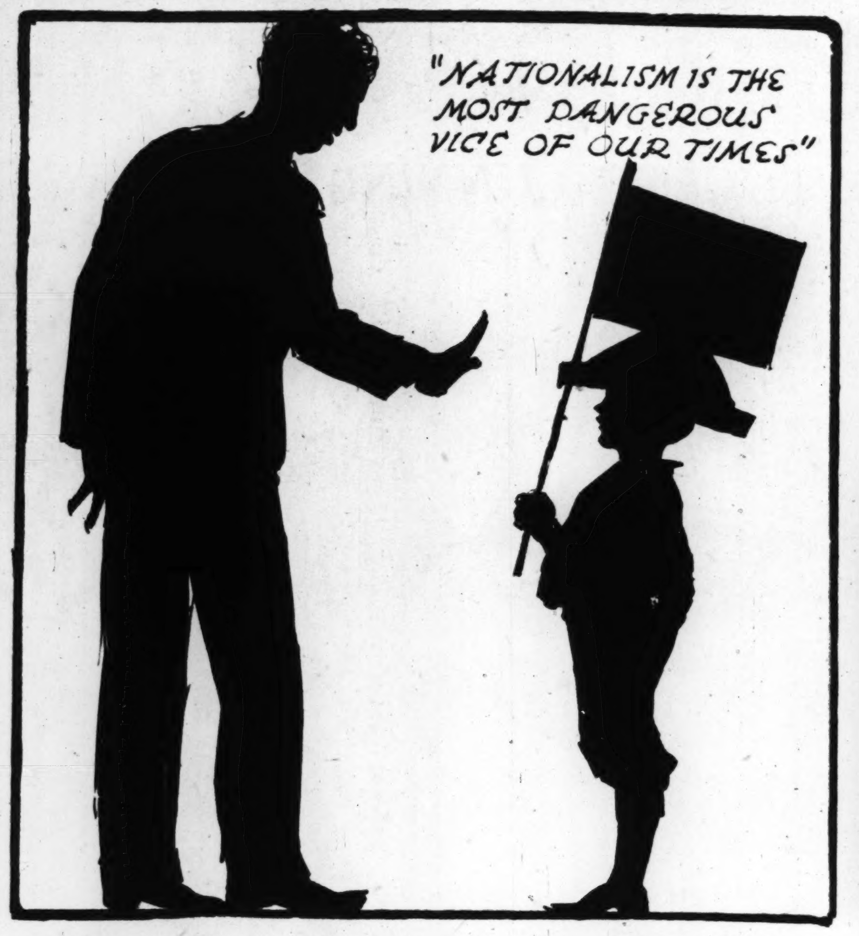
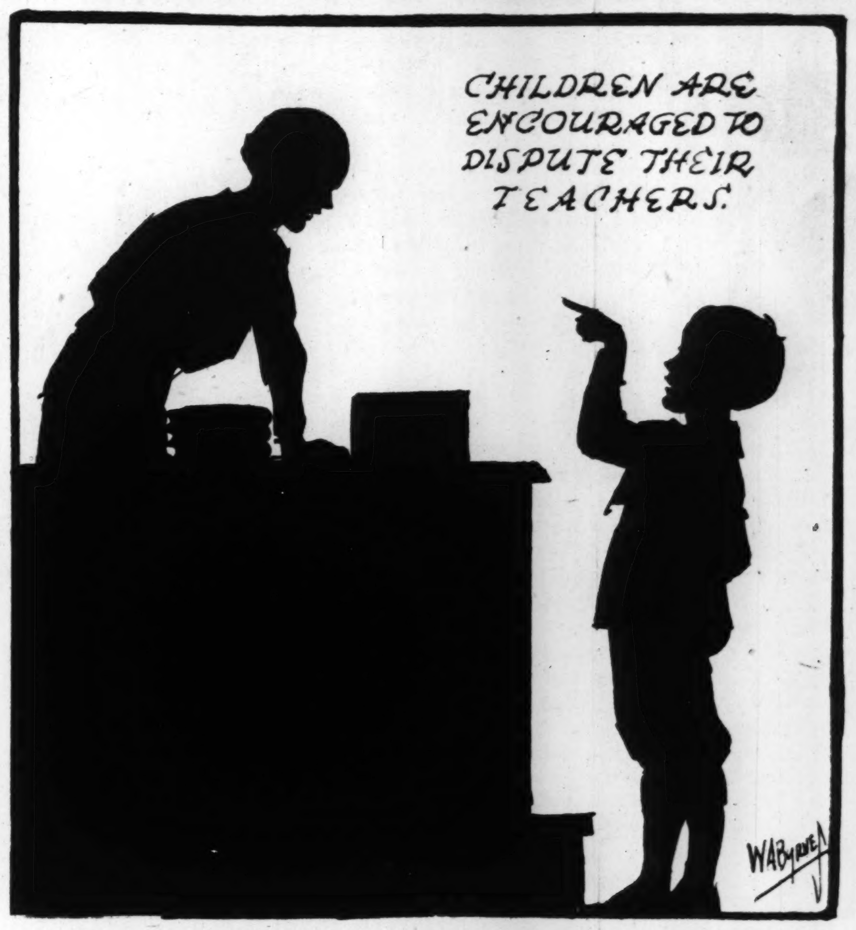
RUSSELL'S SYSTEM PERMITS CHILDREN TO CALL THEIR PARENTS FOOLS AND TO SWEAR.



"NATIONALISM IS THE MOST DANGEROUS VICE OF OUR TIMES"



CHILDREN ARE ENCOURAGED TO DISPUTE THEIR TEACHERS.

But They Must Learn to Get Clean Again, Says Bertrand Russell—Now Earl Russell—in His Newest Book on Educating the Young, and They Must Learn That Swearing Is Not Important One Way or the Other.

"OUR world is a mad world," says Bertrand Russell. And to make it sane, this noted philosopher, mathematician and educational expert suggests, among other things a system of training for children which permits them to call grownups fools, to swear and to talk of "the facts of life" in a way that may seem very improper to conventional people, a system which encourages them to dispute their teachers and get gloriously dirty.

Conditions of freedom such as this, Russell reasons, enable children to grow up fearless, happy, kindly and with untrammeled intelligence. "A world of human beings with this emotional equipment," he declares, "would make short work of our social system, with its wars, its oppressions, its economic injustice, its horror of free speech and free inquiry, and its superstitious moral code."

Of course, the matter of training children to make a better world involves a good deal more than merely letting them speak freely, without fear of having their mouths washed out or their ears boxed. Economics, religion, nationalism, heredity and various other influences complicate the problem. Russell gives a comprehensive treatment of the subject in his latest book, "Education and the Modern World," published by W. W. Norton and Company, Inc., New York.

THE weight given Russell's views is likely to be governed to some extent by the reader's opinion of the author. There can hardly be any dispute as to the intellectual power of this British Earl who signs his books merely as Bertrand Russell. While many will think of him as a brilliant logician, a forceful writer, an interesting lecturer and a successful conductor of a school for young children, to others the small, timid looking man will be chiefly a radical, an enemy of the established order. They will identify him with such heresies as birth control and Communism. They will recall that his first wife, the former Alys Pearsall Smith, an American, divorced him for misconduct and desertion, and that his second wife was denied the privilege of lecturing in a Wisconsin University building because of her views on companionate marriage. They will remember that Russell opposed the World War and because of what he wrote on this subject was sent to prison for six months. To the conservative, almost anything Russell writes, outside the field of pure mathematics, is to be taken with a grain of salt.

Russell is now 60 years old. Left an orphan at 3, he was brought up by his grandmother and taught by governesses and tutors instead of at school, until he entered Cambridge. He won scholarship honors at the university and became a lecturer there. Education is one of his principal interests. He established one of the first schools in the world for pre-school children. He became the third Earl Russell last year on the death of a brother.

As Russell sees it, the world is "reeling drunkenly towards destruction." The main source of the trouble he traces to improper education of children, from infancy on, which he thinks permits or fosters passions, emotional habits and sentiments that makes for social disaster. The cure "is to make men sane, and to make men sane they must be educated sanely." Because of the political needs of the present, the author rather reluctantly concludes that for a while the emphasis in education should be on citizenship rather than individual culture—but a citizenship not confined in national limits. He believes establishment of a world state necessary.

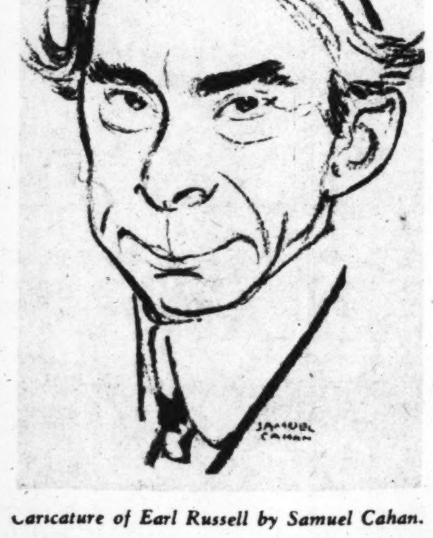
A holder of these views obviously finds much to condemn in education as now conducted. Several important influences in the training of the young today Russell attacks vigorously. Nationalism he calls the most dangerous vice of our time and one which is putting the continuance of civilized life in jeopardy. He objects to the kind of patriotism which makes a person hate other nations, which glorifies war, which imposes heavy tax burdens for armaments, which is used by finance to further its own ends and which causes false history to be taught. Religion, Russell asserts, encourages stupidity. Sex education—as commonly given—frequently produces nervous disorders or discords in the unconscious inimical to happy adult life, he says. Class feeling and competition also come in for special denunciation, the first for promoting acquiescence in economic injustice, the second as a breeder of ruthlessness. English public schools are criticised as tending to develop the will at the expense of intelligence and sensibility. And there is the sweeping indictment that in all countries save Russia educators tend to be "adherents of the rich."

In advancing his ideas as to how children should be trained, Russell considers three theories of education. One maintains the function of education is to give individual culture. Another deems the purpose should be to train useful citizens. The third, and newest, is that education merely should remove hampering influences to give a child the fullest opportunity for development. None of these theories is followed exclusively, and Russell thinks none is adequate alone. The third theory, which he calls the negative view of education, Russell favors, with certain limitations. In general, the elimination of compulsion, the granting of freedom to a child to learn about as he pleases, he regards as a good thing. Coercion tends to engender hatred in a child, Russell asserts, and this hatred may sink into the unconscious and profoundly affect its whole life, perhaps making the youngster grow into an anarchist, an oppressor of those weaker than himself or a person of morose disposition. Compulsion also destroys originality and intellectual interest, in Russell's opinion: when forced to learn, children come to dislike learning, and acquire knowledge merely in order to give correct answers and "get by" instead of being prompted by a healthy curiosity.

Earl Russell, with two small friends.

BUT there are some things, Russell points out, which can't be left to a child to learn of its own volition. One is cleanliness. While Russell thinks a young child should get extremely dirty in "grubbing about exploring the world," it also must get clean again, and some coercion is necessary to cause it to wash with a sufficient frequency. Punctuality is another quality which must be taught, the author thinks, because it is important in social intercourse and does not spring from any natural instinct. Common honesty, respect for the property of others, likewise needs to be instilled in a child, Russell says, because it also is not a natural characteristic of human beings.

The theory that a child will learn such things as reading and writing on his own account if left alone, impelled by a desire not to be inferior to other children, Russell disagrees with, pointing out that if no one was required to learn, for example, the multiplication table, there would cease to be any inferiority attached to not knowing it. Since few children have a "spontaneous impulse" to learn the multiplication table, he concludes that they must be made to learn it.



Caricature of Earl Russell by Samuel Cahan.

A further argument against absolute freedom in education is that children need some routine in their lives. Russell says a great deal of uncertainty is nervously exhausting to a child and that it tires him to have to plan all his own activities. A certain amount of routine makes for a feeling of security on the part of a youngster, and Russell thinks adventurousness and courage "are most easily developed against a background of fundamental security." Furthermore: ". . . complete freedom throughout childhood does not teach him to resist the solicitations of a momentary impulse."

Russell emphasizes, however, the importance of keeping discipline light and flexible, with a minimum of coercion and emotional restraint. "The use of authority as opposed to persuasion can be reduced almost to nothing where the right sort of adult is in charge of not too large a number of children." Also: "Experience has persuaded me, somewhat to my surprise, that it is possible to give adequate instruction, and to produce highly educated human beings, without imposing any obligation to be present at lessons. To do this requires a combination of circumstances which is not at present possible on a large scale. . . . It will be a long time before these conditions can be realized in ordinary schools, and, therefore, for the present, compulsory attendance in class is likely to be necessary in the great majority of cases."

A child may be trained in behavior in two ways: by rewarding or punishing him, according to his acts; by producing emotions in him which will cause him to act in the way desired. "Usually, the only form of reward or punishment required," says Russell, "will be praise or blame. . . . Those who have been taught from an early age to fear the displeasure of their group as the worst of misfortunes will die on the battlefield, in a war of which they understand nothing, rather than suffer the contempt of fools. The English public schools have carried this system to perfection. . . ."

While this system "is capable of producing an impressive uniformity of overt behavior," Russell says it is defective in failing to take into account the unconscious of Freudian psychology. "It is dangerous," he declares, "to produce good social behavior by means which leave the anti-social emotions untouched. So long as these emotions, while persisting, are denied all outlet, they will grow stronger and stronger, leading to impulses of cruelty which will at last become irresistible. It is better, he thinks, to see that children acquire the right emotional attitudes, and this can be achieved, he says, by the proper environment.

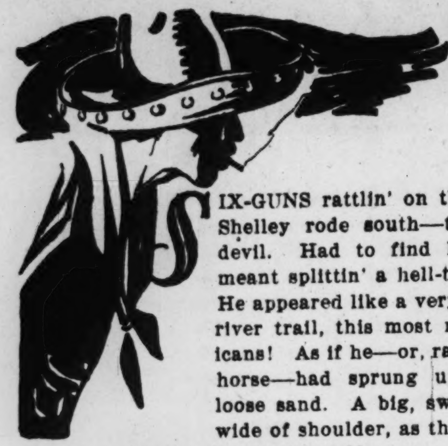
"The right emotional environment for a child is a delicate matter, and, of course, varies with the child's age. Throughout childhood, though to a continually diminishing extent, there is need of the feeling of safety. For this purpose, kindness and a pleasant routine are the essentials. The relation with adults should be one of play and physical ease, but not of emotional caresses. There should be close intimacy with other children. Above all, there should be opportunity for initiative in construction, in exploration, and in intellectual and artistic directions. . . . . There should be no enforced respect for grownups, who should allow themselves to be called fools whenever children wish to call them so. . . . Children should not be forbidden to swear—not because it is desirable that they should swear, but because it is desirable that they should think that it does not matter whether they do or not, since this is a true proposition. They should be free entirely from the sex taboo, and not checked when their conversation seems to inhibited adults to be indecent. If they express opinions on religion or politics or morals, they may be met with genuine argument. . . . Given such conditions, children may grow up fearless and fundamentally happy, without the resentment that comes of thwarting or the excessive demands that are produced by an atmosphere of hot-house affection. Their intelligence will be untrammeled, their views on human affairs will have the kindliness that comes of contentment."

AS TO the age at which a child should start to school, Russell thinks that is largely a matter of where he lives. A country child can profitably wander outdoors until ready to receive formal instruction, but it usually is well for a child living in cramped city quarters to attend a nursery school as "an escape into freedom—freedom of movement, freedom of noise and freedom of companionship." One of the advantages of school, in the author's opinion, is that it takes the child away from a home that is often too emotional. On the other hand, children in schools, at least beyond the nursery schools, are exposed to the influences of State and churches, both of which Russell regards as "implacable enemies of both intelligence and virtue." He suspends judgment as to the advisability of having children removed from their parents and brought up by the State, but thinks the importance of the State in the care of children is bound to increase, and the importance of the father diminish.

Russell is insistent that children be instructed in sex matters. The information, he says, should be given "in exactly the same tone of voice, and in the same manner, as information on other subjects." There should be no furtiveness or indirectness. He thinks a preamble about flowers and such is unnecessary. "Before puberty there is no difficulty whatever in causing a child to remain natural about sex. . . ." As to sexual guidance in general from puberty to marriage: "I do not think that in the present state of society and public opinion there is any solution to this problem."

WHILE conceding the need of thorough education—he attributes the world-wide depression largely to lack of education on the part of bankers and politicians, their failure to understand currency and credit—Russell thinks there is a good deal of over-education in the present system. Learning is too often accompanied by an emotional strain, resulting in a fatigue that seriously damages intelligence. It is suggested that pupils who are to have university educations be selected when they are 12 years old, instead of undergoing the strain of competition for scholarships later. Too much useless material is included in curriculums, Russell says. He thinks teachers ought to encourage intelligent disagreement on the part of their pupils. Arithmetic is taught when pupils are too young, he asserts. "The teaching of literature should be confined to reading, and the reading should be intensive rather than extensive. It is good to know by heart things from which one derives spontaneous pleasure, and it is useless, from the standpoint of education in literature, to read anything, however classical, which does not give actual delight to the reader. . . . Pupils should, of course, write as well as read, but what they write should not be criticised, nor should they be shown how, in the teacher's opinion, they might have written it better. So far as writing is concerned, there should be no teaching."

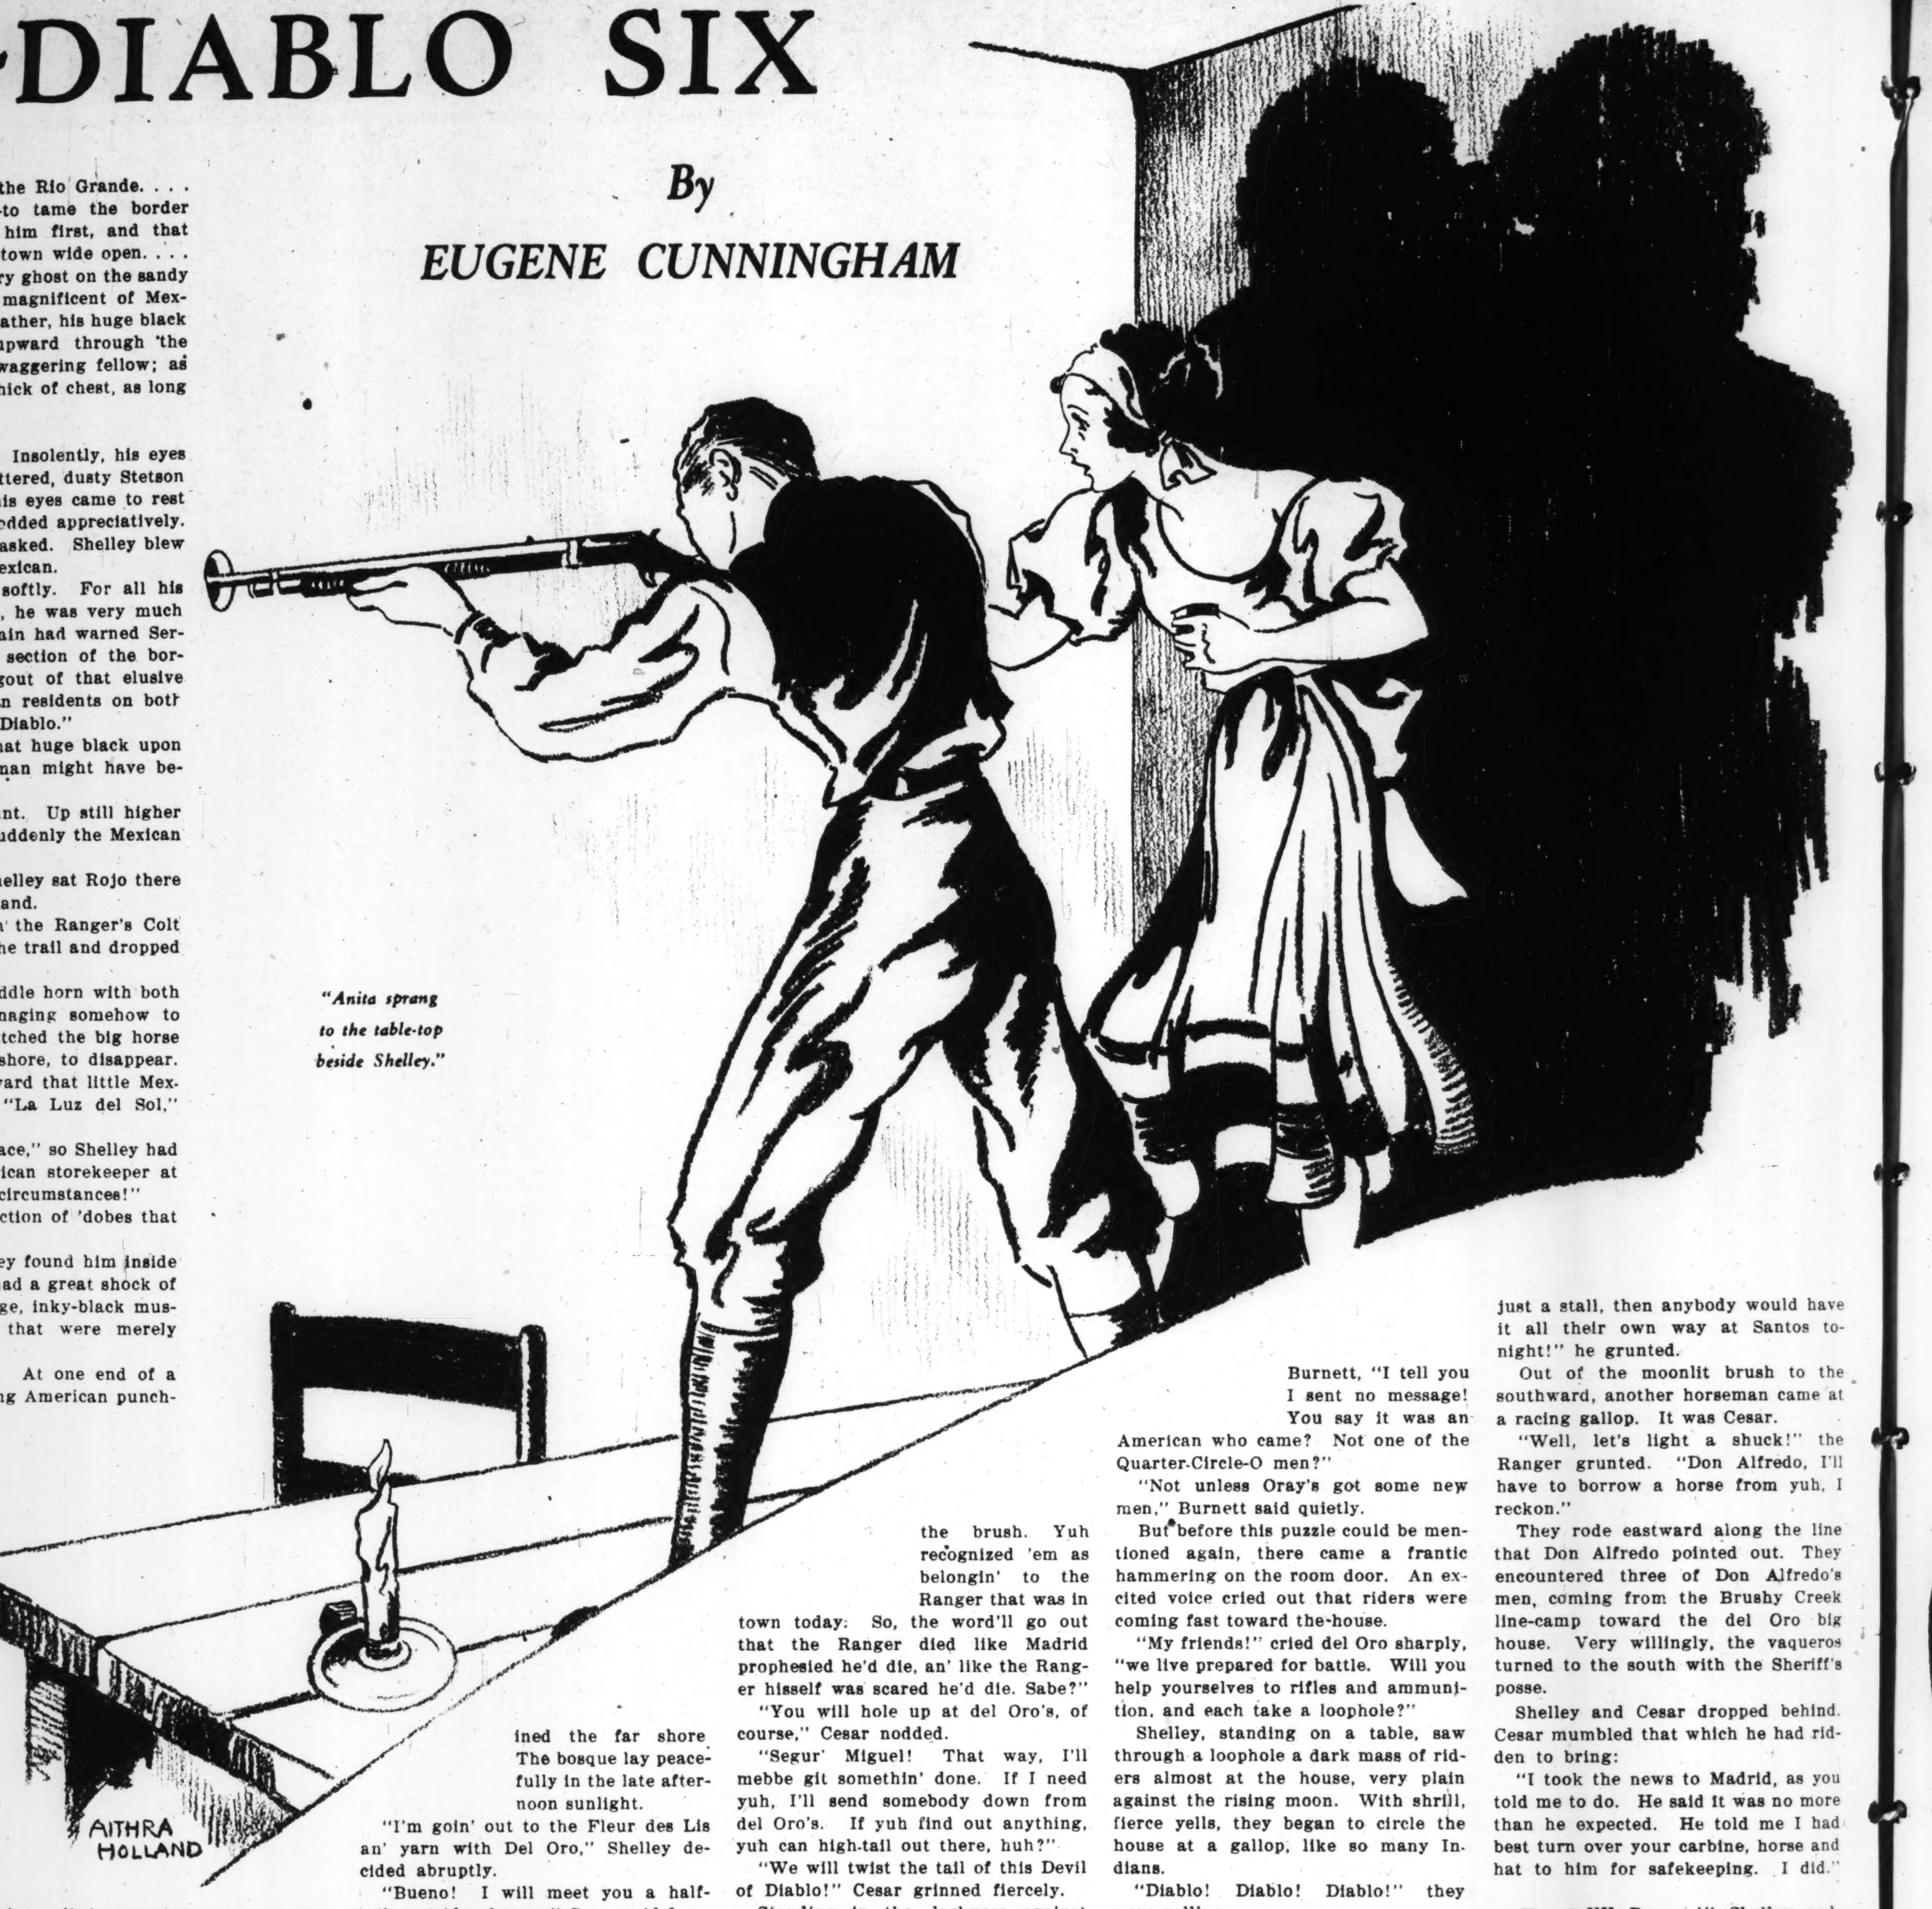
MANY parents of liberal tendencies hesitate to have their children educated by such methods as Russell approves, fearing the children afterward will suffer in trying to adapt themselves to the world as it is. Russell answers this argument: "I do not believe that a free education need make a boy or girl incapable of kindly manners, nor of that degree of external decorum which conventional life demands. Nor do I believe that the pain of conformity after a free education is nearly so great as the pain caused by the complexes which are implanted in the course of a conventional education." And in addition: "Our world contains grave evils, which can be remedied if men wish to remedy them. Those who are aware of these evils and fight against them are likely, it is true, to have less everyday happiness than those who acquiesce in the status quo. But in place of everyday happiness they will have something which I, for my part, value more highly, both for myself and for my children. They will have the sense of doing what lies in their power to make the world less painful. They will have a more just standard of values than is possible for the easy-going conformist. They will have the knowledge that they are among those who prevent the human race from sinking into stagnation and despair. This is something better than slothful contentment, and if a free education promotes this, parents ought not to shrink from the incidental pains which it may involve for their children."



DIABLO SIX

By

EUGENE CUNNINGHAM



"Anita sprang to the table-top beside Shelley."

SIX-GUNS rattlin' on the Rio Grande. . . . Shelley rode south—to tame the border devil. Had to find him first, and that meant splittin' a hell-town wide open. . . . He appeared like a very ghost on the sandy river trail, this most magnificent of Mexicans! As if he—or, rather, his huge black horse—had sprung upward through the loose sand. A big, swaggering fellow; as wide of shoulder, as thick of chest, as long of leg, as Shelley Raines himself.

They came abreast and reined in.

The Mexican was elaborately dressed. Insolently, his eyes roved up and down the Ranger, from battered, dusty Stetson to the worn puncher boots. But when his eyes came to rest on Rojo, the long-legged red horse, he nodded appreciatively.

"Where are you riding?" the Mexican asked. Shelley blew a great cloud of smoke straight at the Mexican.

"Who wants to know?" he inquired softly. For all his seemingly careless treatment of the man, he was very much on the alert. This, so his company Captain had warned Sergeant Shelley Raines, was the toughest section of the border. Moreover, it was the chosen hangout of that elusive Mexican bandit leader whom the Mexican residents on both sides of the Rio Grande called "Devil of Diablo."

The Mexican was furious. Up came that huge black upon its hind legs. Any but a master horseman might have believed that it was the horse's own doing.

The Mexican yelled angrily to his mount. Up still higher the horse lifted. In that cloud of dust, suddenly the Mexican and Shelley were shooting at each other.

Then, with almost equal suddenness, Shelley sat Rojo there in the trail, an empty Colt in his right hand.

The Arab, maddened by a bullet from the Ranger's Colt that had nicked his haunch, plunged off the trail and dropped over a five-foot bank.

The Mexican, wounded, clung to the saddle horn with both hands, swaying, almost falling, but managing somehow to cling to his plunging mount. Shelley watched the big horse emerge from the water on the southern shore, to disappear.

The Ranger rode on down the trail toward that little Mexican settlement called by the Mexicans "La Luz del Sol," by the Americans "Dogtown."

"Go to Simon Madrid, Justice of the Peace," so Shelley had been ordered, "and watch Burnett, American storekeeper at Santos. Do not trust Burnett under any circumstances!"

Shelley jogged into the straggling collection of 'dobes that was La Luz.

Simon Madrid was a vast figure. Shelley found him inside the cantina portion of a huge 'dobe. He had a great shock of curling black hair, a blob of a nose, a huge, inky-black mustache, shaggy, black brows, over eyes that were merely inky slits.

The place was crowded with Mexicans. At one end of a long, rough-pine bar were four hard-looking American punchers. Shelley found himself particularly interested in a handsome, blue-eyed, dark-haired, dandified American, standing two yards along the bar from where Shelley stood.

Shelley loafed over, dropping into a rawhide-bottomed chair beside the Justice of the Peace. Not until the four Americans had swaggered outside did he openly regard Madrid.

"How you fixed for banditos?" he inquired of the Justice of the Peace.

"So you are he who was sent!" Madrid said in a low voice. "Come back with me to the veranda."

He got up quickly and waddled off through a curtained doorway. Shelley followed Madrid into a cool, dark, almost bare room, then out to a long veranda overlooking the river bank.

"You are the Ranger," Madrid grunted. "Young man, I wish you well. I will help in any way within my power. It would be wonderful if this bandit gang could be wiped out. But—I do not think that one man can even stand in the path of Devil of Diablo—much less put that whirlwind into a bag!

"Well, I will help. But, remember, I did not ask that a Ranger be sent here. That was Alfredo del Oro, whose hacienda, 10 miles from here, has been robbed twice. You have known dangerous men. But I assure you, whatever you have seen, whomever you have known, they were barely a preparation for such as this king of banditos."

"Have yuh any idee where he hangs out?"

Slowly Simon Madrid shook his head.

"Devil of Diablo. . . . He is a mystery. So is everything connected with him. But I know the ford by which he crosses to this side of the river."

Then he told Shelley of the ford in the bosque, two miles east of La Luz. There one of his men had seen, upon a night the week before, the raiders crossing the river.

"Yeh," Shelley observed. "I was told somethin' about this American storekeeper, Burnett, at Santos. I was told to guard against him; to trust nobody in all this country except Simon Madrid!"

"I am honored. I think that you have been well counseled!"

"Who are the Americans in your barroom?" Shelley asked suddenly.

"The three who wore the chaparejos, Tammin, Aden and Janns, are Oray's Quarter-Circle-O riders. The youngest of those you saw, he wore no chaparejos, is William Oray. A very fine young man."

"I have hear tell," Shelley mused, after he had left Madrid, "about a tempest in a teapot. But this is the first time in all my long an' noble career, when I hear tell about puttin' a whirlwind in a bag."

He was passing the dark doorway of a very ordinary 'dobe house when a voice called out his name in a low tone.

"This is Cesar Aranda. Go down to the bosque on the river bank at the edge of the village," the voice instructed him. "I will come to you through the bosque, for we must not be seen together."

Shelley continued his loafing progress around La Luz. There was a fairly well beaten, though narrow trail that followed the river bank past La Luz. Shelley crossed from the river side of La Luz to this trail, and followed it for perhaps 20 yards, until a path angled off to the banks and down into the water. He stood here, staring off into Old Mexico. Then he sat down with back against a great old cottonwood.

Characteristically, Cesar materialized as a voice speaking from a clump of brush a yard away.

"Well, Sarjento! I heard that you were coming. So did everyone else in La Luz. But only to me did the name of Sergeant Raines mean anything.

"ALL this country here is a trap! But, because I have never met a man I like half so much, we shall see. If this trap closes upon you, then it closes upon us!"

Shelley's grunt by no means betrayed the satisfaction he owned at finding an ally ready to his hand. This one-time guide of Shelley's company was a brave and able man.

"The reason you were sent here," said Cesar, "is because that fine old gentleman, Alfredo del Oro, has suffered greatly from Diablo's raids."

"Think Del Oro's all right?" he asked Cesar.

"Trust Alfredo del Oro first, then Madrid! Madrid has—what is your proverb?—too many axes in the fire! Trust del Oro."

From the far side of the water, there sounded a dull, flat report. Shelley's battered Stetson jumped on his yellow head.

He hurled himself flat to the ground and crawled rapidly—chased by rifle bullets—back to the shelter of the cottonwood. From this cover he examined the far shore. The bosque lay peacefully in the late afternoon sunlight.

"I'm goin' out to the Fleur des Lis an' yarn with Del Oro," Shelley decided abruptly.

"Bueno! I will meet you a half-mile outside of town," Cesar said from his shelter.

Getting Rojo from the hitchrack, Shelley jogged out of town, heading eastward. He took, not the country road, but the ancient, narrow river trail. Twilight came before he reached the gaunt, lightning-blasted cottonwood which Madrid had mentioned as the landmark, 100 yards beyond which lay the side path to the ford.

When hoofbeats sounded on the trail behind him, he reined Rojo into the underbrush, waiting with carbine ready. It was Cesar.

They rode on. Presently, the trail dipped down to the very water's edge, the horses' hoofs squashing noisily in the muddy, black delta soil. Shelley was in the lead when, from a low, brushy island in the river, there came a sudden blast of fire from several rifles.

A bullet stung Rojo. The animal whirled so abruptly that Shelley was catapulted out of the saddle. He lay flat in the mud, staring grimly at that dark line of brush on the island, from which had come the volley. Rojo plunged up the slope, away from the water. Cesar plunged his horse after him.

Again and again the ambushed ones fired. Inch by inch, Shelley began to edge toward the undergrowth that on one side walled in the trail.

He gained it. He crouched with carbine up. But there was no sense in firing blindly. Too, there was a crackling in the bushes, but going away .

Cesar came softly up, leading Rojo. They listened for a long minute.

"Got an idee!" Shelley grunted. "We'll go on to Del Oro's. Then yuh'll take my carbine an' hat an' lead Rojo to La Luz. Tell Madrid, whilst yuh was ridin' yuh heard shootin'. When things quieted down, yuh come to the edge o' the water an' there was my Winchester an' hat in the trail, in a puddle o' blood. An' a place showin' I'd slipped over the bank into a quicksand.

"Naturally, yuh brought back the stuff, an' my hawse that yuh found in the brush. Yuh recognized 'em as belongin' to the Ranger that was in town today. So, the word'll go out that the Ranger died like Madrid prophesied he'd die, an' like the Ranger hisself was scared he'd die. Sabe?"

"You will hole up at del Oro's, of course," Cesar nodded.

"Segur' Miguel! That way, I'll mebbe git somethin' done. If I need yuh, I'll send somebody down from del Oro's. If yuh find out anything, yuh can high-tail out there, huh?"

"We will twist the tail of this Devil of Diablo!" Cesar grinned fiercely.

Standing in the darkness against the long, rambling 'dobe house of the Fleur des Lis, Shelley waited until a peon came shuffling across the yard. This man he sent with a message to del Oro. When a voice called from a doorway, he answered with one word: "Raines."

Del Oro called him inside.

"We are like a fortress under siege," Don Alfredo del Oro smiled apologetically. "My daughter, Anita!"

THE girl del Oro introduced was a slender, yet gently-rounded girl of 17, with skin like delicately-flushed old ivory, duskiest of hair and eyes, most vivid of scarlet mouths.

"Since 'twas yuh asked Sheriff Hardeman to bring a Ranger, I wanted to talk to yuh," Shelley said to del Oro. "I want to hole up on the Fleur des Lis, kind o'."

Shelley explained briefly the deception Cesar was helping him practice on the countryside. On Madrid, too.

"I figured him a tight-mouth at first. But not now! I told him I aimed to roam around the village—an' somebody took a shot at me from over the river. I told him I'd take a look at this ford. An' right where I said I was goin' somebody was waitin' to dust my breeches. So I'm tellin' him nothin' now."

"I was warned to watch him!" Shelley scowled.

"Burnett! But why? I have known him for three years—ever since he came to Santos from Presidio"——

"From Presidio!" cried Shelley. "Why, this is not Saul Burnett? It is! Oh, Dios mio! Bring the scoun'el in, will yuh?"

Don Alfredo smiled and vanished. He reappeared with a huge, craggy-faced man of sad, deep-set brown eyes, under brindly brows. Shelley grinned at his old and trusted acquaintance. Yet he wondered why he had been warned against this ex-Deputy Sheriff.

"But," Don Alfredo was saying to Burnett, "I tell you I sent no message! You say it was an American who came? Not one of the Quarter-Circle-O men?"

"Not unless Oray's got some new men," Burnett said quietly.

But before this puzzle could be mentioned again, there came a frantic hammering on the room door. An excited voice cried out that riders were coming fast toward the house.

"My friends!" cried del Oro sharply, "we live prepared for battle. Will you help yourselves to rifles and ammunition, and each take a loophole?"

Shelley, standing on a table, saw through a loophole a dark mass of riders almost at the house, very plain against the rising moon. With shrill, fierce yells, they began to circle the house at a gallop, like so many Indians.

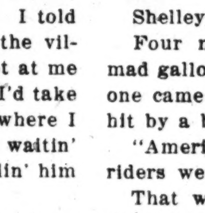
"Diablo! Diablo! Diablo!" they were yelling.

Anita del Oro sprang to the table top beside Shelley. She had a box of cartridges in her hand. Shelley shoved the muzzle of his Winchester through the loophole. He dropped one of the riders.

From their positions, the others were firing, too.

"Can yuh let me out a door right quiet," he said to Anita, "then shut it after me? I want to get to one of those sheds. If somebody starts shootin' at 'em from the outside, they'll think help's come."

Shelley gained shelter behind the 'dobe wall of a corral without being seen by the decreased number of banditos.



"Kill 'em, boys!" Shelley yelled fiercely in English, pumping his Winchester from where he lay on the ground. "Kill the scum! Yaaaiiiah! Yaaaiiiah!"

Shelley ran far to the right.

Four men were riding away at a mad gallop. As Shelley watched them, one came out of the saddle, evidently hit by a bullet from the house.

"Americans!" the three surviving riders were yelling.

That was the last of the banditos. Checking up in the yard, Shelley, del Oro and Burnett found six men. Five were quite dead, the sixth was dying.

"I have got to git back to Santos," Burnett said grimly. "There's somethin' mighty funny about this business. I can't help figurin' I was called down here just to git me out o' the way there."

While the returning peons were getting horses for Burnett and Shelley, three men came riding through the moonlight toward the house—the Sheriff, with two deputies.

"Just in time!" Burnett told Sheriff Hardeman.

"If this business o' the message was just a stall, then anybody would have it all their own way at Santos tonight!" he grunted.

Out of the moonlit brush to the southward, another horseman came at a racing gallop. It was Cesar.

"Well, let's light a shuck!" the Ranger grunted. "Don Alfredo, I'll have to borrow a horse from yuh, I reckon."

They rode eastward along the line that Don Alfredo pointed out. They encountered three of Don Alfredo's men, coming from the Brushy Creek line-camp toward the del Oro big house. Very willingly, the vaqueros turned to the south with the Sheriff's posse.

Shelley and Cesar dropped behind. Cesar mumbled that which he had ridden to bring:

"I took the news to Madrid, as you told me to do. He said it was no more than he expected. He told me I had best turn over your carbine, horse and hat to him for safekeeping. I did."

"MUY Bueono!" Shelley nodded slowly. "This man I killed—an' it seems I did kill him—was Luis Canales. He was, if not the Devil of Diablo himself, at least the principal leader o' the banditos. His place has been taken by one that's mebbe worse—that is, a better leader. His brother, Felix."

They rode on, swiftly. And, at a point perhaps four miles from Santos, they came to the battle. Horsemen—Mexicans by their high-crowned hats—were circle-riding some men, unseen except as puffing smoke from their rifles.

The Mexicans turned at the drumming of the hoofs of the Sheriff's posse. They stopped firing at the men in the arroyo and opened up on the Sheriff's party.

Stretched in a long line, the posse swept toward the Mexicans, who whirled their animals, heading into the south.

The Sheriff's posse went on toward the arroyo. But the rescued ones did not wait to return thanks to their rescuers. Four men came popping out of the arroyo and rode into the north.

"Well! Looks like nobody loves us!" Shelley grunted.

They rode up to the battleground. Five dead Mexicans and three dead horses lay there. Down in the arroyo were a crippled horse and a dead man.

He proved to be Aden, a Quarter-Circle-O rider. Burnett stooped beside him, suddenly, to stare. His big, gnarled forefinger stabbed out a wide, smudgy blue streak along Aden's back, from shoulder to hip.

"If that never come off my door, the door between my livin' quarters an' the store, right by the safe—then I'm a Chinaman!" Burnett grunted. "That door was painted just today. Now, what kind o' mixup is this? Them Quarter-Circle-O boys don't use Santos much. They buy from Madrid. So how

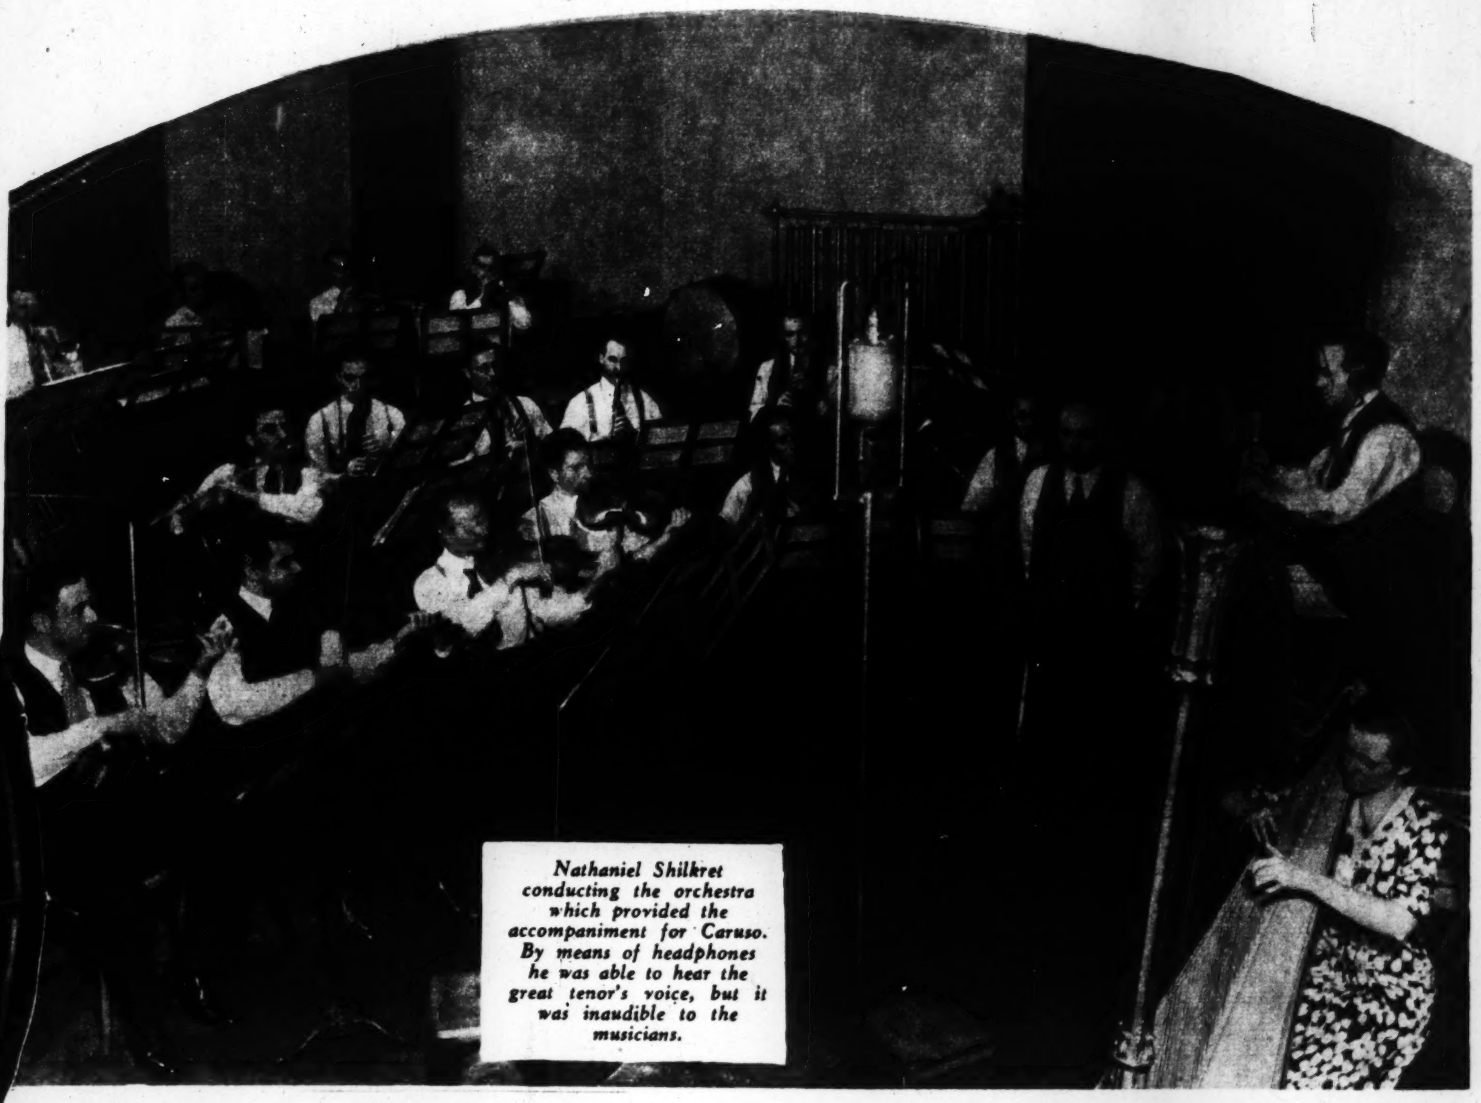
MAKING CARUSO SING AGAIN WITH A LIVING ORCHESTRA

Enrico Caruso, greatest tenor of all time, as Canio in "I Pagliacci."



Nathaniel Shilkret conducting the orchestra which provided the accompaniment for Caruso. By means of headphones he was able to hear the great tenor's voice, but it was inaudible to the musicians.

How an Amplified Record of the Famous Tenor's Voice Has Been Combined With a New Accompaniment Eleven Years After His Death.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CAMDEN, New Jersey.

THE great Caruso has been dead for 11 years now, but he sings once more into the recording instruments of the phonograph recordmakers with all his old-time brilliance and power. By means of newly-devised recording methods, his voice is literally extracted from old records and transferred to new records with brand-new orchestral effects. Thus, it is possible to hear him sing the famous "Pagliacci" aria and others, accompanied by a modern 20-piece symphony orchestra instead of by the instruments with which he actually sang in life.

Not only do the new recording methods make possible the substitution of a new accompaniment. They record the voice itself in such a manner as to bring out subtle overtones and shadings which the old-style phonographs were incapable of reproducing and which, for the last 11 years, have not been heard by human ears. Vocally, Enrico Caruso, possessor of the greatest voice the world has ever known, lives and breathes and sings again.

Since the first electrical recording, it has been a dream of the engineers of the R C A Victor Company to revive Caruso's voice to something approaching its original quality. They clung stubbornly to the belief that concealed within the grooves of those old Caruso records lay more of the real Caruso voice than phonographs had ever revealed.

FOR 11 years they have tried to find ways and means to restore it. A few weeks ago they succeeded. To Raymond Sooy, pioneer recordist of the Victor company, is given credit for the idea. Sooy supervised the recording of Caruso's voice when the celebrated tenor was alive, and a short time ago he supervised the recording of the revitalized "ghost" voice.

When the mechanical apparatus had been perfected, Nathanial Shilkret, veteran orchestra conductor, was called into the experiment. From the ranks of Leopold Stokowski's famous Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra he assembled a group of 20 hand-picked musicians and brought them to the Victor recording studios here. There a special pressing made from the original molds of the Caruso records was played several times to the musicians to familiarize them as far as possible with the Caruso interpretation. Afterward, the orchestra was rehearsed over and over again for hours as experimental recordings were made. Then the stage was cleared for the actual recording.

The special pressing, which had drained every possible nuance and shading from the sound tracks of the original mold, was adjusted in the recording control room so that the music from it would feed directly into a special amplifier and recording apparatus, to which ear phones had been attached with a long cord.

With the ear phones clamped to his head, Shilkret listened to the voice and guided his men through the intricate accompaniment. The musicians, for the first time in their lives, played for an artist they could not hear. Shilkret's baton, and his mannerisms as he strained to catch the exact tempo and expression of the revived Caruso voice, were the orchestra's only links with the voice from the past. Their music, however, was recorded directly with the Caruso voice, blending with and

The Man Who Introduced Modern Ballyhoo Methods Into Presidential Campaigns

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

IT IS doubtful if any American now living can remember when presidential campaigns weren't in essentials pretty much like the present one. Voters are bombarded with speeches, newspaper and magazine articles, cartoons, advertisements. Mass meetings, bands, parades impart a carefully worked-up enthusiasm to partisanship. Photographs of the candidates in noble and engaging attitudes are scattered throughout the land. Party leaders issue resounding manifestoes.

In the background are the party boards of strategy, weighing the effect of this move and that statement; and furnishing the nucleus for each of the opposing armies in the battle of the ballots is the party organization, an array of workers extending from national headquarters right down to the individual precincts. All the campaign efforts—the propaganda, the ballyhoo, the noise, argument, invective, hand-to-hand work—constitute an appeal to all types of citizens, a bid for the votes of Tom, Dick and Harry.

Presidential campaigns were not always like this. In the early days of the Republic, candidates for the presidency, nominated by party caucuses of Congressmen, made their appeal to but a fraction of the adult population—to the people of substance and position. It was not until well into the nineteenth century that the man in the street, the obscure American in humble circumstances, had much to do with selecting the President of his country. As late as the election of 1824, the presidential electors in six states were appointed by the state legislatures.

The change came with Andrew Jackson. Old Hickory, running for President in 1828, departed from precedent and sought the votes of the common people of the United States, the ignored men. And with a wild enthusiasm seldom equaled in political history, the farmers and backwoodsmen, the clerks and laborers of the country flocked to the polls and elected him. Claude G. Bowers, in his "Party Battles of the Jackson Period" (Houghton Mifflin Company), calls it the "rising of the masses." "With the election of 1828," he says, "a new era dawned in American politics." And in the next campaign, just 100 years ago, in which Jackson won re-election, there were the first national conventions, the first drawing of an issue between money power and worker, the first widespread use of the press and the first employment of caricature in an American presidential election. Jackson, the first President of the Democratic party, may well be called the father of modern political campaigning.

THOSE two victories and precedent-breaking campaigns of Jackson's were among the bitterest this country has ever known. This was undoubtedly due in part to the nature of the democratic despot from Tennessee. Jackson was a fighter and, like most fighters, inspired both intense devotion and intense hatred. On his side, he returned his friends' devotion in full measure, and hated his enemies with robust vindictiveness. In the life of a man of that kind there were bound to be many things which political opponents could attack, and such a man could not be expected to be delicate in his reprisals.

Jackson first ran for the presidency in the election of 1824, but he didn't run very hard. At the outset, at least, he seems to have been quite unenthusiastic, merely to have taken the position that he would "neither seek nor shun" the office. He let the Tennessee Legislature nominate him and his friends work for his election. He wasn't sanguine of success. As he expressed it, he wasn't "damned fool enough" to think he would win. But when the returns were in, Jackson was found to have a plurality, but not a majority of the electoral votes. He was the hero of the West because of his successful campaigns against the Creeks and Seminoles, his high-handed but popular course against the Spanish in Florida, his victory over the British in the battle of New Orleans, and the general appeal of his rugged, positive character to his fellow frontiersmen, and the West had given him votes in unprecedented numbers. There were three other candidates: John Quincy Adams of New England, William H. Crawford of Georgia and Henry Clay of Kentucky. Jackson received 99 electoral votes, Adams 84, Crawford 41 and Clay 37. Since there was no majority, the election was thrown into the House of Representatives, which had to decide among the three leading candidates. Clay, being thus eliminated, threw his support to Adams, and Adams was chosen President.

Then Andrew Jackson did go after the presidency. He believed that the popular will had been defeated. And his indignation was increased by the fact that Adams appointed Clay Secretary of State. He charged that this was bribery, Clay's price for supporting Adams in the House contest. There is reason to believe that Clay needed no bribe to support Adams, but the Jackson men refused to see in the affair anything but low intrigue. And the new President was scarcely in office before Jackson and his friends were laying their plans to elect Jackson in 1828.

While Jackson men in Congress harassed Adams at every opportunity, the General and his advisers built up virtually a nation-wide organization for his campaign. Managers were placed in New York, Pennsylvania and the South. Newspapers were enlisted in the Jackson cause and coached to sing his praises and attack the administration. A newspaper named the United States Telegraph was established in Washington, with Duff Green

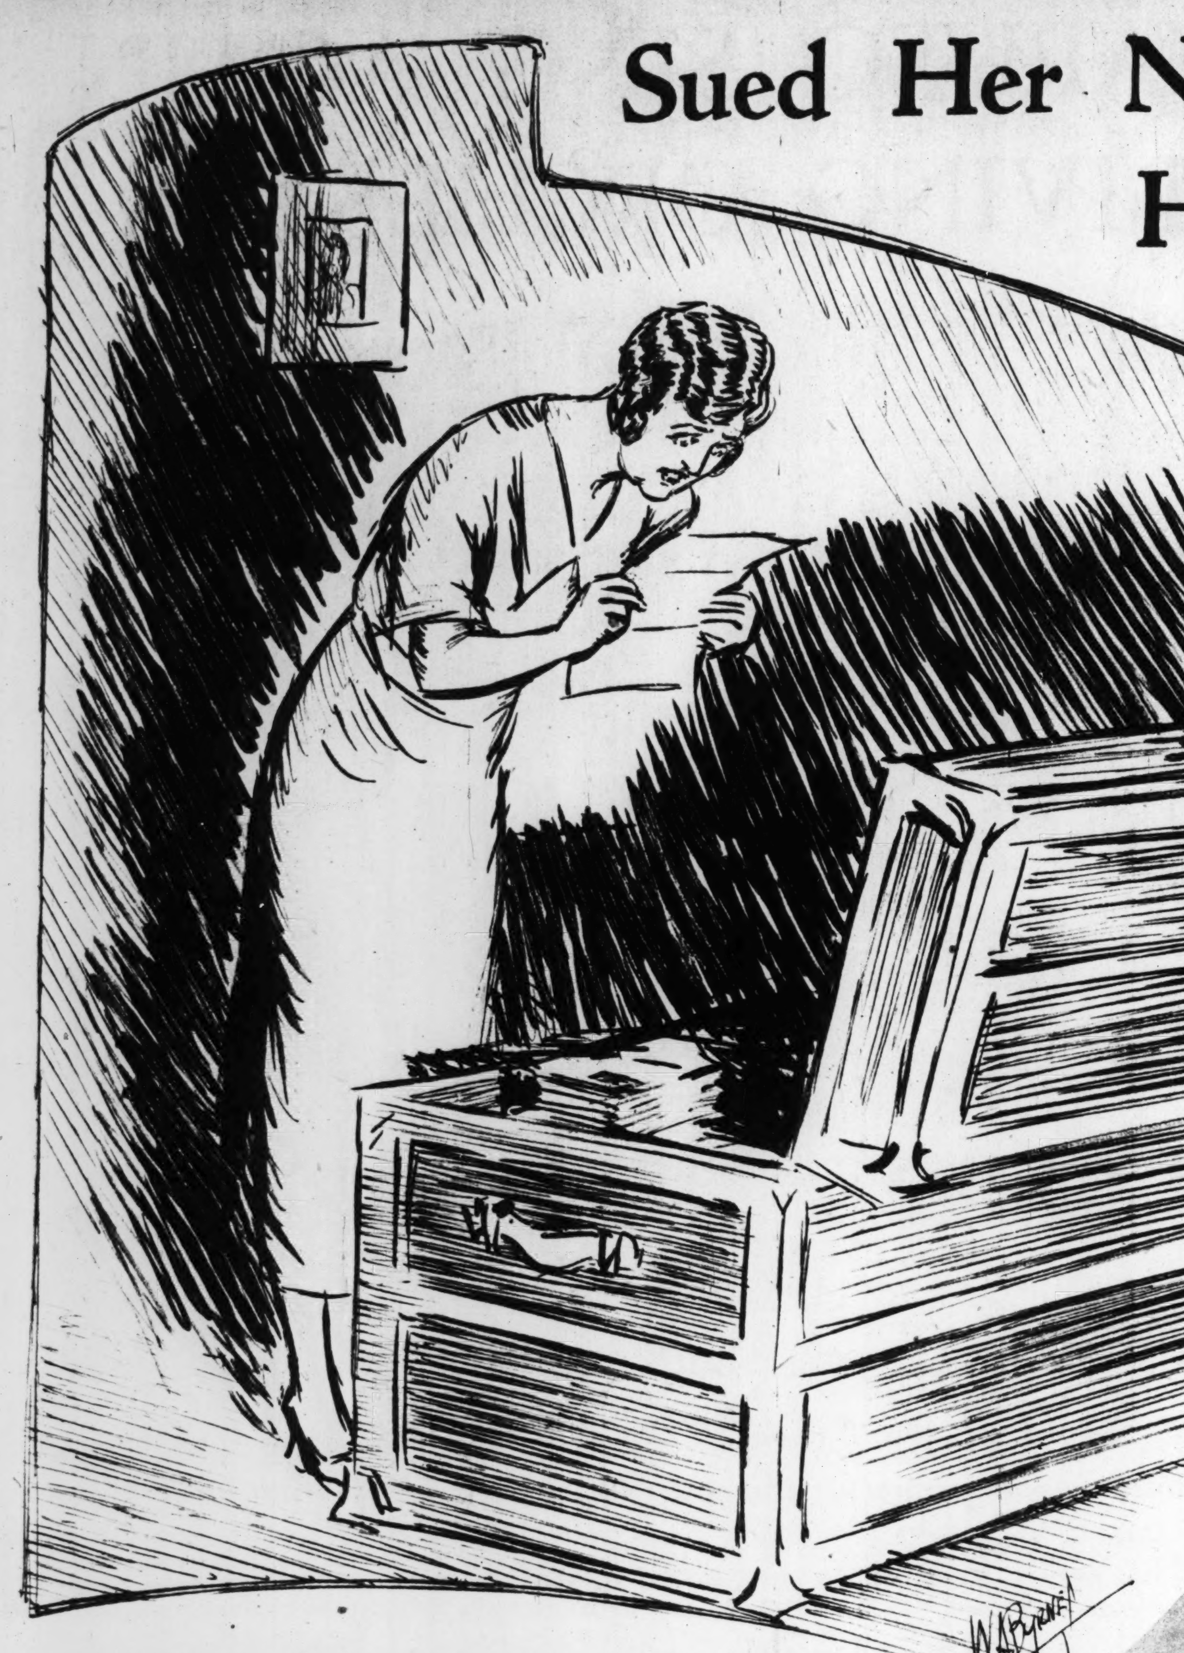
Sued Her Neighbor for Alienating Her Dead Husband's Affections

Post-Mortem Letters, Three Years Old, Basis for the Unusual Court Action Successfully Prosecuted Against Mrs. Adolphine Haessig.



Mrs. Adolphine Haessig.

By ARTHUR STRAWN

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

A BATCH of letters found in a dead man's trunk forms the basis for one of the most unusual alienation of affection suits ever brought in a New York court. The wife did not discover who had been responsible for her husband's indifference until after his death. She made the discovery when rummaging through her husband's trunk and filed suit for $25,000 against the woman who wrote the letters. And though the husband whose affections had been alienated had been dead for three years when the case was tried in Queens Supreme Court, a jury nevertheless returned a verdict for the widow.

An added peculiarity in the case is that both women involved are elderly matrons, each with grown and married children, the plaintiff, Mrs. Frederick Burglund, being 50 years old, and the defendant, Mrs. Adolphine Haessig, a white-haired woman of 65. The advanced age of the defendant is believed to be the chief reason why the jury awarded Mrs. Burglund only $1000 damages, although Mrs. Haessig was found guilty of the charges brought against her.

In 1923, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Burglund lived in Woodhaven, Long Island, now one of the outposts of Greater New York. They had been married 23 years and had six children, the three youngest a girl, 14, and two boys, 8 and 9 years old. Burglund had served as a Second Lieutenant of Aviation during the war. He was a plumbing contractor by trade, but after the war ended and he returned home, he had difficulty getting a satisfactory position.

In answer to an advertisement, however, he was offered a position in Chicago. He did not want to leave his family, but no other opportunity presented itself and, after discussing the situation with his wife one night, it was agreed that the only thing for him to do was to accept the Chicago offer. He was to go out there and get settled. And then he was to send for his wife and children.

Accordingly, in July, 1923, Frederick Burglund went off to Chicago. The position did not come up to expectations and he wrote his wife, saying that he was planning on making a change. He had difficulty finding lucrative work, and consequently wasn't able to send for his family. But his letters to his wife were affectionate and solicitous, and in spite of his difficulties he managed to send money home from time to time.

This lasted for some months. The money he sent wasn't sufficient to take care of the needs of the family in Woodhaven, and though the three eldest children worked and contributed to the upkeep of the home as best they could, Mrs. Burglund found it necessary to obtain employment herself. She went to work for the telephone company, and holds a responsible position there today.

As time passed, however, she noticed a change in her husband's attitude. His letters came less frequently, and they were decidedly cooler when they did come. He was also sending fewer and fewer money orders toward the support of the children, and when he had been away from home a little more than two years, his letters and money orders ceased altogether. Mrs. Burglund wrote to him repeatedly at his Chicago address, but her letters either remained unanswered or elicited only an occasional brief reply.

IT BECAME obvious to Mrs. Burglund that her husband was no longer interested in her or the welfare of the children. She was nonplussed at his complete change of heart, and when her inquiries to him failed to bring forth any satisfactory reply, she decided to take action to compel him to contribute at least to the support of the three youngest children. Accordingly, she reported her situation to the Abandonment Bureau of Queens County, and officials communicated with her husband through Chicago authorities, giving him the choice of being extradited to New York to answer charges of non-support, or of contributing to his children's care. He agreed to contribute, and thenceforth, until the time of his death, sent the sum of $15 a week.

That was in June, 1926. He sent no letters after that, only occasionally including a formal line or two with his remittance. Then, in February, 1929, Mrs. Burglund received notice from Chicago that her husband had died. She journeyed to Chicago, arranged for his interment and from the landlady at whose house he had lived, received his trunk, which she sent back to her home in Woodhaven, together with other of his effects. For years her husband had carried an insurance policy for the benefit of herself and the children, but now she discovered that he had permitted the policy to lapse while in Chicago. She was inclined to believe that he had done so because of difficulties in meeting the payments, although later she was to assume that he had permitted the insurance to lapse deliberately.

In a conversation with her husband's landlady, Mrs. Burglund learned that her husband frequently received letters with a Woodhaven postmark. The landlady had presumed they were from his wife, but on learning of the frequency of the letters and of the approximate time they had been received, Mrs. Burglund realized that the letters must have come from someone else in Woodhaven. Who it was, she had no way of knowing. Nor was Mrs. Burglund able in any way to learn anything else from the landlady that might account for her husband's unexplained coolness after he had come to Chicago. The landlady said that he had been a man of regular and sober habits, working steadily, and with apparently no interests, other than his work, that seemed to claim his time or attention.

Some time after Mrs. Burglund had returned to Woodhaven, she decided to go through her husband's trunk. There she discovered a batch of letters which he had received in Chicago. They bore a Woodhaven postmark, and their dates, and contents, indicated that they had been sent regularly during the six years he lived in Chicago. To Mrs. Burgland's further surprise, she discovered that the author of the letters was Mrs. Adolphine Haessig, a widow in her middle fifties at the time Burglund had left home, and the mother of four or five grown children.

There were several reasons why Mrs. Burglund should have been surprised to learn that Mrs. Haessig had been corresponding with Burglund. The chief reason was that the two women had not been on friendly terms for a period of years, extending back to a time before Burglund had gone to Chicago. And the reason for this lack of friendliness was to a great extent responsible for much of the contents of the letters, and for Burglund's final indifference to his wife.

The Burglunds and the Haessigs had once been on friendly terms. The two families were neighbors in Woodhaven and enjoyed many social intimacies together.

AMONG the things they had in common was a mutual interest in the local post of the American Legion. Burglund and his son, Leonard, were members of the post, and so was Mrs. Haessig's son, Carl. Both Mrs. Burglund and Mrs. Haessig were members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Woodhaven Post, and active in its affairs.

Then, before Burglund went to Chicago, an incident occurred that seems to have embittered Mrs. Haessig against Mrs. Burglund. Carl Haessig was a candidate for the office of commanding officer of the post. Leonard Burglund, however, was active in the the support of a rival candidate. The rival candidate won the election. Mrs. Haessig held young Burglund responsible, and for some reason was inclined to believe that Mrs. Burglund had influenced her husband in his opposition to Carl Haessig. From that time on there was a growing coolness between the two women, and though Mrs. Burglund was conscious of it, she never suspected the depth of the other woman's dislike.

Mrs. Haessig had once been president of the Women's Auxiliary. Very soon after Burglund's departure for Chicago, Mrs. Burglund was elected to the same office. This further embittered Mrs. Haessig, and from then on nothing Mrs. Burglund did or failed to do met Mrs. Haessig's approval. Hardly any of Mrs. Haessig's letters to Burglund failed to include statements calculated to damage Mrs. Burglund's position in her husband's eyes, accusing her of neglecting the children, speaking disparagingly of Burgland, and even suggesting that Mrs. Burglund was not conducting herself properly toward other men.

It is one of the many curious features of this unusual case that attorneys for the plaintiff at the trial made no effort to prove that there had been undue intimacy between Mrs. Haessig and Frederick Burglund, which is usually the case when actions are brought for alienation of affection. It is true that in one of the letters Mrs. Haessig did tell Burglund that she wished he was back in Woodhaven and that they would "have a fine time together."

But no attempt was made to prove the existence of a love affair. For one thing, such an attempt might not have made much of an impression on the jury, in view of the defendant's white hair and sedate, matronly appearance on the witness stand.

It was sufficient for Mrs. Burglund to prove that Mrs. Haessig had alienated Burglund's affections, and this she did to the satisfaction of the jury by showing that the letters contained such matter as would destroy a husband's confidence in his wife and his regard for her.

Mrs. Haessig, on the stand, made no attempt to deny writing the letters, but said she had done so at Burglund's request, in order to keep him informed of his wife's conduct in his absence. However that may be, a reading of the letters made it apparent to the jury that Mrs. Haessig's zeal in reporting adversely was decidedly pronounced.

IN THE letters Mrs. Haessig frequently referred to Mrs. Burglund as "The Loud Speaker," accused her of being indifferent to the children and spending her time running around for pleasure. "She is having a fine time, going around three and four times a week to dances, card parties and luncheons," she reported in one letter, "anything to be in the limelight." She accused Mrs. Burglund of "making up to the bums" of the Legion post, and encouraged him to get a divorce when his two years' residence in Illinois had been completed.

Again, she wrote that on one occasion when someone asked Mrs. Burglund how her husband was, saying that it was rumored he was sick, she replied: "I don't care how he is; I hope he dies." And in another note she intimated that Mrs. Burglund wasn't fit to be his wife, saying that she was "a regular devil, enough to drive a saint to drink," that she "painted up" and was having a fine time while the father of her children was away, associating with the "loafers of the post and sitting around and running down the father of her children." And in another letter to "Dear Old Boy" she offered to testify for him if he was brought back to answer for abandonment, and she ended her letter by advising Burglund to destroy her notes.

Unfortunately for herself, Burglund failed to follow that admonition, with the result that the letters were discovered and read before a jury the other day, which found Mrs. Haessig guilty of having alienated Burglund from his wife and family, and assessed her the sum of $1000 for damages.

Affections

hree Years Old,
Court Action
ted Against Haessig.

Mrs. Adolphine Haessig.

For one thing, such an attempt might not have made much of an impression on the jury, in view of the defendant's white hair and sedate, matronly appearance on the witness stand.

It was sufficient for Mrs. Burglund to prove that Mrs. Haessig had alienated Burglund's affections, and this she did to the satisfaction of the jury by showing that the letters contained such matter as would destroy a husband's confidence in his wife and his regard for her.

Mrs. Haessig, on the stand, made no attempt to deny writing the letters, but said she had done so at Burglund's request, in order to keep him informed of his wife's conduct in his absence. However that may be, a reading of the letters made it apparent to the jury that Mrs. Haessig's zeal in reporting adversely was decidedly pronounced.

IN THE letters Mrs. Haessig frequently referred to Mrs. Burglund as "The Loud Speaker," accused her of being indifferent to the children and spending her time running around for pleasure. "She is having a fine time, going around three and four times a week to dances, card parties and luncheons," she reported in one letter, "anything to be in the limelight." She accused Mrs. Burglund of "making up to the bums" of the Legion post, and encouraged him to get a divorce when his two years' residence in Illinois had been completed.

Again, she wrote that on one occasion when someone asked Mrs. Burglund how her husband was, saying that it was rumored he was sick, she replied: "I don't care how he is; I hope he dies." And in another note she intimated that Mrs. Burglund wasn't fit to be his wife, saying that she was "a regular devil, enough to drive a saint to drink," that she "painted up" and was having a fine time while the father of her children was away, associating with the "loafers of the post and sitting around and running down the father of her children." And in another letter to "Dear Old Boy" she offered to testify for him if he was brought back to answer for abandonment, and she ended her letter by advising Burglund to destroy her notes.

Unfortunately for herself, Burglund failed to follow that admonition, with the result that the letters were discovered and read before a jury the other day, which found Mrs. Haessig guilty of having alienated Burglund from his wife and family, and assessed her the sum of $1000 for damages.

Where Campaign Ballyhoo Began

of Missouri as its editor and "sicked on" the opposition. Pamphlets were issued. Jackson men formed committees in many of the communities and, whenever they could, turned public meetings into rallies for their side. The common effort was to picture Old Hickory as the people's champion against the politicians—an effort in which Old Hickory himself was aided by politicians about as astute as any to be found in the country. Major William B. Lewis, an old friend of Jackson's, and the wily Martin Van Buren of New York were among the number. Henry Clay was managing Adams' campaign—and doing it, one of Jackson's editors wrote, "not like a statesman of the Cabinet, but like a shyster, pettifogging in a bastard suit before a country squire."

JACKSON'S past—and he had plenty of past—was thoroughly aired by his political foes. The country was informed that as a youth in the Carolinas and a backwoods lawyer, Judge, merchant and planter in Tennessee, this son of Irish immigrants had been dissolute and dangerous. He drank, swore, gambled, raced horses and fought like a desperado. He was called a murderer for his implacable killing of an adversary in a duel and for various military executions he ordered. He was called an adulterer because of his wife. Jackson had married Mrs. Rachel Doneldson Robards in the belief, which she shared, that her husband had divorced her. Later they learned that Robards had not obtained a divorce, but merely the permission of the Virginia Legislature to bring divorce proceedings. After Robards did get a divorce, Jackson and Rachel went through another marriage ceremony and were devoted to each other as long as she lived. Jackson, directing his campaign from his home, the Hermitage, near Nashville, seethed at the revival of the old scandal, and is said to have been with difficulty restrained from getting out his pistols and going gunning for the villifiers of his loyal, pipe-smoking and beloved wife. She died shortly his election.

Derogatory remarks about his wife led to the fatal duel in which Jackson had participated years before. Charles Dickenson it was who spoke ill of the General's wife. He apologized when called to account, but Jackson didn't forget, and when later they faced each other on the dueling ground, over some other grievance, Jackson was implacably resolved to kill his adversary, despite the fact the latter was reputed to be the best pistol shot in Tennessee. When the word was given, Jackson held his fire and was hit by Dickenson's bullet. But he remained upright, waited until Dickenson was forced to return to the mark from which he had retreated, then took careful aim and shot his enemy down, inflicting a mortal wound.

In this campaign of vituperation the Jackson forces were far from blameless. They kept hammering away at Adams' appointment of Clay as Secretary of State. They accused Adams of being extravagant with public funds and cited his purchase of a billiard table for the White House. They accused the President of being undemocratic. They even started a story that the sedate, gentlemanly Adams, when Minister to Russia, acted as procurer for a Russian noble, an American girl being the victim.

EARLY in 1828 Jackson and a party of his adherents went to New Orleans to attend a celebration of the battle of 1815. The General was received with great enthusiasm and made a speech. The celebration seems to have been largely a publicity stunt.

The election was a landslide, Jackson receiving 178 electoral votes and Adams 83, from the 24 states which then composed the Union. He received about 140,000 more popular votes than his opponent.

Soon after Jackson took office the Democratic party became the official designation of the political group he headed.

From the beginning of the administration an awkward social situation disturbed the political life of the capital, and led eventually to a Cabinet upheaval. John H. Eaton, who became Secretary of War, had married Peggy Timberlake (nee O'Neil), a lively young widow, whose reputation was a bit sullied, and the wives of other Cabinet members snubbed her, as did Washington society in general. This enraged Jackson. Remembering the slanders to which his Rachel had been subjected, and naturally gallant toward women, he championed Peggy and tried to force society to accept her. He didn't succeed; and the Vice President's wife was one of the most determined in avoiding contamination from the sprightly Mrs. Eaton. So presently there was a new Cabinet; even Secretary of State Van Buren, a widower, who had followed Jackson's lead in regard to Peggy, retired.

Two other controversies provided issues for the campaign of 1832: Jackson's fight against renewing the charter of the Bank of the United States, and his firm stand against South Carolina's nullification policy, under which the State claimed the right to prevent the collection of tariff duties within its borders.

These and other questions were debated fiercely and sonorously in Congress. One of Jackson's stanchest supporters in the Senate was Thomas Hart Benton of Missouri, despite the fact that he and Jackson had once faced each other with drawn pistols and Benton's brother, Jesse, had shot the Tennessee firebrand in the shoulder.

NATIONAL nominating conventions were held for the first time in preparation for the election of 1832. Jackson and Van Buren were the Democratic nominees, Clay and Sargent the National Republican candidates.

With the bank and Jackson himself as the main issues, the campaign proceeded in hammer-and-tongs fashion. Again the shrewd Jackson politicians organized down to the grass roots. Again the press was flooded with political propaganda. The bank spent $80,000—important money in those days—in support of Clay. Caricatures appeared, most of them aimed at Jackson. There were many camp meetings, devoted to politics and enlivened with fiery oratory. Jackson supporters likened Nick Biddle, president of the National Bank, to Old Nick. A glee club took the stump for Jackson. Old Hickory's private life again was raked over the coals. Van Buren also was denounced as a sly schemer. Nor did Clay escape in the general mud-spattering. The election came, and again Jackson was overwhelmingly victorious. He received 219 electoral votes, against 49 for Clay.

So Andrew Jackson's faith in the people again was vindicated. Appeal to the masses of the population was established as the campaign technique of American presidential politics.

ALEXANDRIAN MOSAIC

THIS mosaic is the fifty-sixth in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance, and each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of the mosaic follows:

A mosaic is a surface pattern made by putting together small bits of colored stone or glass. Essentially, it is a process of inlay, although in the past the actual construction has not always been carried out in that manner. It has been used as a method of decorating walls, floors and ceilings for several thousand years, and according to ancient writers was first employed in Greece.

By far the largest number of ancient mosaics known today are those dating from the centuries when Rome was in the ascendancy, both politically and artistically. Some are to be seen in the remains of ancient temples, some in the first churches to be erected by the Christians, many in the remains of Pompeian houses, protected for so long by masses of lava and now exposed to sight once more.

At the period in the history of Greece when the current of power and culture began to flow outward towards her colonies instead of inward to the mainland, the cities of Asia Minor and Egypt gradually assumed the positions once held by Corinth, Delphia and Athens. Farther to the west, Rome was beginning to make its influence felt, and all around the Mediterranean the interweaving of the various forces was inaugurating the so-called Graeco-Roman period of art.

Among the cities in which the movement was strong was Alexandria, in the north of Egypt, famed as a center of culture and learning during the centuries immediately preceding and following the beginning of the Christian era.

The fragmentary piece of mosaic on display this week was found in Egypt and is a Graeco-Alexandrian work of the second dynasty B. C.

IT REPRESENTS the flower-wreathed head of a satyr, grinning out at the spectator rather cruelly, so that the latter has no responsive feeling of mirth at the smile. The face is bearded; the hair, through which a pointed ear is seen, falls over the forehead in a heavy mass. The eyes are malicious, the mouth cruel.

The pattern is made of innumerable small pieces of colored marble and glass, or possibly a glazed material, set in cement. These bits are quite irregular in size and shape and are laid in lines which follow the contours of the planes in the face. This gives a naturalistic appearance in spite of the lack of realism in the colors. The background is laid in horizontal rows and apparently was devoid of pattern, indicating that the satyr may have been quite complete as he is seen, and not a part of a larger composition.

The important factors in the charm of the piece are the harmonious color scheme—soft tans, grays, reds and greens—and the vivacity of expression, due mainly to the tilt of the head and the shining black of the pupils of the eyes.

Making Caruso Sing Again

Before assembling the musicians Shilkret had carefully studied the orchestration and instruments in the original recording. He then matched these instruments in the new orchestra and added others to make up for weaknesses in the original. Since Caruso's voice was being fed to the recorder through one channel and the new accompaniment through another, it was impossible in bringing them together to amplify either at will. Moreover, the original orchestration was so inadequate and unbalanced in relation to the singer that it was possible to override the old music with new and bring about a more perfect balance.

ANOTHER important point in such a delicate undertaking was that of sychronization, credit for which goes mainly to Shilkret. While the conductor listened to Caruso's voice through the ear phone on one ear, he guided his musicians with use of the other ear. His work, of course, was aided by the fact, well known to experienced musicians who accompany vocalists with full orchestra, that the musicians themselves can hardly hear the vocalist at all. This applies especially to radio broadcasting and recording. Consequently, they have been rigorously trained to obey the most minute instructions from the leader's baton.

Diablo Six

did this Aden git that paint on him?"

"But who are these Mex that was shootin' up the Quarter-Circle-O boys, then?" Shelley wanted to know. "Supposin' the Quarter-Circle-O outfit was a little on the steal, maybe workin' with this Diablo gang—well, it's too much for me! Suppose we trail those fellows an' have a looky at the Quarter-Circle-O? No use goin' to Santos, that I can see."

They rode in the dark toward the Quarter-Circle-O house.

A boy of 16 or 17 came out. He said the boss, Oray, with Tammin, Janns and a tall, thin man, who had come to the house only the day before, had left some 20 minutes ago. They had come racing up and Oray had gathered some things from his room in a tow-sack. Then all had ridden westward.

"ORAY, Tammin an' Janns," Hardemann repeated. "You say you don't know the name o' this tall, thin man, who came yesterday?"

"They talked very little to him," the boy shrugged. "Because, perhaps they had always to put their mouths to his ear and yell."

"What's the matter, Raines?" Hardeman grunted.

"Matter!" cried Shelley. "Matter! If that wasn't Dynamite Potts out o' Sonora Till's gang—Sher'f, somewheres in yo' office, yuh have got the description o' Sonora Till, Jeems Coten an' Dynamite Potts. I have been on their trail, off an' on, for three years."

They inspected the house. Everywhere there were signs of a hasty scooping up of belongings. In one corner, a rough chest of drawers had been pulled aside, revealing a board-topped cavity in the dirt.

On the bottom of this little pit Hardeman found a paper money wrapper that had come from the bank of Santa Rita.

"If this an't the bunch that stuck up the Santa Rita bank!" Hardeman cried fiercely.

The trail led straight back toward del Oro's house.

Don Alfredo came out, shotgun across his arm. Oray had been there nearly an hour before. Met by the threat of well-protected riflemen, the Quarter-Circle-O men had ridden south, as if going to La Luz.

The posse followed the trail to La Luz.

Before they could see the little river town, they heard the sound of rifle fire.

They rode on to the edge of the settlement. Rifles on one side of the street yapped at rifles on the other side.

Three men came out of a half-ruined house to their right. Two were Americans, the third a middle-aged Mexican.

"Them Quarter-Circle-O boys has bit off more than six men can chew comfortable. An' they ain't but five now, if there's that many. They rode in a while back. Got as fur as Molino's, then a gang opened up on 'em out o' Madrid's. One went down that first crack.

"Others whipped in past Molino's, to the river bank. Reckon they mobbed Madrid's place from the back. That bunch that had fired on 'em come bustin' out an' run across the street into Gonzales' house. You can see the three the Quarter-Circle-O downed while the Mexicans was runnin'."

A little group of men came from the north side and ran as if planning to flank the store. The runners were shredded by that hail of bullets. Only two regained the shelter they had left.

"Who are these Mex fightin' 'em?" Grier Hardeman asked.

"Mostly from the other side. I seen Felix Canales."

"It's a fight between the Quarter-Circle-O an' the Devil o' Diablo," Shelley said grimly. "That means all of 'em are against us!"

The Sheriff raised his voice in a mighty bellow.

"Cut out that shootin', all of you! This is the Sheriff! All you Mexican citizens better get back to your own side, right now! Oray! I want you an' those men with you!"

A voice—Oray's—yelled an epithet. From that house opposite Madrid's came a yell in Spanish to the Mexicans:

"We have enough men to eat that gringo Sheriff and those traitorous dogs in Madrid's. This night we wipe out all who have stood against us—all gringoes!"

"Yuh all keep 'em kind o' interested, this side o' the street," Shelley said grimly. "Burnett an' Cesar an' one o' yuh others an' me, we'll make a sneak up on Madrid's place from this side."

They dismounted and moved along the river trail between houses and bank edge. They moved to a point directly abreast the veranda. From the veranda floor came the flash and spat of a rifle. Cesar's hat spun off.

Up they went and at a zig-zagging sprint to the edge of that wooden-floored veranda.

The firing was going on from the front of this house and from the street. Hardeman's bunch were keeping Felix Canales' men thoroughly interested.

Somewhat to the right of the sprawling huddle before him, Shelley could see a dark rectangle that marked the doorway.

Flashingly, even while he stared at that doorway, Shelley began to have the glimmering of an idea about Madrid.

There was nothing incredible about his theory that perhaps Simon Madrid knew a great deal more about this Devil of Diablo than anyone had believed.

Shelley came up over the edge of the veranda floor and scrambled across to the doorway. He heard the scrape of a foot inside.

HIS companions opened fire instantly on the doorway. Shelley, too, fired in the direction of the sound. He hurtled through the doorway and landed on a limp figure. The others came charging after him.

Shelley listened for a moment, then led the way to that passageway going into the long cantina and store. The room was dark except for shafts of moonlight that came through two windows, through which men were firing.

Shelley and Cesar moved toward the window behind the bar. Meanwhile, Burnett and the deputy sheriff began to inch across the littered floor toward the man at the other window.

The man at the window challenged them instantly—and it was not the voice of Dynamite Potts.

"Oray," Burnett answered the challenge grimly. "You're surrounded."

The man's prompt answer was a shot toward Burnett's locality. Both Burnett and the deputy returned the fire. Oray crashed down.

"Who is it?" cried the men at the window behind the bar.

"Yuh're the only one left," Shelley called out. "Yuh better come out holdin' on to yo' ears"—The fellow put a bullet near Shelley's ears. Shelley blazed away instantly. There was a hollow rattling sound of a rifle falling upon a plank.

Shelley was jerked erect by Burnett's fierce warning yell:

"That gang outside is rushin' us."

He and Cesar took this window and fired. Burnett and the deputy were doing the same thing at the other window.

This sudden renewal of fire, when they must have believed that they had wiped out the store's defenders, seemed to take the heart out of the Mexicans.

As the Sheriff and his party came as skirmishers up the street, firing briskly, they yelled in unison and disappeared around the houses.

Shelley opened the store's front door to Sheriff Hardeman, while one of the others lit an oil lamp. By its light, Shelley looked about the store. The man he had killed at the end of the bar was the Quarter-Circle-O rider, Janns.

Under the other window lay the unconscious figure of Oray. He had been shot through the shoulder and badly gashed in the scalp. But neither seemed a serious wound.

"Anybody see Madrid?" asked Hardeman.

"Never looked yet," Shelley said absently. "I'm goin' to see."

He slid out of the store by another door that led into the living quarters. Cesar came after him.

Shelley saw ahead of him a dully-lit square that was a window in the back wall. He stole toward it.

From the floor under the window came a roar of pistol fire.

A bullet caught Shelley in the right breast, spinning him half around. Another seared his neck like red-hot iron. Still another tore through his right arm. He fell. As he did so he heard Cesar dropping beside him.

Then, with infinite effort, the Ranger got to his knees and began inching forward. Then his moving knee touched something soft. There was a low, bubbling snarl and a pistol flashed in his very face, blinding him.

Shelley thrust his Colt muzzle forward. The hammer came back and fell. There was a roar. Then he went limp.

They pulled him up, Hardeman, Burnett and others.

"Madrid was the Devil o' Diablo!" Hardeman yelled at him, triumphantly. "Oray spilled the beans! They come in tonight to down Madrid an' clean out the place. Oray downed Madrid. We got Oray tied up, an' yonder's Dynamite!"

SHELLEY sat up. Burnett was bandaging him skillfully. Shelley stared around. Cesar lay in a sprawling huddle just inside the door.

"Dynamite!" he nodded, looking at the incredibly tall figure under the window in a great pool of blood. "I figured Madrid for a big hairpin—in the gang—if not the brains—a spell back—only way I could figure! What's that?"

From the store came the report of a pistol.

They rushed out. All but Burnett, who pulled Shelley's left arm around his neck. He half carried, half led him past Cesar on down the passageway at a snail's pace, until they stood in the store.

There lay Oray, tied hand and foot, with a bullet through his head. Directly in front of him lay Madrid where he had hauled himself out of a little cubby-hole that opened off the store. Under the "Devil's" limp hand lay a .45 Colt.

"He certainly got Oray!" Hardeman grunted in awe. How a man in that shape could have lived this long is more'n I can see. That settles the Quarter-Circle-O.

"Oray had been working with Madrid. But they kind o' fell out over splittin' the proceeds. Oray decided to raid Burnett. Dynamite Potts had come wanderin' up—Oray had worked with Sonora Till's gang a time or two—to see if this was a good country for Sonora to work in. He went with Oray an' the others. Comin' back, they run into a gang o' the Devils under Felix Canales. We saved their bacon. But they knowed we'd find Aden an' guess who 't was robbed Burnett.

"So Oray figured to high-tail, pick up Anita del Oro, come here an' kill Madrid for double-crossin' him, scoop up the loot Madrid had, an' jump over the river. He couldn't make the grade at del Oro's. An' Madrid's men opened up on 'em in the street. They rushed the house from the back an' caught Madrid, who was too fat to run.

"But Madrid accused Oray o' turnin' traitor! Accused him o' fightin' off Felix Canales' gang at del Oro's. They'd gone out to lift some placer gold del Oro's s'posed to have. Oray cut him to pieces. Though they couldn't get out with the stuff they found in that den o' Madrid's.

"An' we come up. Madrid told 'em you was comin'. Del Oro told him. Madrid wired Austin to have you trust nobody but him; to be careful o' me, even! An' not to go near Burnett! He aimed to down you quiet. Then, you killed his nephew on the road—Luis Canales!"

He gaped at the door across the room. Cesar leaned on it, white-faced, staring, but seemingly very much alive.

"A bullet must have glanced off a log and knocked me down," said Cesar. "You—you are not badly hurt, Sarjento mio?"

"Not too bad to keep me from sendin' a telegram, askin' to stick down yere awhile," Shelley grinned.

TOY TALKIES

by Walter Quermann

THE PLOT THICKENS

This is a game that can be played by any child. All that is needed are scissors, paste and some cardboard. The directions for playing "Toy Talkies" are given at the bottom of the game.

THE PLAYERS

IVAN WOLFHOUNDSKI—Who is searching for his younger brother.
SHERLOCK BONES—A great detective and friend of Ivan.
LEON WOLFHOUNDSKI—Ivan's younger brother.
BEARSKI—Leon's roommate.

THE PLAY BEGINS

(Leon Wolfhoundski is on the stage.)

LEON WOLFHOUNDSKI—During the revolution the Reds killed everyone in my aristocratic family except me. My nurse, Beara Boo, saved my life by claiming that I was her child. (Bearski enters.)

BEARSKI—There are two strange men coming. Be careful! Remember you are not supposed to be a Wolfhoundski.

LEON WOLFHOUNDSKI—Two strange men? M-m-m—I'll be careful. If my true identity were found out I would be thrown in prison. (There is a knock at the door off stage.)

BEARSKI—I'll answer it. (He leaves.)

LEON WOLFHOUNDSKI—The present government would be afraid that I might try to bring back the monarchy. (Bearski enters, followed by Ivan Wolfhoundski and Sherlock Bones.)

IVAN WOLFHOUNDSKI—Leon, my brother, at last I have found you!

LEON WOLFHOUNDSKI—I don't understand.

IVAN WOLFHOUNDSKI—Your sister, Olga, and I were touring China during the revolution and so escaped death. Beara Boo told us about you and where to find you. (Bearski moves closer to Leon Wolfhoundski.)

BEARSKI—(Whispering.) Be careful, Leon. It might be a trick. Better leave.

LEON WOLFHOUNDSKI—I'm afraid I don't know what you are talking about. Will you pardon me a moment? (He leaves.)

SHERLOCK BONES—He is Leon Wolfhoundski. I read this fellow's lips when he whispered to him.

BEARSKI—(Surprised.) Why-er—there must be some mistake.

SHERLOCK BONES—I'll catch him. (He leaves.)

IVAN WOLFHOUNDSKI—Why didn't he admit he was a Wolfhoundski?

BEARSKI—I won't answer you. (Sherlock enters, wearing his disguise.)

SHERLOCK BONES—The police will be here in a moment. I called them when I saw a man run out of here after another fellow.

IVAN WOLFHOUNDSKI—The police! They must not find me here. (He leaves, followed by Sherlock Bones.)

BEARSKI—What's this? He must be a Wolfhoundski, too, or why should he be afraid of the police? (Sherlock Bones enters, minus his disguise.)

BEARSKI—I knew you couldn't catch him. He can run too fast. But he is a Wolfhoundski, and I will help you find him. Hurry, the police are coming. (He leaves.)

SHERLOCK BONES—This was a case of legs against brains, and brains won. (He leaves.)

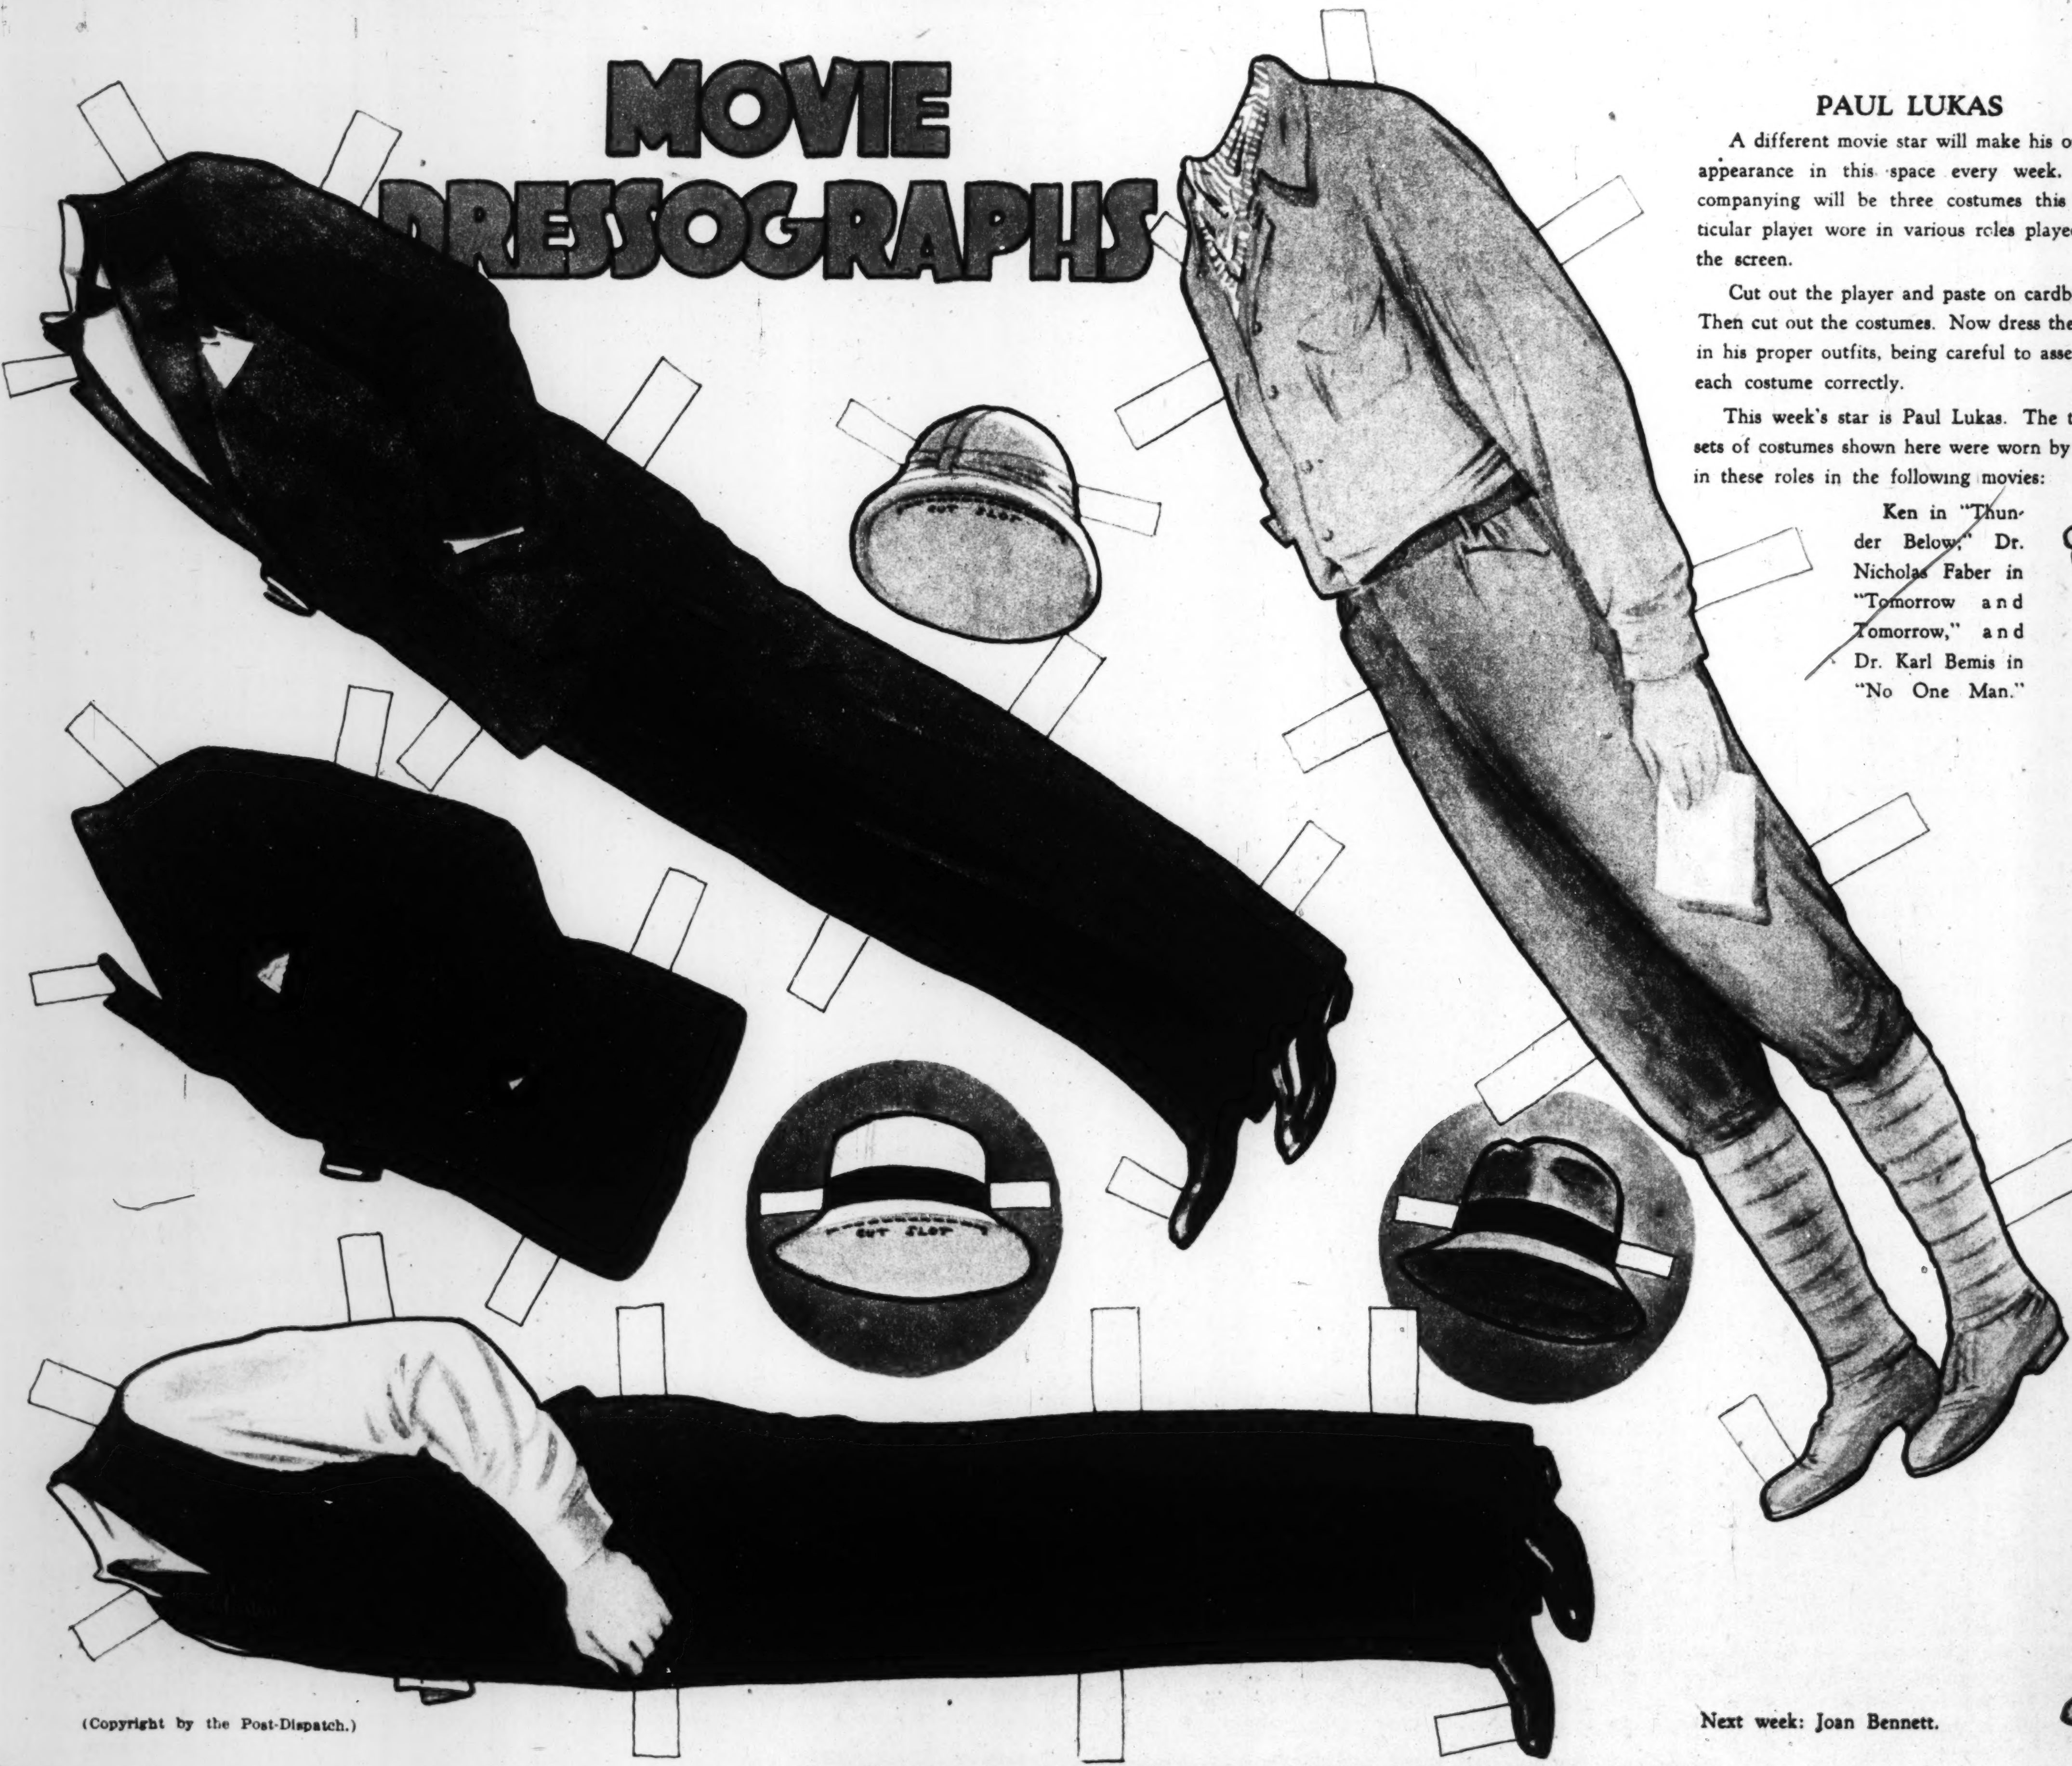
DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

Next week: Mysterious Messages.

MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS



PAUL LUKAS

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen.

Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in his proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is Paul Lukas. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by him in these roles in the following movies:

Ken in "Thunder Below," Dr. Nicholas Faber in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," and Dr. Karl Bemis in "No One Man."

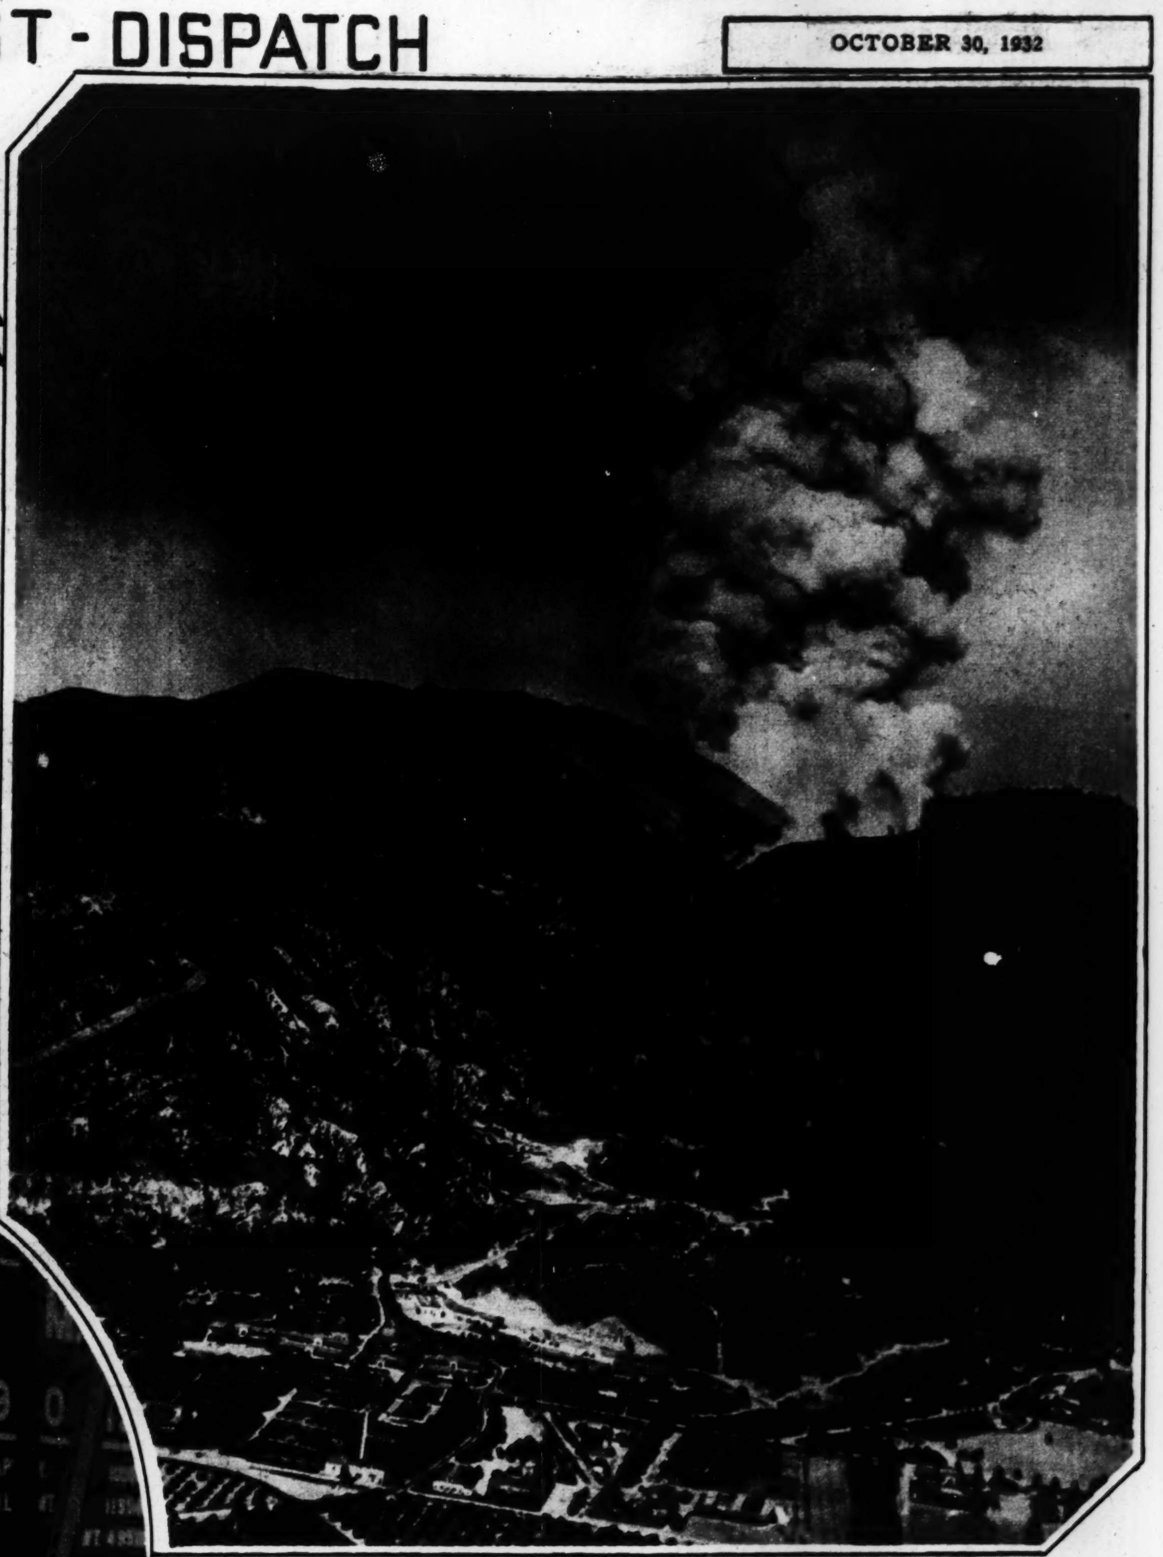
SUNDAY MORNING

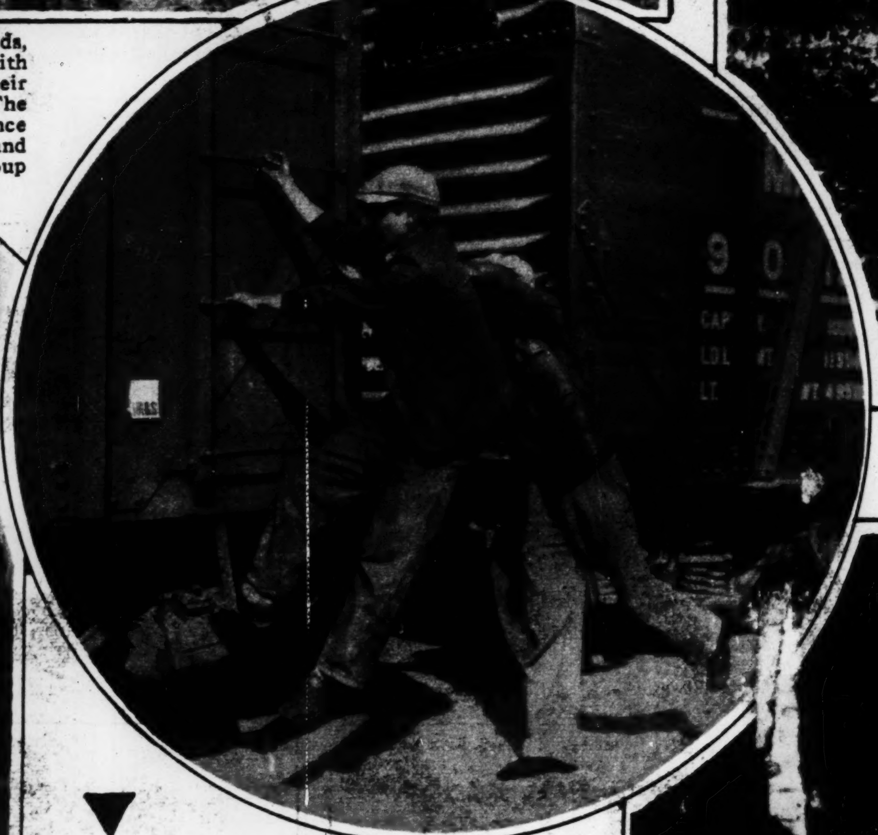
THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

OCTOBER 30, 1932

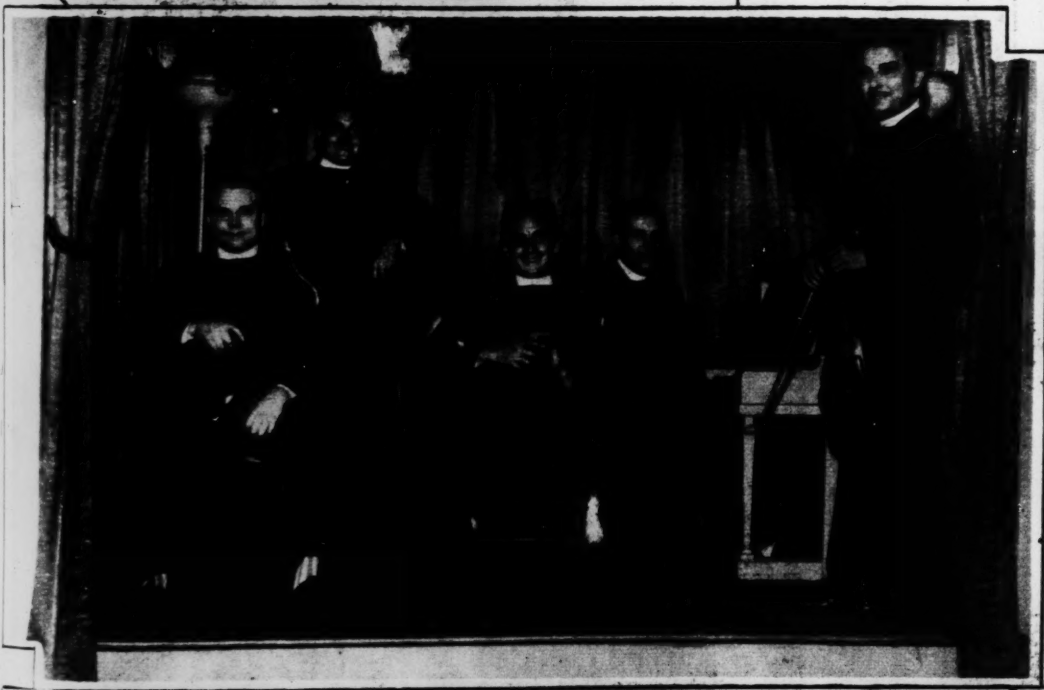
AMERICA'S VAGABOND BOYS—A group of youthful nomads, members of an ever-increasing company that has sprung up with the depression, photographed at East St. Louis in one of their perpetual cross-country migrations in search of employment. The jobless, homeless boys are treated with considerable indulgence by railway employes they encounter. The photographs above and at right were made in East St. Louis just as this particular group was making ready to cross the Mississippi.



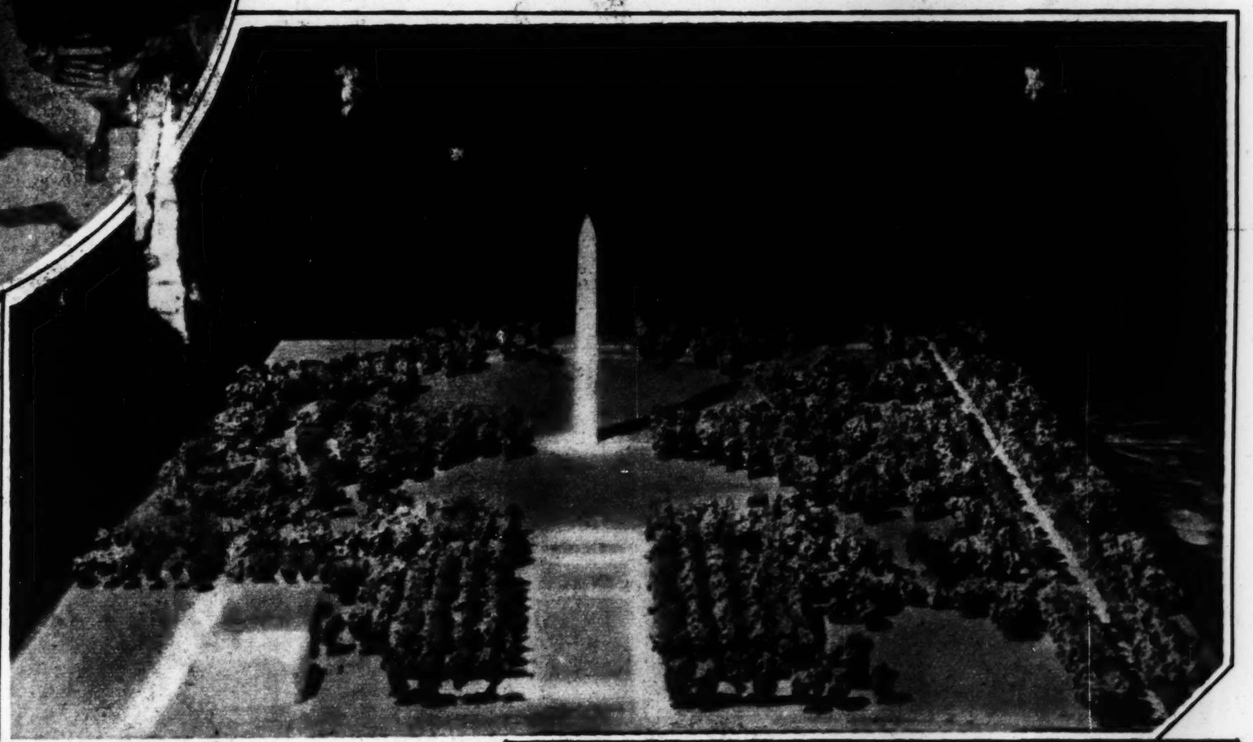
A VOLCANO-LIKE FOREST FIRE—This blaze in the Los Angeles National Forest—believed to be of incendiary origin—was being fought by 300 men and all the available apparatus of the U. S. Forestry Service when the above photograph was taken.



MOVIES, MUSCLE AND MUSIC—Harold Lloyd, screen comedian; Max Schmeling, ex-heavyweight champion, and Irving Berlin, the song writer, after a recent chance meeting on board the Bremen when all three were bound for Europe.



WOOING CHURCH-GOERS WITH JAZZ—Al Amato's orchestra, which played at the regular Sunday night services of the First Westminster Presbyterian Church in Toledo, O., recently. It was all a part of the Rev. Elwood Rowsey's plan to bring the church closer to the people—particularly the people with restless feet.



PLAN FOR WASHINGTON MONUMENT GARDENS—An informal design for landscaping the grounds, which is among those being considered by the Special Engineering Committee of Congress.

SCHOOL FOR BREWERS RESUMES—A class in the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentation, in Chicago, which started up again recently after being suspended 17 years.

"IDEAL BUSINESS GIRL"—Miss Anne McCarthy was so chosen at the Twenty-ninth Annual National Business Show in New York.

MAIDEN FORM

Entirely strapless and backless, this double-net brassiere was created especially for low-cut evening gowns. Light but firm little bones hold it securely in place and its ribbon pulls are adjustable to exactly the "uplift" you require.

The girdle is one of Maiden Form's new "High-Waist" styles—designed to give the slim waistline so essential with present day fashions. It is made of dainty figured batiste and elastic mesh.

More MONEY to Spend . . . More TIME to Enjoy

You can have both with VICKS PLAN for better CONTROL-OF-COLDS

YOU'VE BEEN PAYING your part of a "Colds-Tax"—in money and time alone—of over a billion dollars a year! Now tests indicate more than half of it can be saved and really enjoyed! . . . Nor does this count the savings in worry and trouble of colds—especially to mothers. Nor the lessening in dangers of colds—especially to children.

PROVED LAST WINTER IN NATION-WIDE CLINIC

Introduced last season, Vicks Colds-Control Plan was clinically tested in schools, colleges and homes—among 3,519 people. Results showed the number and duration of colds reduced by half—their costs cut more than half! . . . The satisfaction of hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic users—all over the country—confirms these tests.

Safe, practical and inexpensive, Vicks Plan is easy to follow—full directions in each Vicks Package. Let it bring to your home this winter the happy experience of more freedom from colds and their burdensome expense.

Vicks Plan provides proper medication—at the proper time—for every type and stage of a cold. In Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, you have the new aid in preventing colds. With Vicks VapoRub, you have the accepted modern way of treating colds. Together with certain simple rules of health, these preparations form the new Vicks Plan for your better Control of colds.

HOW VICKS PLAN WORKS FOR BETTER CONTROL OF COLDS

To PREVENT Many Colds—Watch yourself and children after exposure to any condition apt to cause a cold. Then, at that first sign of nasal irritation or stuffiness, sniffle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once! Especially designed for the nose and throat—where most colds start—they soothe irritation and stimulate Nature's functions in preventing or throwing off the infection that threatens.

To END a Cold Sooner—If a cold has already developed, or slips by every precaution—as some colds will—vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub—standby of mothers for two generations in treating the family's colds. Its direct double action—continuing through the night—means quicker, surer relief. During the day—for added relief and comfort—use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed.

TRIAL OFFER: Your druggist has Vicks VapoRub (now in white Stainless form, if you prefer). Also Vicks Nose Drops and the new Vicks Cough Drop actually medicated with ingredients of VapoRub. If you wish to test these new products before buying, and learn more about Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds, send 3c in stamps to Vick Chemical Co., 471 Milton Street, Greensboro, N. C.

GEORGE, HERE'S ALMA ON THE PHONE. SHE SAYS THE DIRECTIONS YOU GAVE FRED FOR GETTING HERE FROM WHERE THEY LIVE NOW WERE WRONG.
HELLO ALMA, WHERE ARE YOU NOW? WHERE? IN LINDELLWOOD! AWAY OUT THERE? IMAGINE!
I'LL TALK TO FRED AGAIN.
IN LINDELLWOOD NOW, EH? WELL FRED, YOU MUST HAVE TAKEN THE WRONG TURN AFTER YOU PASSED THE SECOND BRIDGE ON THE SOUTH ROAD. LISTEN FRED, GO ON THROUGH LINDELLWOOD AND TURN RIGHT AT THE FIRST ROAD.
LINDELLWOOD? TELL HIM TO TAKE THE EAST ROAD UNTIL HE COMES TO THE OLD FERRY ROAD, THEN TURN LEFT.
LINDELLWOOD! IMAGINE FRED AND ALMA GOING AWAY OUT THERE.
THEY OUGHT TO BE HERE SOON. PUT ON YOUR COAT AND GO DOWN TO THE DOOR SO YOU CAN.... THERE'S THE PHONE.
IT'S ALMA AGAIN! OH YES DEAR....WHERE ARE YOU NOW? IN GLENDALE? OF ALL PLACES! YOU MUST HAVE MADE THE WRONG TURN AT THE OLD MILL GEORGE TOLD FRED ABOUT.
LET ME TALK TO FRED AGAIN.
ARE YOU SURE YOU'RE IN GLENDALE DEAR? I SIMPLY CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW YOU GOT FROM LINDELLWOOD TO GLENDALE IN THIS TIME. WELL ANYHOW, COME BACK ABOUT TWO MILES ON THAT ROAD TO GLENDALE. THEN TURN LEFT.
THERE'S A NEW ROAD FROM THERE. LET ME TALK WITH FRED AGAIN.
THEY SHOULD HAVE BEEN HERE LONG AGO. I'LL BET FRED FOLLOWED PART OF THE DIRECTIONS YOU GAVE ALMA.
WELL...THERE'S THE PHONE AGAIN.
OH YES, FRED...WHERE ARE YOU NOW? IN BECKERTON! ARE YOU SURE? THAT'S A LONG WAY FROM HERE. WELL ANYHOW, LISTEN... COME BACK TO THE SECOND TOWN. THAT'S BOLZ HILL. AT THE CITY HALL TURN TO YOUR LEFT.
OH GEORGE, HE SHOULDN'T TURN UNTIL HE GETS TO THE RED BRIDGE! LET ME TALK TO ALMA.
WAITING! WAITING! WHAT DO YOU SUPPOSE HAPPENED? MAYBE A FLAT TIRE OR HE MAY HAVE RAN OUT OF GAS.
HE WAS ARGUING WITH HER WHEN I WAS EXPLAINING HOW THEY'D GET TO THE OLD BRIDGE ROAD. SHE WAS....THE PHONE AGAIN?
OH YES ALMA! WHERE? OH, IN HERKLOTZ? MY STARS! WELL ALMA, ANYHOW, YOU'RE RIGHT NEAR A MAIN ROAD LEADING ALMOST DIRECTLY HERE... THE EAST ROAD TO YOUR RIGHT OUT OF HERKLOTZ.
THEY'RE FIXING THE EAST ROAD NOW. TELL FRED TO GO THROUGH FLACHMANN AND THEN INTO HIGH RIDGE. LET ME TELL HIM, JO.
THINK OF IT. EVERY TIME THEY CALLED UP WE GAVE THEM TWO OR THREE SETS OF DIRECTIONS FOR GETTING HERE AND STILL THEY HAVEN'T ARRIVED.
ALMA WAS VERY IMPATIENT THE LAST TIME. SHE SAID.... THE PHONE AGAIN! IMAGINE!
YES...HELLO ALMA! YES WE WAITED AND WAITED. WHERE ARE YOU NOW, DEAR? WHERE? I DIDN'T CATCH...OH YES! HOME! HOME, DID YOU SAY?
HOME? WELL I WONDER HOW THEY GOT THERE? LET ME TALK TO FRED AGAIN.
IMAGINE ALMA, ONE OF MY BEST FRIENDS, DELIBERATELY HANGING UP THAT PHONE ON ME! I WAS SIMPLY STUNNED. AMAZED. WHAT DO YOU SUPPOSE HAPPENED?
IT'S A MYSTERY. THE MORE I THINK OF FRED REFUSING TO TALK TO ME...I'VE GOT A GOOD MIND TO CALL HIM UP AGAIN AND ASK FOR AN EXPLANATION.

DON'T BE ALARMED, BLACKIE — IT WAS JUST SOMEONE RINGING OUR DOORBELL!
I TOLD YOU IT WAS A G-GHOST! LOOK! TWO FOOTPRINTS LEFT THE PORCH AND ONLY ONE SHOWS ON THE SIDEWALK!
IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN A ONE LEGGED MAN, BECAUSE THERE ARE TWO FOOTPRINTS ON THE PORCH AND ONLY ONE ON THE SIDEWALK! AND LOOK — THEY'RE TEN FEET APART!
NOBODY EXCEPT A GHOST COULD HOP TEN FEET ON ONE LEG!
AND ONLY A GHOST COULD WALK ON TWO LEGS AND THEN USE ONLY ONE. WHOEVER IT WAS HAD TWO LEGS ON THE PORCH AND ONE ON THE SIDEWALK! LET'S CALL THE SHERIFF!
MAYBE IT WAS A ONE-LEGGED MAN CARRYING A SHOE ON ONE HAND TO FOOL US!
IMPOSSIBLE! THERE ISN'T A ONE LEGGED MAN IN TOWN!
IT'S G-GOT ME S-S-STUMPED! I AIN'T A COWARD, BUT MY LINE OF DUTY DON'T CALL FOR TRACKING DOWN GHOSTS! I'M GOING!

GEE, DORA AIN'T IT SWELL? I'M GLAD YOU BROUGHT YOUR CAMERA ALONG!
LET'S ASK THAT CHAP TO TAKE A FEW SNAPS OF US JUST FER FUN!
ALL RIGHT, BING!
WHAT-CHA THINK I'M DOIN'?
HOLD IT!
LATER
I'LL TAKE THESE DOWN TO THE DRUG STORE TO BE DEVELOPED, LIL' HONEY-BUN!
OH, FER GOODNESS SAKE, I FORGOT I MADE A FEW EXPOSURES ON THAT FILM A FEW MONTHS AGO.— BUT IT'S TOO LATE NOW — BING HAS TAKEN THEM TO THE DRUG STORE!
ARE TH' FILMS READY I LEFT HERE YESTERDAY?
YEP!
I'LL BET THE GANG WILL BE JEALOUS WHEN THEY SEE MY ARM AROUN' DORA!
AFTER ALL, WITH THESE SNAPS I'LL BE ABLE TO PROVE I'M TH' BIG LOVE IN HER LIFE!
AH-H-A SWELL!
WHAT TH'!
THAT'S FUNNY HE SEEMED ALL RIGHT WHEN HE CAME IN!

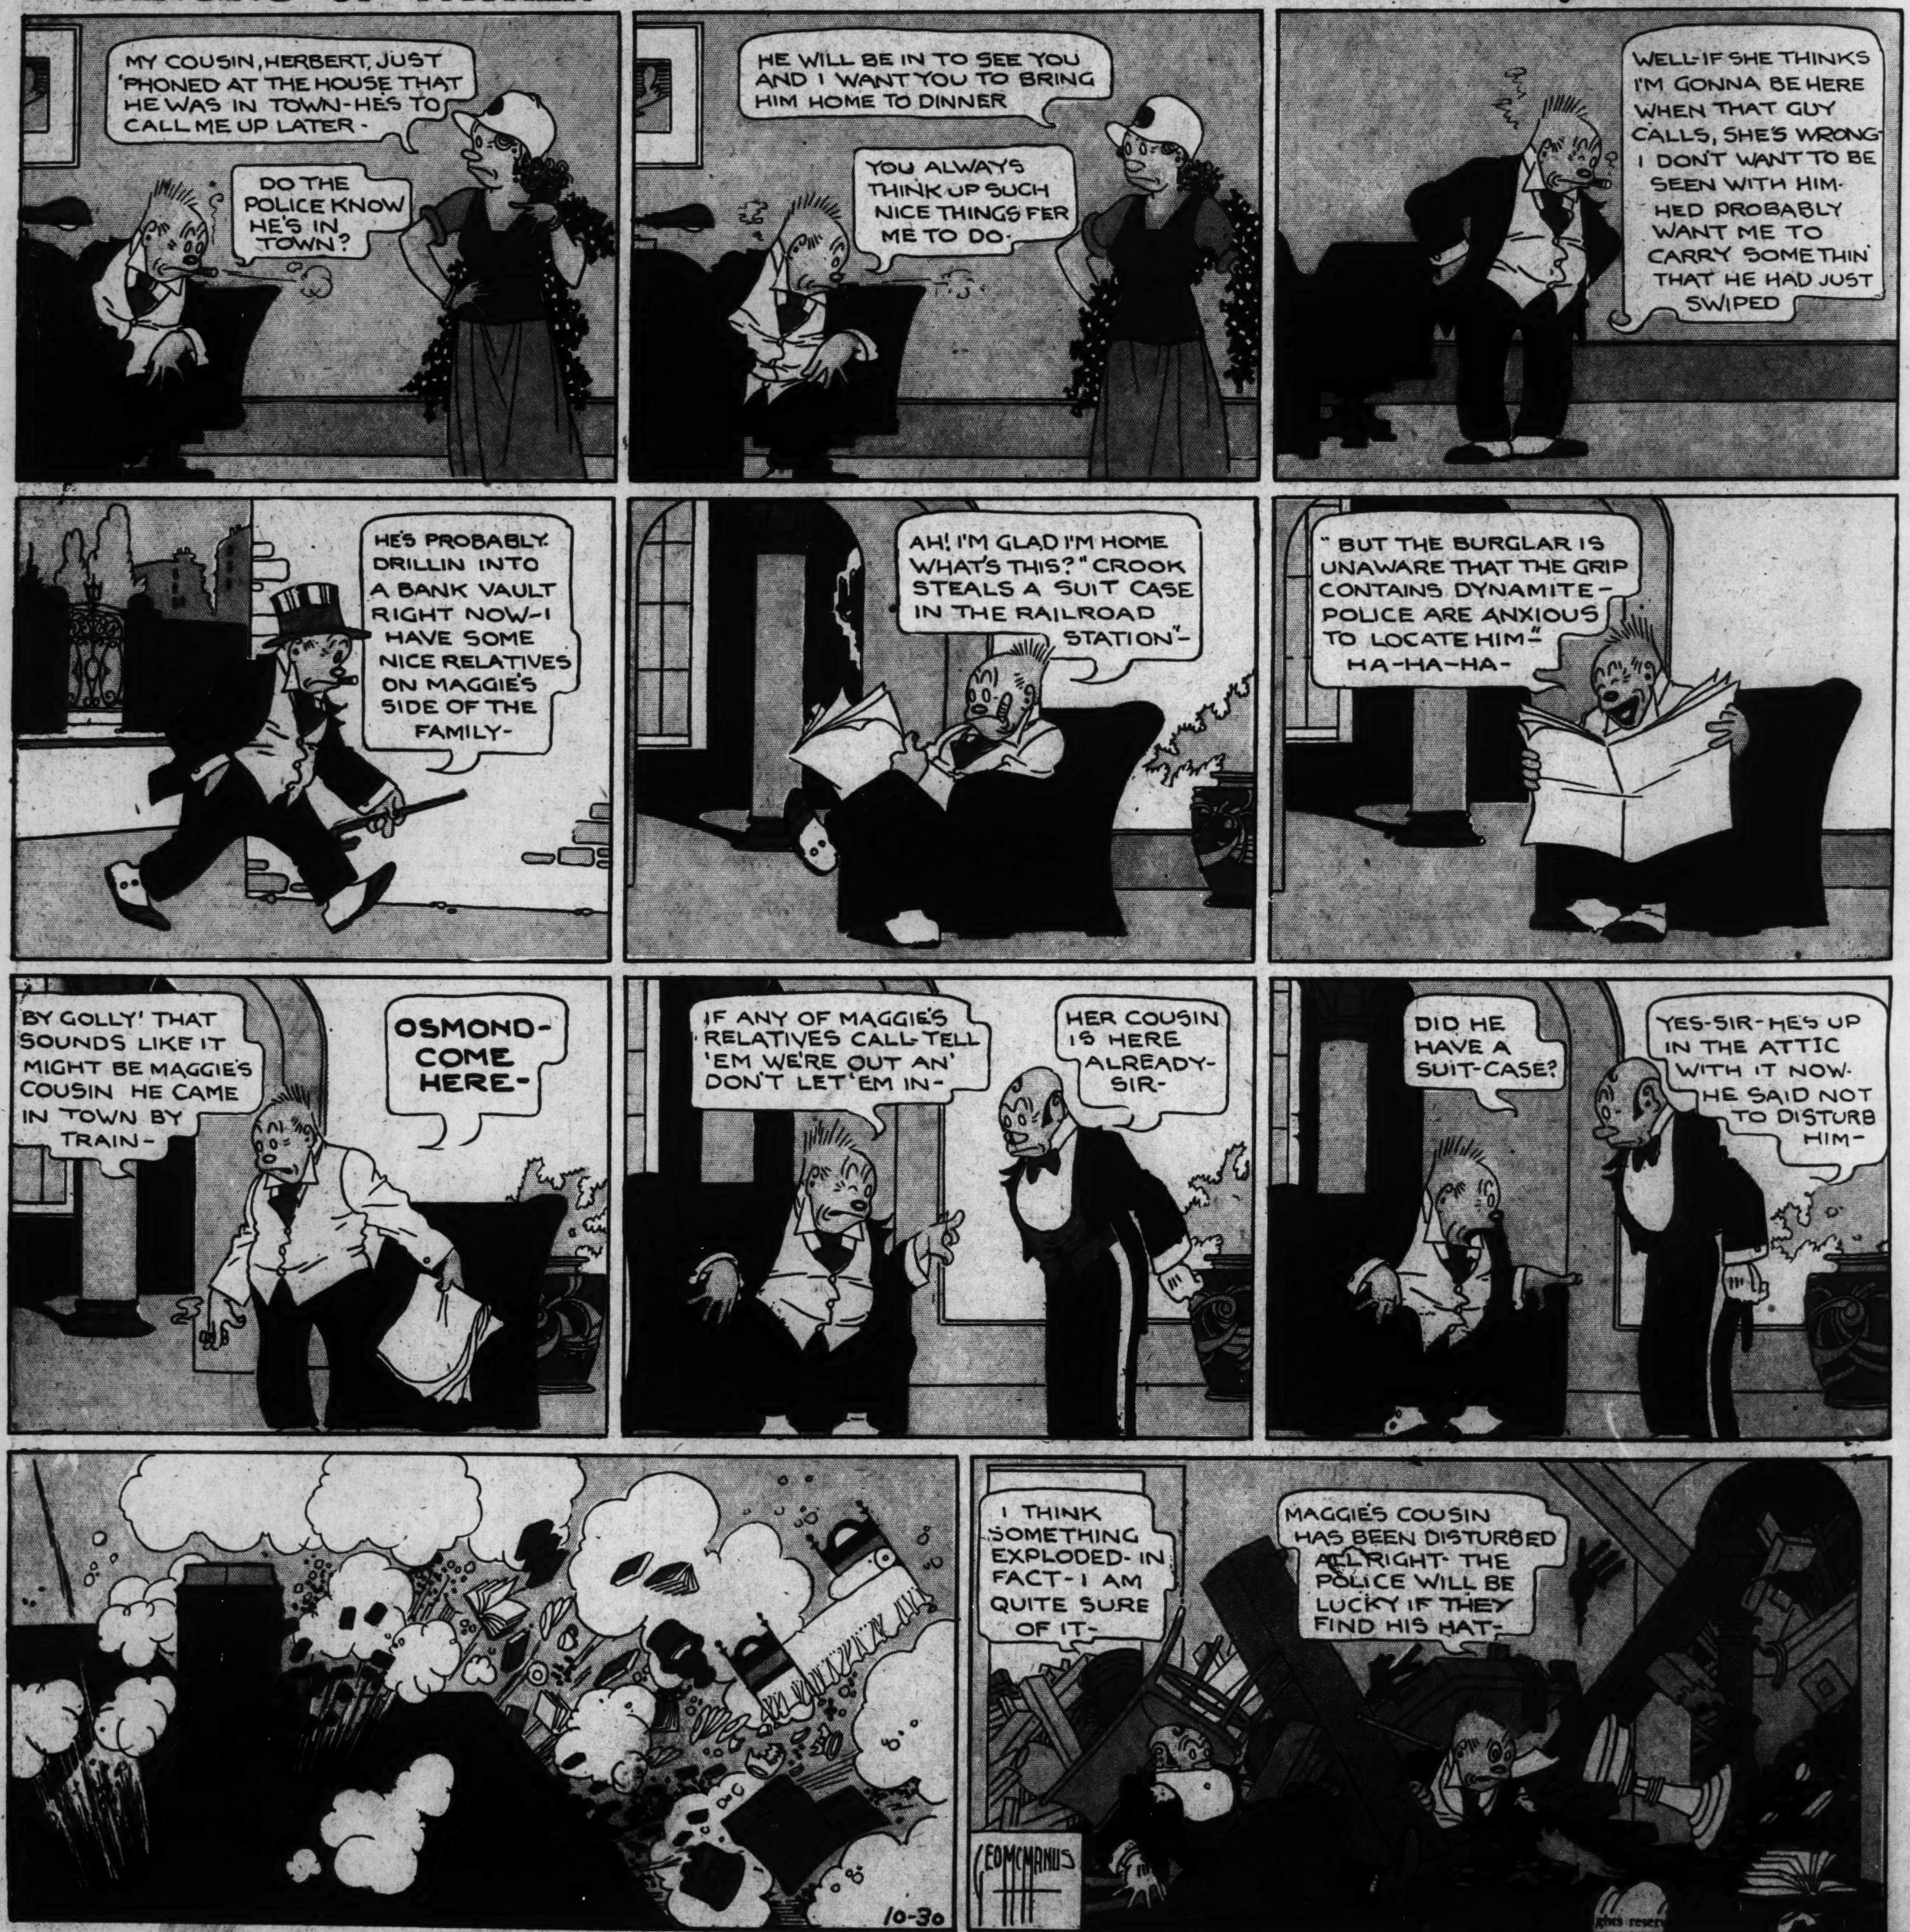
Rosie's BEAU
by GEO. McMANUS
SO ROSIE THINKS THAT I'M THE MAN, WHO WAS AT THE RAILROAD STATION WITH THAT MOVIE ACTRESS, JUST BECAUSE THE NEWSPAPER SAID HE WAS VERY HANDSOME-
WELL! I CAN'T SAY I BLAME HER FOR THAT, THE DEAR LITTLE DARLING-
BUT THAT DOESN'T STRAIGHTEN THE MATTER OUT- SHE'S STILL ANGRY- I'LL CALL HER AND SEE IF SHE IS WILLING TO LISTEN TO REASON-
MR-ARCHIE AM ON DE 'PHONE- MISS-
BELINDA- I TOLD YOU THAT EVERY TIME HE CALLS UP, TO JUST TELL HIM I REFUSE TO TALK TO HIM-
VERY WELL- IF SHE'S GOING TO ACT LIKE THAT- I CERTAINLY AM NOT GOING TO LET IT BOTHER ME- I'LL JUST PUT HER OUT OF MY MIND-
SHE OUGHT TO GIVE ME A CHANCE TO EXPLAIN- GEE! IT'S SIX IN THE MORNING- I WONDER WHY I CAN'T SLEEP?

BRINGING UP FATHER

This comic appears every day in the daily Post-Dispatch

By McMANUS



MY COUSIN, HERBERT, JUST 'PHONED AT THE HOUSE THAT HE WAS IN TOWN- HE'S TO CALL ME UP LATER-
DO THE POLICE KNOW HE'S IN TOWN?
HE WILL BE IN TO SEE YOU AND I WANT YOU TO BRING HIM HOME TO DINNER
YOU ALWAYS THINK UP SUCH NICE THINGS FER ME TO DO.
WELL- IF SHE THINKS I'M GONNA BE HERE WHEN THAT GUY CALLS, SHE'S WRONG- I DON'T WANT TO BE SEEN WITH HIM- HE'D PROBABLY WANT ME TO CARRY SOMETHIN' THAT HE HAD JUST SWIPED
HE'S PROBABLY DRILLIN INTO A BANK VAULT RIGHT NOW- I HAVE SOME NICE RELATIVES ON MAGGIE'S SIDE OF THE FAMILY-
AH! I'M GLAD I'M HOME WHAT'S THIS? "CROOK STEALS A SUIT CASE IN THE RAILROAD STATION"-
"BUT THE BURGLAR IS UNAWARE THAT THE GRIP CONTAINS DYNAMITE- POLICE ARE ANXIOUS TO LOCATE HIM." HA-HA-HA-
BY GOLLY! THAT SOUNDS LIKE IT MIGHT BE MAGGIE'S COUSIN HE CAME IN TOWN BY TRAIN-
OSMOND- COME HERE-
IF ANY OF MAGGIE'S RELATIVES CALL- TELL 'EM WE'RE OUT AN' DON'T LET 'EM IN-HER COUSIN IS HERE ALREADY- SIR-
DID HE HAVE A SUIT-CASE?
YES-SIR- HE'S UP IN THE ATTIC WITH IT NOW- HE SAID NOT TO DISTURB HIM-
10-30
I THINK SOMETHING EXPLODED- IN FACT- I AM QUITE SURE OF IT-MAGGIE'S COUSIN HAS BEEN DISTURBED ALL RIGHT- THE POLICE WILL BE LUCKY IF THEY FIND HIS HAT-
